GOP Wins 2 Races, Leads 2 In Maine Voting

Late State Count Shows Republicans Making Clean Sweep Of All Major Offices

BULLETIN

Rep. Charles P. Nelson won his fight for re-election, an early morning Associated Press dispatch reported.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 11 (AP).—Republican Gov. Federick G. Payne and Representative Frank Fellows (R.) of the Third District swept to victory in today's State election, the country's first since the Korean war began.

With two other GOP congressman in commanding leads, the Republicans apparently were making an eighth straight "clean sweep" of major offices.

Republicans called the election the Nation's first test of confidence in the Truman Administration's handling of the Korean and Chinese situations.

Fellows blamed the war on "this horrible, bungling, inept" Administration.

Payne won a second term with more than a two to one margin over the closest of two opponents.

In 489 of the State's823 precincts an unofficial tabulation gave him 87,906 votes. Earl S. Grant (D.) polled 44,579 and Leland B. Currier, States Righter, 566.

Payne polled 67 percent of the vote. In 1946, the last off year election, the Republican gubernatorial candidate won with 61 percent, piling up a statewise total of 110,327 to 69,624 for his Democratic opponent.

Fellows defeated John V. Keenan (D.) of Mars Hill, a disabled World II veteran.

The congressman got 20,929 votes to Keenan's 10,313 in 186 of 260 Third District precincts.

In the First District Representative Robert Hale ran ahead of Miss Lucia M. Cormier (D.). The vote was 26,827 to 15,474 in 105 of 154 precincts.

Representative Charles P. Nelson piled up 33,218 votes to Democrat John J. Maloney's 16,749 in the Second District.

Still missing from the compilation were the Democratic cities of Lewiston, in Nelson's district, and Biddeford, in Hale's.

Coroner Acts Beyond Law, Probers Told

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

In holding or freeing defendants, and in fixing bond for persons charged with traffic deaths, the District coroner acts without foundation in law, counsel for the House subcommittee investigating Washington crime charged yesterday.

Such judicial determinations are in the province of the grand jury, the U. S. Commisioner, and the courts, Hyman I. Fischbach said.

He also challenged the wisdom of decision by the coroner's jury, and suggested the judicial functions of the coroner's office be eliminated.

In at least two cases, described by Fischbach as "not unusual," the coroner's jury freed defendants where, the committee agreed, probable cause existed that they had committed crimes.

The committee resumed open hearings yesterday for the first time since March, questioning Dr.

JAN CHRISTIAAN SMUTS
. . . Twice Premier of South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Sept. 11 (AP).—Jan Christiaan Smuts, a statesman of world stature and the Union of South Africa's most famous soldier, died tonight at the age of 80.

The bearded field marshal who twice was Prime Minister of South Africa and a British Empire leader in two world wars, had been ill since May 28, four days after nation-wide celebrations of his 80th birthday.

A back ailment first put him to bed, and he later developed pneumonia. He had barely recovered from the attack when he was stricken by influenza.

He gave up his leadership of the United Party less than three months ago after a lifetime of arduous political, military, scientific literary activity.

In his career he had authored the concept of the British Com-

Federation President Lists 1950 Goals At 20th Convention

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11 (AP).—The President of the National Federation of Federal Employes today urged legislation "requiring thorough investigation of applicants for appointment to Federal position. Both as to their loyalty and general fitness for employment."

President Luther C. Steward told some 100 delegates to the NFFE's twentieth annual convention:

"There is no question but that at present too much emphasis has been placed on formal education and not enough upon character."

He proposed that loyalty checks be made a part of permanent Federal employment policy.

Steward said the organization's goals this year include overtime pay for all employes and laws to protect veteran government workers from discharge during payroll reduction periods.

Flyer Rams Troop Train, Killing 33

Plows Into Rear Of Stalled Penna. National Guard Special in Ohio Fog

COSHOCTON, Ohio, Sept. 11 (AP).—Thirty-three Pennsylvania National Guardsmen were killed early today when the Pennsylvania Railroad's "Spirit of St. Louis" rammed the rear of a stalled troop train.

Sixty-one others were injured, 20 of them critically. Only seven others were hurt seriously enough to remain hospitalized tonight.

The accident occurred in a fog, five minutes after the troop train stopped because of a broken air hose. A flagman had placed red flares and a lantern 100 yards down the track.

The Guardsmen were en route to Camp Atterbury, Ind., to enter the Army.

Saw Spirit Approaching

"We saw the Spirit of St. Louis about a mile away," related Lieut. Col. Frank Townend, of Dallas, Pa., commander of the troop train. "We thought it would surely see the flares and lantern and stop.

"Although it did no good, we shouted and waved our arms until we could see there was going to be a crash."

Townend and a group of crewmen jumped down an embankment as the Spirit's diesel locomotive hit the rear coach of the 20-car troop train. The soldiers aboard were not so fortunate. Most of them were sleeping; a few had been awakened for breakfast.

The huge diesel, pulling 17 cars, knocked the rear coach into the air, smashed the second car aside and plowed into the third.

Screams in the Fog

"It was so dark and foggy that all we could hear was the screams of the men," said J. A. Brangman of Columbus, Ohio, brakeman of the Spirit. "It was chaos everywhere, punctured with screaming, yelling and cursing of men."

The time was 5:15 a. m. (EST), a mile east of West Lafayette, which is 7 miles east of this town. The troop train, carrying approximately 700 members of the Twenty-eighth National Guard Division, had stopped automatically when the air hose broke. It had made an earlier stop because of a broken coupling. Colonel Townend said the flagman placed flares and a lantern 100 yards down the track. He estimated the Spirit was traveling 45 miles an hour.

The diesel, after slashing into the three cars, fell on its side over an embankment. Its engineer, William Eller, 65, of Midway, Pa., was reported to be the only injured person aboard the Spirit.

Two Rear Coaches Smashed

Sergt. Joseph Warhola, 22, of Simpson, Pa., seated in the middle of the train, grabbed his camera and rushed to the rear.

"The two rear coaches were smashed like tin cans," he said. "The third coach from the rear also was derailed, but it wasn't damaged as severely as the last two. That's where most of the dead and injured were."

The railroad, unable to report now on the cause of the accident, did say the scene area "is equipped with the most modern signaling and protective devices."

Prospects Change

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The prospects of the Foreign Ministers' meetings this week have been changed dramatically by President Truman's conditional offer of more American troops for Europe.

Ministers of the "Big Three"—the United States, Britain and France—will start Tuesday on three days' discussions which are sure to be largely concerned with European defense problems. On Friday the Foreign Ministers of all 12 North Atlantic Treaty partners will start two days of meetings on the same subject.

Until last weekend the Ministers knew only that their plans were not enough to bridge what Winston Churchill called the "hideous gap" in the defenses of the West.

They did not know that the United States was prepared to send "substantial" new troops to Europe if the other treaty partners put stronger armed forces in the field.

Bevin Due Today

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Britain was already on the ocean when President Truman issued his announcement of Saturday, and had not heard of it in advance. Bevin is expected here aboard the Queen Elizabeth in the morning if a gale off the coast does not delay him.

Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France read newspaper accounts and brief official cables about the American decision before he took off on Sunday by plane. Schuman landed here this morning, but from his own brief statement and the questions of his aides, it was apparent he did not yet fully grasp the implications of the President's statement.

It will be Secretary Acheson's job Tuesday, at the first of the "Big Three" ministers' meetings, to make clear the double-edged nature of the American proposal. He will emphasize, first, that the United States is not just offering to buy defense with dollars, and

Attorney Asks: 'How Can I?'

Kefauver Asks Morris Shenker Quit Democratic Committee

Chairman Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee last night called for the resignation of Morris A. Shenker, St. Louis attorney, as a member of the Democratic Finance Committee.

(In Jefferson City, Mo., Shenker something I have never accepted?" Chuckled: "How can I resign from

(Shenker said he appreciated Kefauver's fairness in the matter. He would say nothing further except that he probably would have a formal statement later. There were indications the statement might be Shenker's refusal to take the finance job.)

Kefauver said in a statement that Shenker's connection as attorney with some persons investigation by the group might be "embarrassing" to the Democratic Party.

At the same time, the committee chairman said there is no reason for the group to investigate Shenker, as demanded earlier in the day by Senator Wiley (R., Wis.), a member of the group. Wiley said in a statement that Shenker is "attorney for some of the largest gambling interests in America."

Kefauver said that while "there is no evidence that Mr. Shenker will seek any improper contributions" in view of the fact that the committee will make further inquiries into the activities of his clients "I hope that the appointment will be reconsidered and that Mr. Shenker will not accept the assignment."

Shenker is a St. Louis attorney

3 Wardens Per Block

A "warden service," somewhat similar to that employed as air raid defense in World War II, will form the nucleus of the District's new civil defense program, Inspector John E. Fondahl announced yesterday.

Inspector Fondahl, recently appointed as acting defense director, also proposed the formation of a police reserve corps to be recruited and trained immediately. He plans to submit a formal request for the corps to the District Commissioners today.

The method of obtaining wardens is still under consideration. But Fondahl, who spent yesterday in preliminary discussions designed to set up "priority in planning" for defense, said he planned to start immediately with organization of the warden system.

Fondahl's preliminary plan calls for a warden in every block on a 24-hour basis, a schedule calling for at least three people.

Both Inspector Fondahl and Assistant Engineer Commissioner Lieut. Col. John J. Hayes, 3d, who attended the planning sessions, said they thought the warden service would be "different in

Hope to Keep Prices Down

More Steel Capacity Asked; World Allocations Studied

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Government officials, concerned at the heavy defense demands for strategic military raw materials, are stepping up activity to insure necessary supplies here and abroad.

On the domestic front, Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer yesterday asked the top officers of the American steel industry to perfect their programs for expanded production.

With an eye on the international supply situation, Federal experts meantime worked at plans for some mechanism to allocate basic raw materials among the rearming Western Nations.

A demand for such an allocation system has already been voiced by French Premier Rene Pleven. American officials, without dissenting voice, also agree on the desirability of international agreement to share such vital and scarce commodities as wool, steel, copper, tin and rubber. They fear that without some mechanism of allocations, and firm price agreements, the intensified demand will send prices skyrocketing.

The need, they pointed out, exists quite apart from any considerations of preclusive buying or economic warfare against the Russian bloc. It is simply common sense, they assert, to make sure that the North Atlantic Pact nations, all launched on expanded defense programs, do not get into cut-throat competition for raw materials in a short world supply.

No American decision has been reached on any firm plan for the nature of the desired international organization. But it is certain that the idea will come in for lively discussion at coming North Atlantic Treaty Organization meetings—either of the Council of Foreign Ministers, their deputies, or at technical levels.

During World War II a combined allocations board operated to arrange the sharing of scarce materials. Today the problem is believed more difficult, with more nations and more commodities involved.

A report from Australia yesterday stated that the United States had already proposed a wool allocation system to that nation. This could not be directly confirmed here yesterday. But it is known that the United States has asked the International Wool Study Group, at its next meeting in October in London, to consider plans

Nehru Urges West to End Colonialism

Says Asia Will Stay In Red Camp Unless Self-Rule Is Aided

By the United Press

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India said that freedom-seeking peoples of Asia will continue to follow the Communist standard unless the West helps them to end colonialism and poverty.

In a copyrighted interview published by United States News and World Report, weekly news magazine, he said communism in Asia "is largely due to its alliance with nationalist movements fighting for independence from foreign domination."

"The tendency of Asian nationalist movements to follow the leadership of the Communist Party is dependent on the degree to which their deep-rooted anti-Colonial impulse is ignored by the Western powers," he asserted.

He warned the West that arms and money alone will not win the heart of Asia, but that support of national movements seeking to end colonialism is necessary to better East-West understanding.

Specifically he urged a halt to Western support of Bao Dai, the French-backed emperor of Viet Nam in Indo-China who is fighting the Communist-trained forces of Ho Chi Minh.

"The desire of the people of Indo-China for their independence is legitimate and should be respected," he said. "It is not a military problem to be solved in terms of strategy but a human one. No outside help should be given to bolster up the colonial regime in Indo-China. The nationalist movement . . . should be encouraged."

Nehru repeated his stand that Communist China should be admitted to the United Nations, and said he considers its government entirely free of Russian domination.

Nehru said that unless the Korean war is settled peacefully, chances of an "extension of the conflict. . . . Will be greatly enhanced." He urged that "attempts to explore all avenues for a peaceful settlement should not be given up."

Yanks Open Assault On Foe Massed Above Taegu

Allied Artillery And Planes Keep Enemy Pinned Down Throughout Day

BULLETIN

U. S. Army Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea (Tuesday), Sept. 12 (AP).—Elements of the U. S. First Cavalry Division today counterattacked Red Korean troops holding a hill 7 miles north of Taegu.

"An hour after the assault began a spokesman said the troopers were moving ahead "satisfactorily."

Earlier an Army spokesman said the entire United Nations front in Korea last night was the quietest it had been "in a long time."

By Don Huth

TOKYO (Tuesday), Sept. 12 (AP).—Intense artillery and aerial poundings kept reinforced Korean Reds pinned down today in positions north of Taegu.

The Reds sent in more troops and opened an artillery barrage, suggesting a new offensive in all this sector where the Communists have massed more than 40,000 troops.

But a United States First Cavalry Division spokesman said, "We really kept his (the enemy's) head down all (last) night."

At the east coast end of the northern front, United Nations forces were striving to seal a trap around an estimated 3000 Reds who had tried to surround an airbase six miles southeast of Red-held Pohang.

[A dispatch dated as from the United States Twenty-fourth Division, said a hitherto secret United Nations task force was driving hard today to seal off a Korean Red penetration at the south end between Pohang and Angang.

[The task force is led by a former West Point football great who cannot be identified yet, the dispatch said. It pushed out Monday to the west and northwest aiming to seize high ground at the base of the corridor.

Far East Air Force said fighter planes were off in good weather early today, keeping up around-the-clock aerial assaults that hit a record 670 sorties Monday.

Close Support for Ground

This massive effort was by United States Air Force planes of all types, Royal Australian Air Force fighters and United States Marine fighters under operational control of the Fifth Air Force. The previous high, Feaf said, was 625 sorties in a single day.

Fifth Air Force planes flew more than 400 sorties Monday in close support of United Nations ground forces along the battle line and on Red supply routes just behind the front. They concentrated on the Taegu area.

[This morning the task force—

Stennis Says U. S. Has 450 'or More' Atom Bombs Now

BILOXI, Miss., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Senator John C. Stennis (D., Miss.) said tonight he understands that "we have 450 or more fullgrown atomic bombs and perhaps more."

"This is enough," he said, "for 50 bombs to each major Russian industrial city."

In a speech prepared for delivery before the Mississippi Supervisors Association convention here, Stennis did not advocate using the atomic bomb against Russia now. But he did urge quick preparation for an "all-out war" on the plea that we are now fighting for "our very existence."

"We already have 2000 Air Force bombers able to carry atom bombs, including 200 of the huge B-36 type. A B-36 type bomber can fly from New York City to Moscow and return to Dallas, Tex., without having to land."

Phone Cable Breakdown Cuts Alexandria-D. C. Dial Service

A breakdown in the main telephone cable between the five exchanges in the Alexandria area and downtown Washington held up calls between the two cities most of the day yesterday.

Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia repairmen worked from 2 a. m. through the day and evening to replace the block-long section of faulty cable.

C & P officials said late last night the splicing operations would continue through the night in hopes that complete normal service would be restored by 6 a. m. today.

Affected were calls to and from the 28,000 phones in the Alexandria, King, Overlook, Temple and Otis exchanges. Some subscribers who happened to dial at precisely the right moment were able to get their calls through by hitting alternate cable routes. These have about one-third the capacity of the 900 lines in the main cable.

Telephone communication between the Alexandria area exchanges and parts of Washington outside the downtown area was not affected. The principal downtown exchanges involved were Sterling, National, District and Metropolitan.

The cable trouble was blamed on water seepage occurring during the Sunday night rainstorm. This caused short-circuiting of lines in a section of the underground cable along Mount Vernon ave. in the Alexandria shopping section.

Transportation agencies received a heavy load of inquiries about schedules out of Washington, as Alexandrians found themselves unable to reach bus and rail terminals in the District. Rail ticket reservations, however, could not be arranged through the Alexandria office for trains leaving from Washington.

On business calls, station officials asked many callers from Washington to make some phone calls in the Capital for them since they could not get through.

Red China Loses Bid to Debate Protests in Security Council

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 11 (AP).—By a close margin, the United Nations Security Council tonight turned down a Russian demand that Red China be invited here to back up its charges of aggression against the United States.

The Peiping regime has filed two such charges: One alleging U. S. Air Forces have invaded Manchuria and dropped bombs, the other that the United States invaded Chinese territory when it sent the Seventh Fleet to patrol the Strait of Formosa.

Chief U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin labelled these charges "a trick" inspired by Russia to divert attention from the real aggressor in Korea.

"We must oppose most strongly any attempt to turn the matter into propaganda or to use it as an excuse to enter the Security Council by the back door," Austin said.

The vote on the Soviet proposal was 6 to 3, with two abstentions. Lining up with Russia were Britain, France, Norway, Yugoslavia and India. The United States, Nationalist China and Cuba voted against the proposal. Ecuador and Egypt abstained. Seven affirmative votes are required for council action.

Austin said the Council should go ahead immediately and approve a U. S. resolution calling for appointment of India and Sweden as a two-nation commission of inquiry on the Manchurian complaint. He said the Peiping regime would have its chance to appear before the commission and state its case.

The Council adjourned at 5:35 p. m. (EST) until 2 p. m. (EST) Tuesday. A closed meeting will be held at 10 a. m. on the Council's annual report to the General Assembly.

McCarran 'Reds' Bill Seen Victor Today

The Senate last night wound up debate on the McCarran omnibus Communist control bill and prepared for almost certain passage of the sweeping measure today.

Administration proponents of a "Red internment" substitute practically conceded defeat in advance but continued to whale away at the catch-all bill requiring Reds and "Front" organizations to register, and denying Communists Federal jobs and passports.

Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) termed the McCarran bill a "cream puff special" which will fail in its anti-Red objectives but "keep the courts busier than they have ever been."

Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) replied that the substitute plan to put Communists in "concentration camps" when Congress and the President proclaim a security emergency is "unconstitutional" and a "workable blueprint" for dictatorship.

Veto Notice Served

President Truman has served notice in advance that he will not sign the McCarran bill. Since the Senate seems sure to pass it anyway, and work out differences with the similar House-passed Wood bill in conference, speculation turned on whether the President would immediately return the measure or kill it by "pocket veto."

McCarran claimed the two-thirds majority required to override an immediate veto but conceded the bill would die "at least until November" if Congress recesses until after the election.

In that event, a number of important security measures the Administration has recommended, including safeguards against sabotage of airfields and other defense installations, may die with it unless Congress passes more limited legislation.

Both the McCarran bill and the "Red internment" substitute sponsored by Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.) contain the Administration's basic security recommendations. In the case of the McCarran bill, these are overshadowed by the sweeping additional anti-Red provisions. Mr. Truman has never said how he stood on the Kilgore measure.

Bill Likened to Spray Gun

Taking the floor yesterday for the Kilgore substitute, Senator Humphrey declared it "much tougher" on Reds than the McCarran bill. He said it would deliver "hammer blows against the Communists when hammer blows are needed."

"The McCarran bill uses the spray gun method," Humphrey told the Senate. "Just spray the entire American landscape and maybe you will hit somebody that should be hit."

McCarran and Senators Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), and Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.), co-authors of the registration features of the McCarran bill, took the floor in rebuttal. All three challenged the Constitutionality of the "Red internment" substitute, insisted their own bill would merely make Communists "accountable."

"The sheep would be divided from the goats," said Ferguson, "No longer can their be any dupes."

Senator Herbert H. Lehman (D., N. Y.) argued, however, that the McCarran bill would "mortgage the liberties of our people far into the unforseeable future." He said it is subject to "dangerous misuse," might be used to brand patriotic individuals and organizations as Communists.

Lehman told the Senate the Communists themselves fear the Kilgore substitute far more than the McCarran bill, and these fears are now reflected in the Communist organ, The Daily Worker.

He termed the Kilgore bill "not police state legislation, but National survival legislation."

No '1-Alarm Fire'

U. S. Repeats Errors of '38, Baruch Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Bernard Baruch today said that the United States is making the same mistakes it did in 1938 shortly before Hitler unleashed his Panzer divisions across Europe.

The elder statesman, writing in Look magazine, warned that the Korean war is "not a one-alarm fire." He said the Kremlin has challenged this country to choose between "guns or butter, discomfort or defeat."

"So far," Baruch said, "we are failing that challenge."

The man who has advised a half-dozen Presidents, urged this country to adopt the following points:

1. "Mobilize now, all out . . ." Place one central agency in charge to see that our defense-production matches Russia's. "If we lose, we lose forever," Baruch said.
2. Halt inflation now, by clamping price-wage-rent controls.
3. Eliminate profiteering by raising taxes. Put defense spending on a pay-as-you-go footing.
4. Rearm western Europe fast—"so we can reach our Allies before they can be overwhelmed."
5. Revitalize the National Security Council into "a genuine general staff for peace."
6. Enact universal military training or revamp selective service so that pools of trained men are quickly available.
7. State our peace terms to the Russian people, "drawing a line between Russia's legitimate aspirations and the aggressive aims of her leaders."

Larger Steel Capacity Goal

for dealing with the wool shortage.

The Economic Cooperation Administration, which has a share in the program of acquiring strategic materials, disclosed yesterday that it also is stepping up its buying. It announced it will double its purchases abroad of rubber, tungsten, lead, industrial diamonds, and other items for the defense stockpile.

It proposes to spend in the current fiscal year the equivalent of 138 million dollars in foreign currencies which are placed at its disposal by the Marshall Plan countries.

Snyder's meeting with the steel industry yesterday, it was indicated, dealt with the twin problems of production capacity and allocations to domestic fabricators. A similar meeting will be held today in the Commerce Department with top officials in the copper industry.

Steel officials made no comment on their meeting with the Commerce Secretary and Sawyer's own announcement was not particularly revealing. It did say, however, that although steel production is now seven million tons a year higher than at the peak of World War II, the Government was nevertheless not "overlooking the possibility of the need for even greater" capacity.

The industry has scheduled a capacity increase of six million tons above current levels. Some Government economists, however—notably the Council of Economic Advisers—insist that even this is not enough.

Present at the meeting was William Henry Harrison, New York telephone executive who was just sworn in as chairman of the National Production Authority, the Commerce Department's new agency to handle its share of the economic mobilization program.

The NPA will exercise the authority to control inventories, aid in plant expansion, bestow priorities for military contractors, and allocate scarce materials for defense production.

Its first orders may be issued later this week. They are expected to set up a general priority for military orders, and to require that businesses accumulate only "reasonable" inventories.

Polish Liner Sued For Claiming Plane

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—The Lambros seaplane base filed a suit for $6200 against the Polish liner Batory today for a Piper seaplane the ship picked up at sea and claimed as salvage.

The plane had been rented from the seaplane company, of Ridgefield Park, N. J., by William Newton, who flew it out to sea about 90 miles from New York. Both he and the plane were taken aboard the Batory. He is being held in lieu of $1000 bail on a charge of transporting a stolen plane in foreign commerce.

Researchers Say Cancer Is Not Inherited

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 11 (AP).—Two Utah researchers told the American Institute of Biological Sciences today that cancer probably is not inherited, but certain of its characteristics are.

Eldon J. Gardener of Utah State College and Charles M. Woolf of the University of Utah said: "No disease is inherited in the strict sense. Only hereditary factors or genes are inherited. 33 Dead in Troop Train Wreck

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

PILE-UP—Passenger cars of a Pennsylvania Railroad troop train carrying members of the Pennsylvania National Guard to Camp Atterbury, Ind., lie smashed almost beyond recognition near Coshocton, Ohio, yesterday. All the dead were guardsmen just inducted into Federal service. Speeding flyer rammed into the rear of the troop train stalled in a heavy fog. (Story on Page 1)

Short Lines Wage Boost Recommended

A presidential emergency board yesterday recommended a 40-hour week at the same pay now earned for 48 hours—plus a 7-cent hourly wage boost—for nonoperating employes of 16 short-line railroads.

The proposed settlement has no connection with the dispute which prompted President Truman to seize the Nation's railroads August 27.

The White House said the board's recommendations, subject to acceptance by both sides, involve railroads operating freight lines, terminal and switching roads and stockyards.

These carriers had opposed demands by 16 labor unions asking for the same wage-hour pattern in effect among nonoperating employes on major United States railroads since 1949.

"In three cases," the announcement said, "the board found that carriers were so poverty-stricken that special treatment might be warranted."

In this category, it named the Meridian and Bigbee River Railway in Mississippi, the Huntington and Broad Top Mountain Railroad in Pennsylvania, and the Winona road in Indiana.

"The board also decided that stockyard companies that incidentally perform railroad services should not be treated as railway labor employers, but should adjust their wages to the practices of the stockyard industry generally," the White House said.

Involved were stockyards at Denver, Salt Lake City and Ogden, Utah.

Stranded Travelers Hire Plane With I. O. U.s

PARIS, Sept. 11 (AP).—Fifty-four American students and teachers stranded here for 11 days left for New York tonight aboard a chartered plane. Their return flight was paid on an I.O.U. basis.

They are part of a group of 240 which has been touring Europe for the past two months. They became stranded here when a student travel service ran into financial difficulty and couldn't find a plane to fly them home.

Senate Group Shelves Probe Of U. S. Judges

By The Associated Press

Reversing an earlier decision, the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday shelved a resolution proposing an investigation of the "competence, fitness and legal qualifications" of Federal judges.

The resolution was approved by the committee August 29 but had not been submitted to the Senate. Chairman McCarran (D., Nev.) said after a closed meeting of the committee yesterday that the resolution would be withheld. Instead, the committee agreed to set up a regular five-man subcommittee to keep tabs on Federal court operations.

Senator Kilgore (D., W.Va.) told a reporter the decision to withhold the resolution was made because of fears it might be construed as an attempt by the committee to "dominate" Federal judges.

Its earlier approval by the committee followed introduction by Senator Langer (R., N. D.) of a resolution calling for a Senate-House investigation. Langer said he wanted to know whether any Federal judges were Communists or Communist sympathizers or were unfit because of age or other factors to serve on the bench.

He offered his resolution after a United States Court of Appeals in San Francisco had ordered Harry Bridges, West Coast longshoremen's leader, released on bail.

August Crops Overcome Some Bad Weather To Maintain High Wartime Output Prospects

By Ovid A. Martin
Associated Press Reporter

The Nation's crops overcame effects of some unfavorable weather during August to maintain production prospects well in line with the average of World War II.

In a progress report, the Agriculture Department said yesterday the harvest volume should be higher than in 5 of the last 8 years and in any year prior to 1946. It forecast the volume at 125 percent of the 1923-32 average.

August weather, on the whole, was less favorable than usual for growing crops and farm operations. Average temperatures were below normal in many sections of the important midwestern corn belt. Like-wise, rainfall was too heavy in some areas.

Nevertheless, production estimates for many crops were raised above August 1 levels in the department report.

Corn, the major grain and the principal feed for meat and dairy animals, remained virtually unchanged at a bumper level despite the fact the weather was cooler than it should have been for best possible development of the crop.

The department said the cool weather, with its consistent delaying effects on growth, raised the possibility that considerable corn might not mature fully before the frosts. Frost damage would reduce feeding value of the grain.

The wheat total climbed above the billion-bushel mark to 1,012,000,000 bushels. This was an increase of about 15,000,000 bushels over the Aug. 1 estimate.

Other crops for which production prospects improved during August include oats, barley, flaxseed, sorghum grain, hay, soybeans, potatoes, sweet potatoes, tobacco, sugar beets, hops, apples, pears and grapes.

Soybean and sugar beet production is now indicated at a record level and that of sorghum grain practically equals the record.

Much larger than acreage indicated crops of corn, oats, rice, hay, potatoes, tobacco, sugar cane, hops, apples, cherries and cranberries helped to swell the harvest total.

Only cotton, peanuts, peach, apricots, pecans, rye, and dry peas appear smaller than average.

Current prospects indicate production of feed grains will provide amply for the Nation's expanding livestock industry.

Fruit production was forecast at 14 percent less than last year and 7 percent below average.

Milk production in August was largest for the month since 1946. August egg production set an August record.

Ramsey Prediction Report Is Corrected

NYHT News Service

In a Washington story from the New York Herald Tribune News Service published in Sunday's Washington Post it was stated that Admiral Dewitt Clinton Ramsey (retired), president of the Aircraft Industries Association, had predicted that military aircraft production in the United States during the present fiscal year "will exceed 10,000 planes by a considerable margin."

Admiral Ramsey reports that in his statement he said that "the total to be ordered will exceed 10,000 planes by a considerable margin," and adds that many of the planes ordered will not be delivered for two years or more.

Acheson Supported At Capitol Meeting

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Members of the congressional foreign relations committees meeting in joint session yesterday bade Secretary of State Dean Acheson a bipartisan Godspeed to three-power talks opening in New York today.

Acheson detailed to the House-Senate group Administration plans for rebuilding the defenses of Western Europe by "substantial increases" in United States forces there providing our defense efforts are matched by Western allies.

A statement issued by the heads of the two legislative committees pledged "full support for the general line the Secretary will follow" both in conferences with the British and French foreign ministers and his later meeting with the North Atlantic council.

What amounted to a vote o confidence was handed Acheson by Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex. of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.) of the companion House group after the Secretary developed in closed session the United States "line" in Western Europe and Asia.

Only General Subjects Given

But the Connally-Kee statement mentioned only the general subjects covered, stressing "the difficulties which can be caused by full publication of positions which will be presented for discussion and negotiation."

On only one course, United States opposition to seating Communist China in the U. N. Security Council was Acheson's position formally disclosed, and this wasn't news.

"He indicated that our policy would be to continue to support the present representation of (Nationalist) China in the United Nations," the joint statement said.

The statement said Acheson discussed "several problems involving the future of Germany, including the contribution of Germany to the joint defense effort," but legislators present said no formal blueprint for arming Western Germany was presented to the group.

The indorsement of Acheson's proposed course in the New York foreign ministers' talks followed what Connally described as "a lively exchange of views" with the committee.

Connally and Kee said the committees assured him he took to New York "the hopes of the Congress that the next few weeks would result in a speed-up of practical responses of the free world to the Soviet challenge."

They said Acheson discussed several United Nations questions with the congressional group, including: "How the United Nations can be used to halt aggression in the event of further cases such as the invasion of the Republic of Korea."

In his two hours before the congressional group, Acheson reviewed Western Europe economic, political and military problems and "elaborated" on the President's announced plans for strengthening Western defenses.

Briefs Group on Problems

Then he briefed the committee on the current status of major Far East problems, from Korea and Formosa to Indo-China and Southeast Asia in general.

His promise to continue to oppose seating Communist China in the United Nations helped produce the first bi-partisan pat on the back Acheson has received in his recent relations with Congress.

But it did not entirely quiet GOP critics of Administration policies in the Far East. Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), who was not present at the meeting, said it isn't enough for the United States to "merely vote against" seating the China Reds, that the United States should "actively solicit" the votes of other U. N. members.

One of the legislators present described Acheson's proposed course as "strong, firm and positive." He said the secrecy cloak clamped on his testimony was due to the fact that he will be "feeling his way" in the New York negotiations "and doesn't want to show his full hand now."

Senator Connally meanwhile modified a weekend statement indicating opposition to increasing U. S. troop commitments to western Europe now.

Connally said in his revised statement that "at the moment I am more concerned in getting additional troops to Korea." He added, however, that when Atlantic pact allies "build up their forces of resistance, we shall do our part, and do it promptly."

Besides Connally and Kee, attending the conference with Acheson were Senators Walter F. George (D., Ga.), J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) and Representatives Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.), Laurie C. Battle (D., Ala.), George A. Smathers (D., Ga.), A. S. J. Carnahan (D., Mo.), Omar Burleson (D., Tex.) and Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.).

Franco Warning

Cain Urges U. S. General For Europe

By the United Press

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) said yesterday that he found in Europe an urgent need to appoint an American general to head the western world's defense effort.

Otherwise, he said, Europe's defense will remain made "out of paper."

He read the Senate a voluminous report on his observations in Western Europe, made as a Senator and a Reserve Army colonel assigned special functions by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson.

He said he understands Russia now has 33 divisions—all but four armored or mechanized—in eastern Germany. But he found "no evidence" the Soviets are poised for immediate action.

Reporting that it will take about two years before Western Europe can be defended against a major assault, he said that perhaps the most pressing need is for appointment of an American over-all commander.

"The commander could, with one stroke of a pen, eliminate half of the duplicating and overlapping committees which are presently building a defense structure out of paper, rather than from men and weapons," Cain said.

He urged immediate agreement on an over-all defense establishment defining (A) the military strength required to defend western Europe and (B) the detailed contributions each nation would make.

He said that Greece, Turkey and Spain—"in the face of obvious political and military considerations"—should be given important roles in the western security system and a priority in assistance. Without Spain Cain said, "the whole enterprise or the house of cards we shall have constructed will probably collapse and impose disaster on the western world."

Cain made public a warning from Generalissimo Francisco Franco that the United States had better act "soon" if it wants to work out a "mutually beneficient agreement" with Spain.

Cain said Franco gave him the following "message" for delivery to the American people:

"Should trouble come before an agreement has been reached, it will be a little late to talk of friendship and a little futile to discuss new weapons."

By "trouble," Franco apparently referred to a Russian attack on western Europe.

Cain said he relayed his views (and presumably Franco's message as well) to Secretary of State Acheson last Saturday. Acheson, he said, asked what reaction Cain had received to his ideas from persons in Britain and France.

"I told him that such reactions were strongly in opposition to doing any business, except commercial business, with Spain," Cain said.

Allied Forces 'Retreat' in War Games

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Sept. 11 (U.P.). — Western occupation forces in Germany "retreated" today in the face of a simulated surprise attack of vastly superior invaders from the East. The troops were engaged in fall maneuvers.

The Western forces, mostly American troops, fell back in what was called "an orderly withdrawal," before green-clad aggressors who stabbed with tanks, planes and motorized infantry.

The assault and the retreat were part of "Exercise Rainbow," annual fall war game of the Allied armies in Germany, which began today under the watchful eyes of Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of United States field forces.

The "war games" were designed to test Allied ability to fall back and hold if Communist forces should strike here as they did in Korea. The defending forces were heavily outnumbered, as they would be if an attack from the East occurred before next spring.

Later in the week a "paper army" of reinforcements will be thrown into the fray in the hope the invaders can be repulsed. Upwards of 100,000 GIs in full combat gear firing "blank" ammunition took part in the mock battles.

Start of the maneuvers coincided with a report in a Berlin newspaper that a Russian-trained "army" general staff has been established to direct the East German "people's police."

'Splash Bombs' Help Check Ontario Fire

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ontario, Sept. 11 (AP). — Specially built "splash bombs" dropped from an airplane proved "quite effective" in their first test to curb an Ontario forst fire yesterday.

Tom Woodside, government forestry specialist, said the "bombing" of a small fire 120 miles northeast of Sault Ste. Marie with water-filled bags was not expected to extinguish the fire, but merely to hold it in check until ground crews got there. "The ground crews are there now," Woodside said.

3200 More Britons Set For Korea

LONDON, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Clement Attlee is expected to announce to the House of Commons Tuesday that a British brigade of around 3200 men is now ready to sail to Korea from England.

The brigade is expected to include three battalions of infantry, plus arttillery, anti-aircraft, signal corps, engineer, service and medical units. This first force from the home islands is expected to sail directly to Korea, a trip of about a month, starting probably this week.

The 1500 Britons now fighting in Korea went there from Hong Kong.

It was also possible the Prime Minister will disclose plans for sending more British troops to Germany, in line with President Truman's announcement American reinforcements are destined for Western Europe.

Attlee will lead off the three-day debate on the state of Britain's defenses before a special session of Parliament, after which the Government will ask for a vote of confidence. Winston Churchill will follow Attlee. He has announced his Conservatives will not try to unseat the Labor Government on the confidence motion.

But the debate is certain to produce acid criticism of the Labor Government's defense program—particularly on the issue of shipping vital equipment and war potential to Russia and on accusations of delay and hesitation in getting British fighting men to the Korean front.

Churchill has denounced Attlee's government for allowing machine tools, used in the building and repair of tanks, to be sent to Russia under trade pact.

During the three-day session the Government will seek to pass bills extending the length of draftee military service from 18 months to two years and increasing the pay of all ranks in the armed forces. Neither is expected to encounter much opposition.

India Provinces Report Half Million Starving

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 11 (AP). Press dispatches from Madras today said a half-million persons were struggling against starvation in Travancore and Cochin provinces in Madras states because they had been without government-supplied rations for the past two weeks.

Officials said 10,000 tons of rice are being shipped to Travancore and Cochin provinces this month.

is not asking its European partners to do what it is not itself willing to do.

But he will state one big condition. This is that the other North Atlantic Treaty partners do more toward the common defense than they had expected to do.

Will Be Firm, Clear

Those who know Acheson are sure he will be firm and clear in stating the condition, without ever seeming to dictate to his European friends. His attitude is that it will require complete teamwork to guard the West against a possible Soviet attack, and that nothing short of shared sacrifices can do the job.

The French already have talked of supplying 20 divisions if they could get help in arming them and paying for them. The British already have lengthened their term of conscription to two years and have agreed to heavy increases in their defense spending, but had not planned to station additional ground forces on the Continent.

The conditional promise of "substantial" American forces—probably between 5 and 10 divisions—will spur the other treaty partners to think again, to plan again, and to find new ways of marshaling the 50 divisions regarded as the minimum for checking a possible invasion.

Hasn't Yet Caught Up

Schuman indicated on his arrival he was still thinking in terms of German internal security rather than the external defense of all Western Germany as a part of the Western World.

"Our position," he said, "is to give Germany means for internal security to maintain order and to combat a fifth column. As for the external security of Germany, that is a matter for the occupation powers to discuss.

"There is not sufficient means to arm Germany and the Western Allies at the present time. Of course, we must give priority to the Allies."

In this Schuman was stating the obvious — that western Germany could not start overnight to supply divisions or smaller units for a western European force. The force must be organized first, and the occupation statute must be revised to make such German participation possible.

It will be up to the Foreign Ministers of the three occupying powers to take the historic decisions necessary, then for the other Atlantic Treaty nations to agree to the next steps, and then to seek the approval and cooperation of the West German government.

Secretary Acheson expressed confidence today that the outcome of the week's meetings would be "constructive" and would help to build "a solid foundation to prevent war." In a formal statement, he said the European and North Atlantic Foreign Ministers would concentrate their "major attention" on European problems.

"With the approval of the President," he said, "I will make several concrete proposals for discussion by the other ministers, which I believe will advance the cause to which the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is dedicated."

Again, as if to reassure Asian and Latin American governments, he said there was "no question of a small group of powers making 'decisions' and communicating them to the representatives of other states." And, for foreign consumption, he said he felt sure "that the American people are united in the work we are carrying on to make the peace secure."

British-Aided Red Jet May Rival 'Fastest'

LONDON, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Aviation experts eyeing Britain's "fastest interceptor plane in the world" today said Russia may have developed one almost as fast from jet engines shipped to Moscow by the Labor Government.

The controversy over 50 jet engines supplied to Russia four years ago came to a head after Britain displayed a powerful twin-engined fighter driven by her newest jets.

The fighter was a standard RAF Meteor. The engines were the new Sapphires, billed here as the world's most potent jets—with a single Sapphire developing as much power as all four piston engines in a United States Superfortress. It was flown in public for the first time last week.

The engines sent to Russia were Rolls Royce Nene and Derwent type jets. The Sapphires were developed largely from information gained flying the Nene and Derwent engines.

"If I didn't know a thing about jets," one British expert said, "and someone gave me 50 to play with, I'd have a mighty fast plane in a very few years."

Russia, aided by German engineers known to be working on jet development, could have carried out similar experiments. Some experts estimated the British engines probably advanced Russia 10 years in development of jet aviation.

That would be quite a jump for a nation that flew her first jet over Berlin near the war's end. Reliable sources said the decision to send the engines to Russia, despite military objection, was approved on a very high Labor government level.

The Sapphire, experts estimate, could drive a plane at 1000 miles an hour if an airframe could be built to stand the stress. The Meteor approaches the speed of sound with only one of its two Sapphires turned on, sources said. It reaches 40,000 feet in under three minutes.

Rubber Export To Satellites Due for Study

LONDON, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—The question of British exports to Russia and her satellites will be raised during this week's parliamentary debate on defense and will be thrashed out at a commonwealth meeting on trade and economic affairs opening here next week.

Trade quarters said particular attention will be paid to the Soviet countries' purchases of rubber. There is no doubt, they said, that Russia is building up a stockpile of rubber.

Official statistics showed that more than 40,000 tons were sold directly to Russia during June and July this year and that Czechoslovakia has been buying more than 200 tons daily for the past month.

In addition there are reports of trans-shipments at Indian ports for delivery at Soviet Black Sea ports. Shipments through Hongkong destined for Tientsin were said to be increasing notably and trade quarters said that, as there were no rubber factories in or around Tientsin, the obvious inference was that the rubber found its way to Russia.

'Tax Ammunition' Economy Urged

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Roswell Magill, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, told the forty-third annual conference of the National Tax Association today that the United States is not confronted with any "immediate fiscal emergency" despite increased military expenditures caused by the Korean war.

Magill predicted that "much more tax revenue" will be needed later, and warned that the Government should not exhaust its "tax ammunition in this, the first skirmish."

The New York attorney urged that the Government begin immediately to trim Federal expenditures.

"We must think of a tax program which will produce the revenue we need and yet enable our productive machine to function at high speed for many years to come," he said.

Atomic Scientists View Defense Needs

America's "only long-term chance" in the world atomic contest "lies in matching the Soviet capacity to absorb atomic attack "without crippling damage."

That statement came yesterday in a special issue of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, devoted entirely to the civil-defense problem.

In a lead article, by Editor Eugene Rabinowitch, the Bulletin also said that "it is only realistic tc expect that five atomic bombs exploded over five major American metropolitan centers will produce more industrial damage than would be caused by 20 bombs dropped on Soviet cities and will cause a more dangerous stampede out of the other big cities."

Since the only power in the world the Soviet leaders fear, the article said, is "the power of American production," the heart of this country's civil defense problem is "not how to save the greatest number of lives but how to prevent the heartbeat of the Nation from stopping."

Emphasis on Production

An emphasis on "maintenance of productivity, rather than on reduction of casualties" should, in turn, help to make an attack less likely, the editor argued, because the necessary dispersal program would make American cities less inviting targets.

The real question the Soviet leaders will ask themselves, Rabinowitch wrote, "is whether such an attack can decisively disorganize American production, disrupt transportation and destroy the political and economic cohesion of the country."

Hence no mere program of pails of sands, shovels, air raid wardens and Geiger counters is sufficient, the Bulletin said. Much more will be needed than a plan to deal with casualties after the bombs fall.

Suburban Area Role

The article said "suburban areas of metropolitan centers will have to bear the brunt of providing emergency hospitals, fire fighters and mobile first-aid units to be sent into the target area; of temporarily feeding and housing thousands, if not millions, of refugees and of housing, permanently those whose places of work in the city have remained usable, but whose homes have been destroyed."

The bulletin, available to civil defense workers and the public for $1 from Chicago headquarters, included a dozen articles on various aspects of the problem.

Building Criticized

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, scientist and author of "Must We Hide?", criticized the idea of a $290,000 appropriation for Washington's civil defense while millions are being spent to put up new buildings in the city, making it more of a target than ever. He was generally critical of NSRB's slow progress in producing a master defense plan.

Dr. Irving L. Janis, a Yale psychology professor, declared that if a target city is unprotected, "the vast majority" of its population will undergo severe emotional shock in a bombing. He called for an auxiliary underground public address system to be used after a bombing with a "calm, familiar, authoritative voice" of a radio announcer directing the public.

'Things Tough'

D. C. Soldier Tells Family Of Injury

Pfc. Albert J. Johnson, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, 315 D st. se., was listed as a casualty in the ninety-second Korean Area casualty report yesterday.

Pfc. Johnson

Johnson, a graduate of Randall Junior High School here, joined the Army December 30, 1948. He trained at Fort Dix, N. J., and in California before being sent to Japan with the Twenty fourth Infantry Division.

He went to Korea late in June and said in his most recent letter home that he had injured his hand.

"It is very tough over here," he wrote. "I've seen lots of my buddies killed and wounded."

Born in Oxon Hill, Md., Johnson moved to the District at the age of four. He worked as a porter for Peoples Drug Store, 7th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se., from 1946 till he joined the Army.

Corpl. Lewis J. Hose, 28, son of Mrs. Emma L. Hose, 319 Ridge ave., Hagerstown, Md., was wounded in action in Korea September 2, the Department of Defense has announced.

function" from the air raid wardens of the last war.

Fondahl said he thought the warden primarily would serve as the contact between defense headquarters and the public.

The commissioners today also will discuss another phase of defense planning: use of sirens on emergency vehicles to sound air raid alerts.

The plan already has been adopted in New York. Prior to today's official discussions, none of the commissioners has indicated how he felt about the feasibility of the plan.

First intimation of the police reserve corps plan came when a telettype message was sent out from Police Headquarters yesterday telling precinct captains orders would be forthcoming shortly on use of forms already prepared for the reserve recruitment.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, Superintendent of Metropolitan Police, called issuance of the teletype a "mistake" and said he had not discussed the corps with Commissioner John Russell Young.

But Inspector Fondahl, who spent the day inspecting office quarters and conferring with District heads, admitted that he had discussed the formation of the police reserve corps. He pointed out that the corps, if organized, would have police powers only in an emergency.

It was also authoritatively learned that the Commissioners will be asked to authorize the corps when they meet today.

First D. C. Medical Reserves, Two Guard Units Activated

Washington's first medical reserve unit to be called up and two more units of the D. C. National Guard went on active duty yesterday.

The 382d Evacuation Hospital, including more than 28 nurses, 20 doctors, two dentists and a chaplain, reported to Fort Myer. This 400-bed hospital unit, under the command of Col. Raymond Maret, 4705 Hunt ave., Chevy Chase, Md., is expected to leave for the West Coast within 10 days.

Meanwhile, the District National Guard's 171st Military Police Battalion and the Headquarters and Headquarters Battery of the 260th Anti-aircraft Artillery Group reported at 8 a. m. at the National Guard Armory.

Men from these units, the fourth and fifth to be called to active duty from the District Guard, will be permitted to spend their nights at home until they leave sometime before the end of the month.

On the Selective Service front yesterday officials announced that, starting Friday, men inducted from Washington and Maryland at the Arlington Farms recruiting station will be sent to Fort George G. Meade, Md., instead of to Fort Jackson, S. C. Draftees from Virginia will continue to be sent to Fort Jackson.

The first group of Washington inductees to go to Fort Meade will be those sworn in September 20, they said.

The Marine Corps enlisted two men as recruits yesterday and sent them to Parris Island for "boot" training. The Army enlisted 19 men and the Air Force five. Under a new policy, the Navy does not release the number of men enlisted or applications received.

5 Bolivian Rightists Arrested in 'Revolt'

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Sept. 11 (U.P.)—Police arrested five extreme rightist political leaders today on charges of promoting a recent "student revolt."

One federal policeman was killed and one wounded in the weekend revival of student disorders. Four students were wounded in a Friday night gun battle with police. About 100 armed students have been barricaded in the university since Saturday.

New Type-Setter Doubles Output Of Old Machine

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 (U.P.)—Mergenthaler Linotype Co. put on exhibit today a new machine with twice the speed of its standard model, and with improvements to facilitate teletypesetting.

The new machine, known as the "Blue Streak Comet," was displayed at the sixth educational Graphic Arts Exposition at the International Amphitheater.

Vice President Harry Thorpe said the machine can set 12 lines or 530 characters per minute, compared with the standard model which can set only six lines or 265 characters a minute. He said the machine can be operated with teletypesetter tape, or it can be slowed down for manual operation.

Congress May Get Plans for Defense Soon

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporters

The Government's master civil defense plan is now expected to go to Congress before the legislators take off for the coming campaign.

The National Securities Resources Board, it was learned yesterday, is rushing to put the plan in the hands of Senators and Congressmen within two weeks.

But NSRB currently doesn't expect Congress will be asked until later—perhaps after election day, if Congress then returns to Washington—to act on the plan. Congress will be called on to set up a new civil defense office and to vote several hundred millions to pay part of the cost of readying American cities against a possible atomic attack.

Today the Senate Appropriations Committee will begin voting on the supplemental appropriation bill which contains two important civil defense items, both supported by NSRB as part of the overall plan.

One for D. C. Set-up

One is the appropriation for Washington's municipal civil defense set-up, slashed by the House from the $290,000 asked by the District Commissioners to only a token $30,000. Although this money must be voted by Congress, since it acts as the District's council, the funds to help protect the District would come almost entirely from local taxpayers.

The other is the $139,800,000 asked by President Truman to begin a partial dispersal of the Government's key agencies into four sites in nearby Maryland and Virginia. The idea is to sufficiently scatter the Federal Government's key agencies so that all could not be knocked out by a single bomb.

you can defend yourself against the atom bomb

Yes, there is a defense. Science Reporter William L. Laurence outlined it in a series of nontechnical articles printed recently in The New York Times. Laurence, twice a Pulitzer Prize winner, is the man whose exclusive stories gave the world the first news of the atom bomb. His articles on atomic defense are reprinted in a convenient 48-page booklet, available at cost of only 10c each. *Send coin or stamps to: Department AT-6, The New York Times, Times Square 18, N. Yanks Above Taegu Open Counterattack made up of Americans and South Koreans—reported it had met an estimated two battalions of Reds in its westward push of 2½ miles.

[The task force reported: 370 Reds killed, 188 wounded, 1 prisoner taken and 73 South Korean prisoners liberated.

[American casualties have been extraordinarily light, the dispatch said.

[It also reported the North Koreans were well dug in on the bare and rocky terrain. Units of the task force expected a bitter fight for the height.—Editor's Note.]

Reds Also Hold Angang

U. N. forces hold positions within one mile south of the port city of Pohang. Angang, also held by the Reds, is nine miles west and slightly south of Pohang.

The only positional change of consequence reported this morning along the battle perimeter was at the south end where the United States Twenty-fifth Division is defending positions 35 miles west of Pusan.

Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton reported that the Americans early today recaptured a ridge from numerically superior Communists four miles south of the confluence of the Nam and Naktong Rivers.

The ridge, which commands one of the best crossing points along the Nam, was taken by the Reds last night after they had stormed it three times.

Along the west wall of the defense perimeter, Allied aircraft cut up a Communist regiment of about 3000 men who made a futile assault on the United States Second Division east of the Naktong River near Changnyong.

In the far south, American Twenty-fifth Division troops with strong air support beat off a number of small-scale Red thrusts, holding their positions intact.

Many Enemy Guns Blasted

At nightfall Monday, an Eighth Army spokesman reported that on the United States First Cavalry Division front north of Taegu "a great number" of enemy guns had been blasted by artillery and planes.

The spokesman said the lines had been maintained, but, "considerable action" was still expected.

AP Correspondent Jack MacBeth reported that a large number of Reds clustered under the hump of a hill some 7 miles north of Taegu had taken a heavy pasting, but Communist artillery refused to be silenced.

This could mean the North Koreans, who number 40,000 men in the Taegu area, still were preparing to hit in force from the north and northwest.

A United States Eighth Army headquarters release referred to Communist pressure against the First Cavalry as "heavy." Foot troopers guarding the ridges and flatlands leading to Taegu at the southern edge of the Kunwha "bowling alley" drove forward 1000 yards during the day. Fierce Red resistance wiped out all but 400 yards of that gain.

Attack in Waegwan Area

The Reds also tried another attack from the Waegwan area, 12 miles northwest of Taegu, advancing 1000 yards before they were contained.

Throughout Monday Allied planes strafed, rocketed and bombed Red concentrations ringing Taegu on three sides. Carrier-based Marine Corsairs took over the aerial harassing Monday night in a raid against Tabu, Communist supply center a dozen air miles north of Taegu. Phosphorous shells fired by United States artillery marked the target area for the Corsairs.

The death, somewhere at the front, of Gen. Kang Konn, 32-year-old Chief of Staff of the North Korean army, may have upset the Red offensive along the whole front. The Red radio at Pyongyang announced that Kang, a veteran guerilla fighter, had been killed September 8, gave no details.

While the effect of Kang's death could not be estimated immediately, it did seem certain that the high tide of the Communist push from the northeast was receding.

On the far eastern extreme of the front lines, Americans and South Koreans hold high ground about 1 mile south of Pohang. The line curves back southward along the Kyongju-to-Pohang road.

Are South of Angang Is Held

Eight miles southwest of Pohang other allied forces are dug in a horseshoe arc about one mile and one quarter south of Red-held Angang.

Between the two Allied forces south of Pohang and south of Angang about 3000 North Korean troops are in a small pocket.

The North Koreans in their lightning thrust last week also scored deep penetrations in Allied lines both east and west of the Kyongju-Angang rd.

The Americans and South Koreans now have surged back to secure both flanks of these penetrations.

The over-all improvement on this front led Maj. Gen. John H. Church, commanding the Twenty-fourth Division, to say: "We are not threatened by anything we cannot handle."

Improvement also was noted in the over-all situation on the west front, manned by Second Division troops along the Naktong River.

Fliers Cut Up Red Regiment

West of Changnyong, 23 miles southwest of Taegu, Allied aircraft cut up a Communist regiment of about 3000 men. The Reds were hit by United States fighter-bombers as they recoiled from a futile attack on the Second Division.

Reconnaissance planes said the battlefield was littered with an estimated 1000 dead and more than 1500 wounded.

South Korean Marines continued their island hopping enterprises behind Red lines on the southern and western corners of the jagged Korean shoreline.

Twenty islands have been occupied by the Republican commando-type troops in what is expected to contribute later to amphibious efforts when the United Nations counter offensive begins.

New Red Drive Expected

Associated Press Map

ACTION IN KOREA—In the east-coast sector (A), United Nations forces have reported gains and the defenses of vital Yongchon have been secured. In the Taegu area (B), a two-day artillery duel continued, with a fresh Communist attack expected momentarily. West of Changnyong (C), Yanks repulsed an enemy attack in the Naktong River bulge, and in the south (D), United States troops clung to hill positions three miles south of the junction of the Nam and the Naktong Rivers

Eight Antiaircraft Batteries To Ring D. C. in Defense Game

A ring of eight antiaircraft batteries and 10 radar posts began forming around Washington last night in the opening stages of a "dry-run" defense against air bombardment.

Called "Operation Metro," the exercise problem is this:

Defend a metropolitan area—such as Washington—from air attack; assume a hostile force has captured the Carribean and is using islands there as bases for bombers.

Picked to defend the attack is the Thirty-Fifth Anti-Aircraft Artillery brigade of Fort Meade which began digging in last night in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

In Washington itself there will be no big guns, but a number of visual observation posts. In and out the District there will be 16 of these. Washingtonians will see some of the 2000 personnel involved in Metro, the Army said.

Headquarters for Metro for the 14 days of its existence—unttil September 23—will be Ft. Lesley J. McNair.

But Washingtonians will not be too aware of the day and night bombing runs on the city.

Only one plane generally will be the "aggressor's" armada—three at most. They'll approach the city at altitudes from 1500 to 30,000 feet.

They'll drop no bombs; no antiaircraft shells will be fired at them. But to test the Thirty-fifth Anti-Aircraft Brigade's preparedness, the "attack" will come as a surprise.

In preparation for Metro, the units of the Thirty-fifth have undergone a week's intensive training at Ft. Meade. Their departure times last night and early today were designed to prevent traffic tieups.

What is learned from Metro will be used, the Army said, "in the planning and preparation for defense of other key industrial and population centers."

Other "Metro's" will be established around the following military establishments and areas: Ft. Devans, Mass.; Ft. Benning, Ga.; Camp Carson, Colo.; Yakima, Wash.; Ft. Hood, Tex.; Pine Camp, N. Y., and Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Parliament Duel Expected Today on Attlee's Program

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Parliament breaks its summer vacation Tuesday to meet in emergency session for a three-day debate on the government's defense plans and to extend the period of conscription for the armed forces from 18 months to two years.

The debate will be opened by Prime Minister Clement Attlee, who, in turn, will be followed by Conservative Leader Winston Churchill. It is expected to develop into a sharp political duel but end in an anticlimax because Churchill has publicly pledged his party to support the government.

Attlee is expected to make several important announcements affecting British policy, particularly concerning the export of machine tools to Russia and eastern Europe.

Although Churchill is committed to support the government, his pledge does not prevent him from criticizing Attlee's overall handling of the nation's defenses. The debate is expected to extend beyond the field of defense into foreign policy.

Junk Old Defense Plan, Virginia Told

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., Sept 11 (AP).—Virginia's municipal officials were advised today to junk their World War II civilian defense setups in planning defenses against atomic bomb attacks.

"You cannot follow the pattern used in the last war," Brig. Gen. Clyde Doughtery, Detroit's director of civil defense, told the League of Virginia Municipalities in annual convention at the Cavalier Hotel.

In that war civil defense was planned to take care of a series of incidents; in the event of atomic attack there would be only one incident, Doughtery said.

"You must train thousands of persons to handle explosives, as you must figure on fighting fires with fire breaks rather than with water," he said. "The first aid training program will be enormous — every citizen must be trained in first aid."

Dougherty said each target city should expect three atomic bombs to be dropped on it. Detroit expects at least 100,000 casualties and total property destruction over an area of one mile in diameter, he reported.

Dougherty urged each city to organize its civil defense establishment "to the limit of its ability."

Brig. Gen. Homer L. Sanders, vice commander of the U. S. Air Force Tactical Air Command, speaking on "National Security and the Air Arm," told the meeting of mayors, city manager, city counselmen and other municipal officials that "the American boy has no peer in this world when it comes to handling a fighting aircraft."

He said much credit for this "goes to the municipalities which reared them in the American tradition of complete mechanization, coupled with a bit of daring and above all, a good dose of patriotism and a deep desire to win."

House Sends 2 District Bills to White House

The House yesterday passed and sent to the White House two minor District measures.

One—an engineers' registration bill—establishes a board of engineers to set regulations and give examinations to persons seeking to practice engineering here.

The other bill authorizes removal of bodies from place of death on certificates of qualified physicians. Under existing law, bodies may be removed only on orders of the attending physician.

Negro Units Record Studied For Service With White Troops

ON THE MASAN FRONT, Sept. 11.—The Army is checking into the combat performance of the Twenty-foruth Infantry Regiment, oldest Negro fighting unit in the American Army.

It is generally believed that the survey will result in a decision on integration of both Negro and white troops in the regiment.

Privately it is conceded the inspection was touched off because the North Korean breakthrough September 1 on the Twenty-fifth Division front was made through the Twenty-fourth Regiment.

This breakthrough followed the see-saw struggle for "Battle Mountain" 2 miles west of Haman.

The regiment's new commander, Lieut. Col. John T. Corley, Brooklyn's famous "Fighting Irishman" of World War II, made his feelings known today with a general order to all his troops shortly after an Eighth Army inspector visited to check into the Twenty-fourth combat record.

Corley said: "To the fighting Twenty-fourth U. S. Infantry: In 60 days of continuous combat you have withstood a 'roughness of battle' which I had not seen in five campaigns in Africa, Sicily and Europe with the First Infantry Division.

"Other units have been unable to accomplish what depleted companies of the fighting Twenty-fourth have done."

After the Negro infantrymen lost Battle Mountain last week, a full white battalion regained the position but was unable to hold it. It now is in North Korean hands.

Negro Troops Praised by Truman

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (AP).—Truman and Secretary of Labor Tobin today praised Negro troops in Korea, and Tobin said their loyalty and valor prove that Negroes have resisted the "subversive allurements" of Communist propaganda.

Military Will Curtail Use of Civilian Planes

Use of civilian airlines on the Military Air Transport Service's Pacific airlift will be curtailed 10 percent September 20, Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, MATS commander, announced yesterday.

Meeting with representatives of the 17 civilian scheduled and nonscheduled lines taking part in the Korean lift, Kuter told them more military transport planes and crews becoming available will permit release of the civilian forces.

The lines affected by the September 20 cut are Pan American, Northwest, United, Seaboard and Western, Transocean and California Eastern.

Greenbelt Seen as Bomb Haven

In the event of a direct atomic bomb hit upon Washington, Greenbelt, Md., should be prepared to serve as an evacuation center, the Greenbelt City Council was told in a report on civil defense last night.

"In the unlikely event that Greenbelt itself suffered heavy damage from a missile directed at another target, the facilities of the Beltsville Research Center are adequate for taking care of evacuees from Greenbelt," the report stated.

The report was prepared and submitted by a three-man civil defense advisory committee. Members include Maj. Lyman Woodman, USAF; Lieut. Burke Horton, USNR., and Lieut. Col. Al C. Long, AUS.

It amplified a report submitted to the council Friday by Police Chief George Panagoulis as chief of public safety, praised his work as "very good," and said it remains to be implemented with such "changes and additions" the council may approve.

How To Help Your "Scratching" Dog

If you own and are fond of a dog that is continually scratching, digging, rubbing, and biting himself until his skin is raw and sore, don't just feel sorry for him. The dog can't help himself. But you may. He may be clean and flea free and just suffering from an intense itching irritation that has centered in the nerve endings of his skin. Do as thousands of pleased dog owners are doing.

At any good drug store, pet or sport shop, get a 30c package of Rex Hunters Dog Powders, and give them once a week. Note the quick improvement. One owner writes: "My female setter on Sept. 29th did not have a handful of hair on her body—all scratched and bitten off. I gave her the powders as directed. By Nov. 10th she was all haired out." Learn what they will do for your dog. Make a 30c test. (Economy size box only $1.00). Important. Continued diarrhea—rectal itching. When your dog shows such symptoms, suspect Worms. Rex Hunters Dependable Worm Capsules give immediate results.

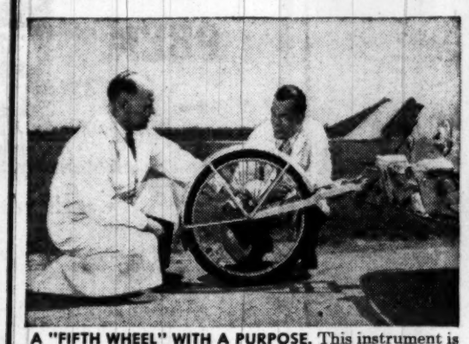
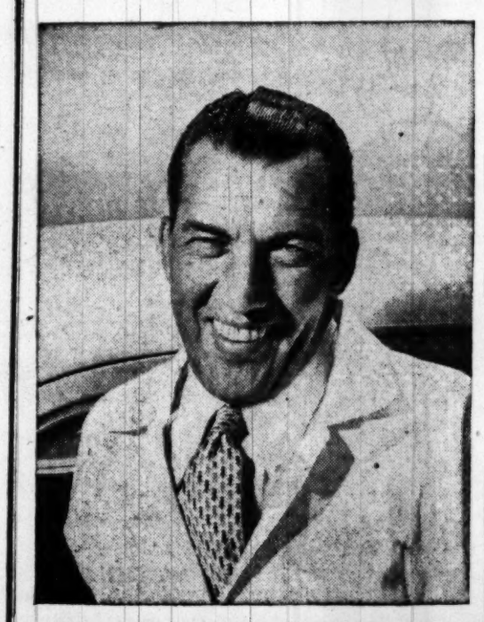
ED GETS THE COLD TREATMENT in Ford's 55° below zero "icebox"—part of a vast car-torturing system of man-made blizzards, howling 80 mph winds, and searing sandstorms. In one hour, a lifetime of the worst driving conditions can be duplicated. Here, carburetors, ignition and ventilating systems get a thorough check.



A "FIFTH WHEEL" WITH A PURPOSE. This instrument is used to get superaccurate measurements of acceleration and the distances required to bring a car to a stop at different speeds. Al Esper, Chief Test Driver, tells Ed that it is only one of many ingenious precision gages used to check the performance of all Ford products.



FUN'S FUN BUT this Water Bath test is deadly serious. It was designed to match the biggest puddle the average motorist is ever apt to meet. By driving cars through it at various speeds, engineers can determine how well the car's ignition is protected to prevent stalling and how well the under-body is waterproofed. Other tests include rough cobblestone and Belgian block roads; high-speed runs through mud, dust, and sand; wrenching "body twists"—all designed to prove the car's structural soundness. Such day-to-day testing of cars picked at random off the production lines insures the consistently high quality and reliability of all Fords, Lincolns and Mercurys.

WHAT'S GOING ON AT FORD . . .

ED SULLIVAN TURNS TEST DRIVER FOR A DAY

Television star sees how Fords, Lincolns, and Mercurys, are proved at the famous Ford Test Track

THERE'S an old saying among newspapermen that, "Once a reporter, always a reporter!" And television star Ed Sullivan—removed from his "cub" reporting days by 30 years, 10 pounds, and several tax brackets—is no exception.

The genial host of Lincoln-Mercury's hit video show, "Toast of the Town," took a day off from show business to do a "show me" reporting job at the famous Ford Test Track in Dearborn, Michigan.

Reporter Sullivan, who drives a Mercury himself, took a 1950 model at random from the assembly line, and in one day subjected it to the wear, tear, and torture of thousands of miles of ordinary driving.

He bounced his car over wicked stretches of cobblestones and Belgian blocks; plowed it through water baths and mud; climbed almost impossible grades in reverse. He sweated out man-made gales and sandstorms; shivered through laboratory blizzards and the 55° below zero temperature of Ford's amazing Cold Room. He did everything to his car that Ford's regular test drivers do.

And every minute, every mile, was a revelation in the thorough methods by which Ford insures the quality and value of all Ford products. Not only Ford products of today, but those of tomorrow as well. For on these same proving grounds, and in these same testing laboratories, Ford's idea men, designers, and engineers are watching their "drawing board dreams" evolve into the Lincolns, Mercurys, and Fords in your future.

Like many thousands of visitors who have watched with fascination the activity at this famous Test Track, Reporter Sullivan "got the idea"—the "Ford Idea"—which is to assure the value that you, the buyer, get in every Ford product, and to produce better cars at prices that more people can afford.

ED "OPENS HER UP," whizzes around Ford's 2.6-mile track at a steady 90 mph. On this track 65 test drivers, working in relays, run cars day and night, week in and week out. Millions of miles are piled up. The cars are then taken apart and each of the 10,000 parts is analyzed for wear. At Ford, not the slightest detail is overlooked.

MAN-MADE MOUNTAIN of crushed rock and concrete soars above Ford's Test Track. Ed tries out his Mercury's parking brake on the 30 per cent grade—counterpart of famed Filbert Street in San Francisco, steepest paved street in the country. Cars must be able to breeze up this taxing incline in forward speeds and in reverse from a standing start.

Citizen Groups Back Fight on Gas Rate

Despite Shortages

Area Builders To Continue Home Work

About 200 Washington Area builders last night indicated they planned to continue home building at full production despite a bleak report on availability of materials and cash.

All except three members of the Home Building Association of Metropolitan Washington said they did not plan to cut back production "as much as 25 per cent" in the next year. The reply came in response to a question posed by Daniel during a forum at the Burlington Hotel.

Then, despite the almost unanimous reply, Daniel warned, "I think you'll be forced to slow down, whether you like it or not."

Earlier, the members were told by William H. Dyer of the Perpetual Building Association, the largest in the country, that loans were being extended almost exclusively to persons building their own homes. Little is left, he added, for speculative developments. He said this situation would continue for months to come.

George De Franceaux of Frederick W. Berens, Inc., mortgage banking firm and John McCarthy of Walker-Dunlop, Inc., realtors and mortgage agents, agreed with these views, although De Franceaux said that as heavy government-financed projects are concluded, lending institutions will have cash available.

On the materials front, C. Vernon Hill of Barber & Ross Co. said the steel situation was dark, and he doubted it would lighten before some time in 1951.

The lumber supply, though, was described as good, except for spotty shortages reported by Frank Ewing of the Frank M. Ewing Co., building supply dealer. He said production was up 20 percent over the days of World War II.

The Federation of Citizens Associations' court fight against a gas rate increase received a substantial boost last night as the citizens association year began to hit its stride.

In their first meetings of the season, the Manor Park, Michigan Park and American University Park citizens' associations donated $25 each to help defray court expenses.

The federation won the first round of the battle earlier this year when a District Court decision set aside a Public Utilities Commission order granting a 6.14 increase to the Washington Gas Light Co. The company appealed the decision.

Because of the possibility of expenses in the appeals court, the federation in June asked the public for financial help.

Last night Federation President Herbert P. Leeman put the case before the American University Park group at its meeting in Hurst Hall, American University, and Mrs. E. B. Morris, treasurer of the federation, made a similar plea before the Manor Park Association at Whittier School.

Besides its financial support, the American University Park group adopted a resolution of appreciation for the federation's efforts in the gas case.

The Michigan Park and American University Park meetings also indorsed a Federation proposal for the establishment of a Citizens' Advisory Council to confer with the District Commissioners on budget and other problems.

At their meeting in the Bunker Hill School, the Michigan Park Citizens appropriated $30 for prizes in the "prettiest yard" contest ending soon, and nominated the following candidates to run in the October election:

President Charles S. Faller, president; Charles Murr, first vice president; Mrs. Martin Kelly, second vice president; Mrs. Katherine Ruppert, treasurer; John Chester, financial secretary; James Bridwell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Karl Dickey, mailing secretary; Chester V. Parker, sergeant-at-arms, and Edward A. Kane, J. Millard Hall, and Elmer Downs, delegates to the federation.

Garfield-Douglas Group Commends Dr. Hager

The Garfield-Douglass Civic Association last night commended Dr. Walter E. Hager, president of Wilson Teachers' College for his "statesmanlike stand in recommending the merger of Wilson and Miner Teachers College for Negro students.

The group, meeting at Turner School, Stanton and Alabama ave. se., sent a copy of the commendation to the Board of Education.

D. C. Youth Indicted in Slaying of Friend

A mentally deficient Washington youth was indicted yesterday on a charge of killing a fellow escapee from the District Training School in Laurel.

The indictment, handed down by a Federal grand jury in Baltimore, stated that Arthur Swann, 16, "in heat of passion" shot and killed his friend, Raymond Thorne, 17, with a .22 caliber rifle.

Swann, whose address was listed as 500 Cove st. se., returned to the Laurel institution on the evening of January 14, the same day the two friends escaped.

Six months later, his fantastic tales of the escapade led authorities to the body of Thorne, so decomposed that identification had to be establishen by dental charts, after which Swann was charged with manslaughter.

At a July 20 preliminary hearing, Swann admitted killing his companion with a stolen rifle after a quarrel during which he said Thorne tried to pressure him into taking part in the robbery.

United States Attorney Bernard J. Flynn said the prosecution's next moves will be to press for the sanity hearing

D. C. Flier Wins Seventh Cluster To Air Medal

Lieut. William J. Maddox, jr., 29, son of Mrs. Marion Maddox, 4230 Fessenden st. nw., has been awarded the seventh cluster to his air medal for completing 80 missions as a "grasshopper" pilot with the First Calvary Division.

Lieut. Maddox

Maddox, who made headlines in 1948 when he married Jaye Kurusu, daughter of the Japanese "peace" envoy to Washington at the time of the Pearl Harbor bombing, has been in Japan since December, 1946, his mother said.

Born in Newburgh, N. Y., Maddox was graduated from Wilson High School here, attended American University for a year and later studied journalism at Michigan State College at East Lansing.

The primary mission of "grasshopper" planes is to direct artillery fire on enemy positions from the air. They also handle courier service from headquarters to frontline fighting units and assist in evacuation of wounded from remote battle areas.

Storm Heads North While D. C. Mops Up

A muggy Washington was between two storm systems yesterday—the Atlantic hurricane and a "disturbance system" centered in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys.

The Weather Bureau sees no change until Wednesday afternoon, at least.

Today's forecast called for cloudy, humid weather with a high about 82 degrees. The overnight low should be about 67.

Trying to Mop Up

About a quarter inch of rain fell yesterday afternoon, which was no help to the District trying to mop up after Sunday's 2.79-inch rainfall.

The 12-day-old Atlantic hurricane, meantime, soared 160 miles off the Nantucket Island at 6 p. m. yesterday.

The danger area—New England's coast and the tip of Long Island—was preparing for both high winds and abnormally high tides.

"Disaster Alert"

The American Red Cross ordered 57 chapters on a "disaster alert." In Greenwich, Bridgeport and other Connecticut towns school children were sent home early.

In Washington the storm's waters had pretty much receded. Except for Division ave., from E. Capitol to Sheriff rd. ne., the inundated northeast section was clear.

At the Bladensburg Peace Cross yesterday afternoon, police permitted vehicles to pass through—but at their own risk. The water at the heavily travelled intersection was three and four feet deep in the morning.

Colleagues Sing

Guy Mason Is Feted on 70th Birthday

The Washington Post

GUY MASON
. . . Cutting his birthday cake

The fifth floor of the District Building rang to an unaccustomed chorale yesterday at high noon

The sound was made by heads of departments, singing to wish Commissioner Guy Mason a happy birthday—his seventieth.

Actually, however, the celebration was a day late. Commissioner Mason reached his seventieth birthday at home on Sunday, but yesterday was the first working day since for his official well wishers.

They toasted him in non-alcoholic punch and helped eat a large cake. Commisioner Mason said he felt "fine."

One of three heads of the District's government, Mason has been in office since 1941. A native of Pierceton, Ind., he went through three careers before his appointment to his present office.

He enlisted in the Army at the age of 17 to serve in the Spanish-American War but was not sent overseas. He came to Washington in 1904 as a field man on a surveying team and later embarked on a newspaper career in which he served for two Washington newspapers, including The Washington Post, and three out-of-town papers.

Later, he studied for the bar, was admitted in 1917, when he began practice. He continued as an attorney until his appointment nine years ago.

Mason has been in ill health for more than a year and is under doctor's orders to stay at his desk only half a day.

Venizelos to Try To Form Coalition Rule for Greece

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 11 (AP). Liberal Party leader Sophocles Venizelos tonight overcame a threatened revolt in his own party and said he would try to form a three-way coalition government at a series of meetings tomorrow.

The contemplated coalition will be composed of Liberals, Populists (Royalists) and Social Democrats. King Paul had asked for such a coalition to govern this politically unstable land for the next three years. Greece has had 20 governments since the liberation.

The three parties together control 161 of 250 seats in Parliament. Venizelos' caretaker liberal government fell Saturday on a vote of no-confidence after 19 days in office.

Edwin R. Kingsley, past international president of the Lions Club, will be the principal speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Lions Club of Friendship, D. C., at 12:15 p. m. Thursday at the Westchester Apartments, 4000 Cathedral ave. nw.

The program has been arranged in honor of A. Lee Painter, jr., president of the Friendship club.

Area Jews Open Celebration of Rosh Hashonoh

In more than a score of area synagogues and temples, Rosh Hashonoh—the Jewish New Year—was greeted at sundown last night.

For Jews, Rosh Hashonoh is the anniversary of God's creation of the universe. According to the Old Testament-based Hebrew calendar, today is the first day of the year 5711.

Among the thousands attending local servicees was Aubrey S. Eban, minister of Israel, who headed a delegation of embassy officials at Adas Israel Synagogue, 600 I st. nw.

Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld told the Washington Hebrew Congregation meeting at Constitution Hall:

"By the light of the burning fires in the rice fields of Korea let us thank God for the crisis that it has brought into our lives, for its challenge to our complacency and its judgement upon our lethargy so that we will mend our ways and press forward on the highroads of human liberty . . ."

Another sermon will be delivered by Rabbi Harry J. Kaufman early today to the congregation of Beth Sholom and Talmud Torah, 8th and Shepherd sts. nw.

"On this New Year 5711 by traditional account the sounds of the Shofar are the notes of alarm for the state of our world. No man can measure fully the power within him to help bring about goodness in a disorganized and evil world. We shall have to lift ourselves by our own bootstraps if we are to achieve the peace and justice that all people are praying for today."

Coroner Exceeds Law in Some Cases, Probers Told

A. Magruder MacDonald, the District coroner, in the morning and Cyril S. Lawrence, the U. S. commissioner, in the afternoon.

Hearing will resume at 10 a. m. today, when the committee will reopen its investigation into Washington's gambling rackets.

Emphasizing he was concerned with the office of coroner rather than the office-holder personally, Fischbach elicited these recommendations from Dr. MacDonald:

1. A full "protocol autopsy," including negative as well as positive findings, should be performed wherever possible.

2. A stenographer should be present during autopsies to record the coroner's findings as they are made.

3. The coroner and his deputies should devote full time to their duties, instead of practising medicine on the side.

4. The coroner should be relieved of the duties of process-server in cases where the United States Marshal is a party to litigation.

Relies More on Custom

In answer to questions from committee members and Fischbach, Dr. MacDonald admitted he relies more on custom than on law when acting as a committing magistrate.

"Under what statute do you require bond of a defendant in cases involving traffic deaths?" Fischbach asked.

"There is nothing specific in the statute," he replied. "Just generally under the function of the coroner."

"Is there anything in the statute which authorizes the coroner to instruct a jury it can bring in a verdict of justifiable homicide?" Fischbach asked.

"Nothing specific," Dr. MacDonald answered. "It's just a general interpretation of the code saying that the coroner shall determine the cause of death."

Physician Not Required

Dr. MacDonald, coroner for 16 years, also testified nothing in the statute requires the coroner to be a physician, that there are no specific qualifications for a coroner's juror, and that his stenographer spends approximately 85 per cent of his time on legal matters.

In the afternoon Fischbach got down to specific illustrations while questioning Lawrence.

"Under the present system," he asked the commissioner, "a man could be arraigned before you, ask that the hearing be continued and then be held for the action of the grand jury by the coroner, is that right?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, that way, this man would never get the public hearing that the Constitution says he should get, would he?"

"That's correct."

"And it also might work out that a man is arraigned before you, and the government could ask for a continuance, and then the man could be freed by the coroner's jury?"

"It has worked out that way," Lawrence said.

"Let me ask you this," the counsel said. "If a man admits to you that he is engaged in the selling of narcotics, and is also charged with murder, would you free him on a finding of justifiable homicide?

"For the record," Fischbach added, "I am referring to the murder of Edward McLain. In that case the killer said 'I've been running a dope joint in a garage in the rear of 1340 Corcoran st.' And yet the coroner's jury freed this man by a verdict of justifiable homicide. No action was taken on his own admission that he violated the narcotic laws."

[McLain, 25, 1710 1st st. nw., was shot by James W. Shores, 40, 712 Fairmont st. nw. on January 19, 1948.]

Was It Justifiable?

"Let me ask you this" Fischbach continued, "Another so-called justifiable homicide. The death of Matthew Jones. If a woman told you this: 'After I picked up the knife and started cutting at him, he picked up a chair and started beating me.' Would you call that justifiable homicide?"

"It is not my province to determine what is justifiable homicide," Lawrence answered.

"Would you find probable cause to hold this woman for action of the grand jury?" Fischbach asked.

"I certainly would," the commissioner stated.

"For the record the coroner's jury in this case called the murder justifiable homicide," Fischbach said.

"These are not unusual circumstances," he told the committee. "I find over and over in these so-called justifiable homicides there is more than a serious doubt. And the assumption by the coroner of this authority is more than ephemeral if it exists at all."

21 Justifiable Homicides

Earlier, Dr. MacDonald testified there were 21 justifiable homicides during fiscal 1949, including five persons killed by policemen on duty, and six justifiable homicides in fiscal 1950, including two persons killed by policemen.

Representative James Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) said he found a "disturbing contrast" between the way these cases were handled by the commissioner and the coroner.

Dr. MacDonald said that in cases where the coroner's jury arrived at an erroneous verdict, the United States Attorney could rearrest the defendant. In addition, he said, the defendant is generally still in the custody of the United States commissioner and can still be held by him.

Lawrence said he does not believe in increasing the duplication already existing.

Lawrence emphasized that Dr. MacDonald is a good friend of his and that he did not want to appear to be criticizing him.

Held 3000 Hearings

The commissioner testified he was appointed in July, 1948, and that in a year he held approximately 3000 hearings and heard 1000 applications for warrants. He said he issued every search warrant that was issued in the jurisdiction, both Federal and city.

He said he has the right to practice law, but called that right "just about empty" because of the volume of his work as commissioner.

Lawrence said he is furnished no stenographer, and proceedings before him are not transcribed. In the case of William A. Tyler, convicted of the Good Friday murder of two Lansburgh and Bro., department store watchmen, Lawrence said he was called as a government witness to testify about certain confessions Tyler made while being arraigned, because there was no record of the confessions.

Kefauver Asks That Shenker Quit Finance Post in Party

who has represented numerous gamblers. He was named to the party post last week by Democratic National Chairman William Boyle, who apparently was not aware of his background.

Wiley said the committee, of which he is a member, should ask "to what extent Shenker has used, is using or expects to use his party connections on behalf of his clients." Wiley said the lawyer is an "attorney for some of the largest gambling interests in America."

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reported that Shenker sent a telegram to Wiley from Jefferson City, Mo., denying he represents gambling interests and accusing the Senator of violating legal ethics.

"In your dilemma seeking a political advantage," Shenker said, "you have violated the spirit of the canons of ethics of the American bar. It is tactics of this type that result in a denial of due process and foster communism and fascism."

Shenker said Wiley's statement that officials might hesitate to prosecute fully Shenker's clients "is an insult to every law enforcement official in the United States.

"I have never permitted my political activities to interfere with my practice of law, nor have I attempted to associate the two. I have never solicited or accepted a political contribution from any of my clients."

He flatly denied any connection with gamblers.

In Jefferson City, Mo., meanwhile, Thomas C. Hennings, jr., Democratic nominee for Senator, denied he had anything to do with the Shenker appointment. Boyle said last week Hennings "undoubtedly" recommended Shenker.

The Missouri politics-and-crime situation got another fillup yesterday when Thomas (Tano) Lococo, close associate of the murdered political boss, Charles Binaggio, pleaded guilty in an income tax case. He, thereupon, was sentenced to two years and a day in prison.

Lococo, nattily dressed in a gray doublebreasted suit, entered the plea in Federal Court in Kansas City.

Mencken: 70

This is a formal holiday in the City of Baltimore to be observed by the banks and the school authorities. It is Defenders' Day. But an occasion far more important than this legal holiday is another anniversary. Baltimore's most famous inhabitant —perhaps its only inhabitant whose name is really well known in partibus infidelium —is celebrating today his seventieth anniversary. We refer, of course, to Mr. Henry Louis Mencken.

Baltimore has always wanted to venerate Mr. Mencken as one of its peculiar institutions like the crab cake, the ground rent and the white marble stoop. But it is only in the last year or so that it has had the opportunity. Until his recent illness Mr. Mencken had stubbornly refused to behave like an institution. He continued to outrage the local as well as the national pieties, and to insist upon the role he had held for nearly thirty-five years as the very bad boy of American letters and journalism.

Our secret agents now advise us that Mr. Mencken's health has been somewhat on the mend of late, and that there is even hope that one of these days he may resume his labors as the self-appointed scourge of boobs, Babbitts, wowsers and what not. For our part we rejoice to hear it. Not that we have frequently found Mr. Mencken right in such matters; but, even so, his way of being wrong has afforded a valuable antidote to priggishness and pride.

New Defense Set-Up

To those who read as they run the Administration's defense control set-up is likely to be about as understandable as a jig-saw puzzle. President Truman greatly simplified the relationships of the new agencies in his speech on Saturday night, but on Sunday, when Secretary Sawyer announced the creation of the National Production Authority, there were many who had no idea as to where it should be fitted into the general pattern. Confusion has been intensified by sudden burgeoning of new alphabetical combinations that as yet mean nothing to the casual reader.

Some of this confusion may be dispelled if we remember that two different programs are being inaugurated at the same time. One of these, concerned chiefly with investigative work for the present, is headed by the Economic Stabilization Agency. The task of the ESA is to fight inflation. Under its auspices a director of price stabilization and a wage stabilization board will soon go to work to determine what controls are essential to keep our national economy on even keel during the Korean crisis and any strenuous aftermath. For the time being we are likely to hear less about this stabilization program than about the expediting program which is directly concerned with the more immediate problem of getting weapons into the hands of United Nations defenders.

The star performer in the expediting program will be the National Production Authority created within the Commerce Department. The NPA takes direct responsibility for seeing that defense orders have top priority and that plants making weapons have ample steel, aluminum, copper and other materials. It serves the function that was assigned to the WPB (War Production Board) in World War II. As head of the NPA, the Administration has chosen William H. Harrison, who should be eminently qualified for the assignment by his service as director of the production division of the old WPB and as chief of the Procurement and Distribution Service of the Army Signal Corps in the last war. This draft upon experience ought to get the National Production Authority off to a good start.

It is well to remember that the NPA shares the allocations and priorities powers with the Secretary of Agriculture (with respect to food, commercial fertilizer and distribution of farm equipment), the Secretary of the Interior (as to petroleum, gas, solid fuels and electric power) and the ICC (as to transportation). This natural distribution of functions will make it necessary to iron out interagency conflicts and that task has been given to the chairman of the National Security Resources Board, Stuart Symington. Mr. Symington should not be regarded, however, as merely a trouble shooter or arbiter of disputes. The President has also authorized him to lay down program and policy directives, with White House approval, and in effect to supervise the whole defense effort. That assignment grows naturally out of the existence of the NSRB as a planning agency for effective use of our resources for defense.

While the new defense set-up is complicated, its lines of authority are clear and each agency has a specific task reasonably well defined. If each unit does its part well, much of the confusion and lost motion that marked the introduction of civilian controls in connection with World War II can be avoided. It is now largely a question of whether the individuals chosen to direct the various units are equal to the heavy responsibilities they will carry.

Vitality In The U. N.

The widespread feeling among the American people that the United Nations should be strengthened has found extensive reflection in Congress. Nearly one half of the Senators and more than 100 members of the House have joined in resolutions calling for stronger international organization. Recently the Senate Foreign Relations Committee indicated sympathy with this view by approving and sending to the Senate the report of the Thomas Subcommittee which for many months has been studying numerous resolutions designed to bind tighter the ties of solidarity in the Western world. The committee concludes, however, that the additional strength must be found for the present in the existing organization of the U. N. and in supplementary efforts for joint resistance to aggression.

The Thomas Subcommittee listened to arguments for world federation, for a federal convention of the democracies, for an Atlantic union, for numerous amendments to the U. N. Charter and agreements within the U. N. framework. It declined to sponsor any resolution looking to the modification of international machinery at this time partly because the U. N. is still in the process of meeting its great test in Korea. The committee "felt that the Korean crisis and the reaction of the United Nations to that crisis showed that the United Nations had a life and vitality that many witnesses did not think existed." If the U. N. is able to function as it was intended to function and as it did function in the early days of the war in Korea, the report says, "it is doubtful whether there would be any extensive demands at this time to strengthen that organization."

There are other reasons for not tampering with the basic organization of the U. N. while it is holding the line against Communist aggression. Despite its weaknesses, says the Thomas Subcommittee, it is "in all probability a more complete and effective embodiment of the concept of a universal world organization than it would be possible to develop now in view of the deterioration of the international situation since 1945." The need of the hour is to adapt the flexible machinery of the U. N. to the great tasks of arresting aggression and restoring peace. Along with many other students of the Charter, the Senators responsible for this study see undeveloped potentialities (1) in the wide authority of the General Assembly to deal with problems related to the maintenance of peace; (2) in the right of discussion in the Security Council without any great power veto; and (3) in the right of collective self-defense under Article 51. If the countries that have joined hands in Korea make full use of these potentialities, they can put down aggression and defeat the Soviet Union's efforts to destroy the U. N. as an effective instrument of peace.

The initiative must obviously be shifted from the hamstrung Security Council to the General Assembly. The Assembly can act by a two-thirds majority vote. It can make recommendations to the member nations that should be as effective as the Council's recommendations for resistance of the Korean invasion. If the American proposal for creation of a permanent U. N. commission of roving investigators is accepted, the Assembly will have a body that could be promptly dispatched to any troubled area. With such eyes and ears, the Assembly could act quickly and its decisions could be made effective so long as the free nations work together. There is no need for despair because the return of the Soviet delegate has reduced the Council to an acrimonious debating society. We believe, as does the Thomas Subcommittee, that vigorous American leadership can give the U. N. the vitality it needs to defend the peace.

Reckless Strafing

There is tragic irony in the story of the American pilot who made four strafing runs over Taegu, killing eight civilians and wounding nine others. Apparently the pilot confused Taegu, a United Nations base and the provisional capital of South Korea, for Kunchon 30 miles to the west, which is held by the Reds. His mistake led to the slaughter of presumably friendly civilians who are our allies. For that understandable blunder we may assume that the United Nations forces will make apologies and whatever amends are possible. What is even more disturbing is the inference that if this killing of presumably innocent civilians had occurred on the other side of the battle line it would have been a routine performance.

At the very least the incident raises a question as to whether some United States pilots are indiscriminately shooting down civilians who are unfortunate enough to be behind the Red lines. The difficulty of distinguishing between armed forces and civilians in attacks from the air is well known. When war comes the armies of every country feel free to bomb military targets and if civilians get in the way it is their misfortune. The same is true of strafing. The awful truth is, as the peoples of all lands now know, that modern warfare cannot be carried on without frightful losses among civilians as well as men in uniform. When this is fully recognized, however, it seems to us that extraordinary precautions ought to be taken in a United Nations police action, such as that in Korea, to avoid imposing any unnecessary suffering and losses upon civilians.

Fighting men often need to be reminded that the aim of their efforts is the restoration of peace. In the present instance the United Nations will have an immense task of reconstruction and pacification when the ruthless invaders have been defeated. It is of the utmost importance that the essential destruction of the invading forces be accompanied by every reasonable protection for the civilian population. The fact that large numbers of Koreans are behind the lines to which the invaders have been able to advance does not make them enemies. They cannot be so regarded even by individual pilots on strafing missions without reaping tragic consequences.

Jan C. Smuts

There was a statesmanship about Jan Christiaan Smuts, dead in his beloved South Africa at 80, which put him in the very front rank of world leadership. His mind and heart were in happy balance. Refreshed by his daily reading of the classics, his intellect was superb, but it was always at the service of his ideals. And these had much in common with Woodrow Wilson's. Both worked in complete understanding, and Smuts' hand may be traced throughout the covenant of the League of Nations.

Smuts believed in the whole—indeed, he built up a school of philosophy around it called "holism" (from the Greek holos, or whole). His philosophical attitude gave his faith a massive strength. It taught him that Rome wasn't built in a day, and it brought him fresh and undaunted to San Francisco for the writing of the Charter of the United Nations, successor to the covenant of the ill-fated League. His ideas are inscribed, with Senator Vandenberg's, in the preamble. Those who were at San Francisco will remember the field marshal, not only because he personified the first effort to establish world organization, but because, by his very presence, he testified to the fact that in men of good will there is never disillusion. He shunned the limelight, and walked through the lovely woods around San Francisco in the morning peace, as he used to walk over his own veldt at home.

About him was always an aura of austerity which scarcely comported with the fellow-feeling he imparted to his world politics. Nor did it seem quite natural that this gentle man had back of him a tempestuous career of action. As a guerilla leader in the Boer War, he constantly outwitted the British, and he fought to the end. He seems to have fought for tolerance, for he then proceeded to work for it, and the British reciprocated by making a good peace. He fought for Britain in the Second World War. Perhaps it was the memory of the British-Boer peace that made him critical of the peace of Versailles. It was only after some persuasion that he attached his signature to "a peace of statesmen, not a peace of and for the people." His appraisals were always wise and objective, and his dream was to see Anglo-American collaboration securely established, not as an axis, but as a nuclear combination of the "whole." The commonwealth will be in mourning today as well as South Africa, and Americans who felt Smuts' influence will also bow their heads over the passing of an eminent citizen of the world.

World Bank

Representatives of the various countries that are members of the World Bank converged on Paris last week to confer with the Bank's management which is holding its fifth annual meeting in that city. Many of these visitors are said to be highly critical of the Bank's lending policies, maintaining that its capital is moving into those areas most attractive to American investors instead of going into underdeveloped countries where the need is greatest. There is also complaint that the Bank discriminates against certain governments for political reasons. In our opinion, a list of the countries that have been granted loans is a sufficient refutation of this charge.

Admittedly the Bank sets high standards for its lending operations, though it has to take risks that private lenders would not assume. The character of lending, as stated in the annual report of the Bank released Friday, is governed by the articles of agreement requiring that "loans made or guaranteed by the Bank shall, except in special circumstances, be for the purpose of specific projects of reconstruction or development." If the Bank were to make loans for "vague development programs . . . there would be danger that the Bank's resources would be used either for projects which are economically or technically unsound, or are of a low priority nature, or for economically unjustified consumer goods imports."

Preliminary investigations of loan requests are of course time-consuming, especially as it is often necessary to attach conditions to loan grants, calling for government action to stabilize the economy. As the Bank acquires more information about conditions in member countries, it will no doubt be able to speed up its financing and grant a larger volume of loans. But it rightly insists that loans must be productive, if they are to be of real benefit. "Nothing can be more harmful to a country's economic future," the Bank states, "than a faulty assessment of its real opportunities. Nor can anything make the burden of a debt so difficult to bear as waste and inefficiency in the use of borrowed funds."

In other words, the Bank's reply to its critics is that the only way to assure effective use of its resources in raising the living standards of member countries is to make a careful selection of investment projects and make sure that the funds are used for the purposes for which they were intended.

Hager Report

Both Dr. Hager's proposal on the merger of the District's teachers colleges and The Washington Post's commentary thereon deserve the earnest consideration of the Nation's Capital. Although your commentary is an excellent statement of the case, there is one point which I should like to emphasize, i. e., the merger "would help bring the Capital of the United States into conformity with democratic principles."

Many Americans do not realize to what extent America's lack of conformity with democratic principles in respect to race relations weakens our position abroad at this critical time of conflicting ideologies. If more Americans could see themselves as seen by others, such a view might serve as a catalyst in speeding up the translation of our professors into practice. I have just returned from a year in Italy where I analyzed with care Italian observations on this very lack of conformity. The United States Information Service in Italy is keenly aware of this problem and is doing excellent work in presenting an accurate view of the problem. But, of course, USIS can do no more than report the facts. The United States is spending millions abroad to enable other countries to rebuild themselves on democratic principles. The effect, however, of these millions is greatly offset every time we Americans fail to conform to our democratic principles.

During the past year consideration of American race relations received an impetus in Europe as a result of several recent films treating what Myrdal has called the American dilemma. Typical, for example, of Italian reviews of Pinky and Lost Boundaries appearing in papers representing views from left to right was the following observation: "In order for the facts represented . . . in Pinky to appear comprehensible for Italians, they would have to take place among a barbarous people, ignorant of the teachings of Christ that all men are equal or in a country with a totalitarian regime such as Hitlerian Germany poisoned by racist doctrine . . . According to the two films, Lost Boundaries and Pinky . . . such manifestations of uncivil racial intolerance take place in the America of Washington . . . today the champion of Christian civilization."

In light of the American position in the world today, how long can we in the Nation's Capital afford to postpone the translation of our professors into practice? Can we in the Nation's Capital continue the rationalization: "The American people are not ready; let's wait 25 or 50 years; progress is possible only through gradualism; time will work for us"?

"Florida Politics"

In regard to Mrs. Margaret Southard's comments of September 5 on "Florida Politics," I should like to put the record straight.

To begin with, Mrs. Southard obviously knows absolutely nothing about the politics of Florida when she doesn't even know a Governor of Florida can't succeed himself.

Governor Warren was never quoted directly as stating he would appoint Senator Pepper to any post. For Mrs. Southard's information Governor Warren is the first honest Governor Florida has had in over 30 years, while Senator Pepper has been one of a handful of Senators who has repeatedly represented the peoples' wish and has refused to be bought by large Northern interests operating in Florida.

Name-Calling

At last we have the ultimate, grotesque fruit of McCarthyism: Secretary of the Interior Chapman is made out to be a Communist sympathizer by Senator Schoeppel. To anyone who knows him, Secretary Chapman is as American as baseball, hotdogs, and Steve Canyon, and so completely unlikely a candidate for such fantastic charges that it sounds as though the Senator were extremely hard up for political ammunition.

How far can irresponsible insinuation and hysteria go? Next we may hear it darkly rumored that Chief Justice Vinson is actually a protege of Molotov, and that President Truman himself has been subverted by "Moscow gold." But the real payoff, no doubt, will come when some congressional Hawkshaw discovers that J. Edgar Hoover is a secret agent for the Russian MKVD.

District Hospitality

Yesterday a young Nigerian, having attended an international convention in Boston, was in the Capital of the USA as a visitor. Washington is full of visitors with varying degrees of distinction and the young man's Ph. D. in mathematics was a distinction that naturally went unnoticed. Another distinction, however, that never failed to receive notice in the five restaurants where, in succession, the hungry young colonial was each time rebuffed, was the color of his skin. It was hard for him to believe that the land of the free and the home of the brave, with the District of Columbia its great heart, could be the same place that now was offering him insult after insult until he could endure no more.

Uncle Sam's own District of Columbia can well be classified as one of those "underdeveloped areas of backward peoples" which concern him so greatly around the globe, so long as such indignities continue. Millions of dollars for Dictator Franco; not a cent to insure courtesy to our friends who visit Washington unofficially, our good neighbors who stop to break bread with us.

Profitable from every angle save perhaps silver dollars would be a distinctive establishment, well publicized, where visitors to Washington would be served good food at current prices, their host the United States Government. Here the Africans should be received along with visitors from Chile and from China, from India and Pakistan.

Conditions In Western Europe

Having just returned from a three-months sojourn in Britain and Europe — visiting every country this side of the Iron Curtain—I have found Western Europe consumed by two emotions—fear and hatred; fear of Russia, hatred of the United States. In England there exists another emotion as regards us —an understandable jealousy because we have not only taken her place in world affairs but have hitched her wagon to our train.

From time immemorial it has been the custom of the conqueror to swagger over the conquered; we have in Europe refined the process to include a swaggering over the liberated nations. There is an outward subservience on the part of these peoples which undoubtedly encourages our predisposition to swagger. The examples are found everywhere you go; the practitioners of the cuit are our Government bureaucrats, scattered as lavishly over the nations as corn over a chicken run; by our tourist fellow countrymen and women and, last but far from least, our Army of Occupation in Germany.

The limits of space confine me to a brief on our Army of Occupation. Lest I be accused of ignorance, and merely as a qualification to be heard, I have divided my life between United States and British Army service, foreign and war correspondence and newspaper work at home.

All armies of occupation degenerate—from the Twentieth Roman Legion (in Britain) down. Never, in my opinion, has an army gone to seed as fast as has ours at present stationed in Germany. I am not qualified to include the army in Japan—but reports disquiet me. I have looked on these soft-cheeked boys and their more or less recently graduated bobby-sox mates, on their dug-in seniors and their wire-pulling wives. I have drunk their cocktails and been waited upon by their servants—three in one home to one sergeant, his wife and three children. I have listened to endless liquored discussions and arguments and have watched fisticuffs over a subject grouping which never varies; in order of importance these are sex, booze, scrounging and promotion.

Sex tops all. Every now and again you have a sex murder which cannot be kept out of the newspapers; the sex-murder attempts are efficiently bottled up by the PRO's. It is not merely an old man's nostalgia which makes me compare these good-time-Charlies with my buddies of the First World War or the gallants with whom I jeeped through France in '44.

Maybe all they need is a war to stiffen them into good American fighting men; the fault is not entirely theirs. But how much time, a German Nazi former colonel asked me are they going to get? Whatever else this man might have been he was a soldier, as tough as they came.

"They'll go through you like a knife through soft butter"—he sat beside me in the Reichsbahn Hotel in Stuttgart, having gorged food like the starved man he was—"France will run, Holland will run, Belgium will run. Italy? Well, look at the record. Your boys will fight but what kind of a battle can a fighter put up who has trained on martinis, roast goose and bedroom offensives? England will fight—but England has already whipped herself."

The calloused fists of a Junker officer turned day-laborer came down on the table. He spread out horribly gnarled and twisted fingers.

"Broken," he observed bitterly. "Broken like Germany. Put a gun in those hands and there isn't a finger could circle a trigger. Just like Germany."

Clinics For Procurement

By Marquis Childs

Another Benton Plan

WITH CONGRESS racing to get out of Washington, a great many minds are fixed on one thing—the harsh necessity of getting reelected. But clearing the first hurdle, which is to get back home, may prove to be the easiest step of all.

In this strange season of half war and half peace (if that's what it is called) the ordinary campaign appeals are likely to have little weight. The word comes back that the voter is distracted and depressed. He's not thinking much about elections and when he does it's with a feeling that maybe the "outs" wouldn't be any worse than the "ins."

The best way to campaign is not to seem to campaign—the nonpolitical approach. That may be one reason why an innovation introduced by a newcomer to politics, Senator William Benton of Connecticut, has caught on so quickly.

This is the small business clinic.

Benton, who has made several fortunes in the course of an extremely active career, was one of the founders and moving spirits of the Committee for Economic Development, the organization of forward-looking business executives who have exerted an influence on the economy far out of proportion to their numbers.

IN THE Senate as a member of the Small Business Committee, Benton has continued this interest. There are many small manufacturers in Connecticut and their letters made Benton aware of the difficulties small business has in dealing with the Federal Government. Big business can afford the overhead of a Washington representative who can hunt his way through the labyrinth of big Government. But this is beyond small business.

Benton initiated the first small business clinic at the manufacturing center of Bridgeport. Key officials from various Government departments were present. Each official came prepared to spell out what the small manufacturer should do to get contracts under the swiftly expanding program of defense production.

Many of the industrialists accepted the invitation in a skeptical frame of mind. They expected to get what they often refer to scornfully as "the Washington runaround." They were agreeably surprised by the brass-tacks talks they heard. Senator Benton had made it clear at the outset that he wanted no political questions since the goal was a practical one to aid the small manufacturer.

Later the clinics were set up for New Haven and Hartford, sponsored by the chambers of commerce in those cities. In his letter of invitation, Benton said:

"The Korean situation stresses the critical nature of the problem in terms of procurement, industrial mobilization and dispersal of contract awards. This problem was not foreseen in the planning stage of the pilot clinic at Bridgeport, and I shall devote more time to it. Frankly, this clinic stems from the enthusiastic response to the Bridgeport affair."

AT THE LATER clinics officals of the Departments of Defense, Commerce, Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the General Services Administration gave even more detailed information on how and where smaller business firms could bid for Government business. The only politics, and this was not directly related to office-seeking, was Benton's preliminary talk stressing his conviction of the need for real competition in the private enterprise system and of his desire to help small business provide that competition.

Both Republicans and Democrats have now taken up the small business clinic idea. They have been held or are scheduled for cities literally from Maine to California. Senator Margaret Chase Smith sponsored a clinic in Augusta, Me., and Senator William Knowland in San Francisco. Both are Republicans.

Told of the spread of these clinics, a veteran politician expressed the skepticism of his trade, doubting that they would get the sponsors any votes in November. If they do not mean actual votes in the ballot box, they certainly mean good will. And they may also mean more defense production and a healthier economy less likely to be dominated by monopoly, which is good for the country regardless of party.

Atlantic Union

Between the extremes of "preventive war," and just waiting for Russia to strike next, there seems to me to be a positive middle ground in the Atlantic Union Committee's proposal for a federation of democracies.

Stalin, like Hitler, prospers out of the division and uncertainty of the free world. Face totalitarianism (of whatever brand) with a powerful union of free peoples, and the dictator must think many times longer before launching a campaign of aggression than if he believes he can pick off the democracies one by one. Facing a union devoted to liberty, he must know that certain retaliation to his use of force will be swift, powerful and automatic.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Preface By Senator Lodge

Last week Senator Lodge made a short statement which said a lot more than anyone as near the inside of things as he is has as yet said. His statement will serve well as a preface to the meetings in New York this week. In his statement Senator Lodge argues cogently for the idea advanced by the French and the Germans and now accepted by the Administration, that an American Army, up to say 10 divisions, should be stationed in Europe. But Mr. Lodge seems to be one who doesn't like to write checks unless he knows there is going to be money in the bank. Having demonstrated how necessary and desirable it would be to put such an army into Europe, Mr. Lodge went on to do some military arithmetic. That is an exercise which has not been allowed to interfere with the public utterances of our higher officials.

Lippmann

MR. LODGE'S first calculation, obviously, had to be concerned with the troops required in order, as Mr. Acheson put it on Sunday night, "to clear up this matter in Korea." Senator Lodge seems to have had an argument with "the experts" about the troops needed to take the offensive "if we are actually to break out from the beachhead in Korea."

He seems to have pointed out to the experts that the Third Army, which was General Patton's, outnumbered the German units in front of it by a ratio of 2½ to 1, and that nevertheless it had to fight hard for several months. The experts seem to have argued back that the North Koreans are nothing like such good soldiers as the Germans. Senator Lodge seems to have admitted that. Then the question was what does the ratio need to be as against, not the Germans but, the North Koreans?

General MacArthur's intelligence says it has identified 16 North Korean divisions. Were they as good soldiers as the Germans, it would not be prudent to count on a victorious defensive with less than 40 divisions. But since we have decided to agree that they are not so good as the Germans, we may reduce the ratio of superiority. Senator Lodge, obviously with his fingers crossed and, it would seem, stroking a rabbit's foot, has made a sweeping reduction in the ratio: "Let us assume," he says, "that only 15 American divisions are required to dispose of 16 North Korean divisions." This is to assume that with superior weapons we can take the offensive with inferior numbers.

THAT BRINGS him to the crux of his statement. If we assume, contrary to all previous military experience, that the Korean matter can be cleared up with 15 divisions, this is nevertheless more divisions than we now have and it is almost as many divisions as we expect to have next June when the Korean war will be a year old. "All we plan to have by June 30, 1951," says Senator Lodge, "is 18 divisions, or an increase of only about 200,000 men in the Army."

And so when we talk about the divisions that we shall station in Europe, it is necessary to remember that the Korean war is a first mortgage on all our ground forces, and that it is a very big mortgage.

A GOOD DEAL can no doubt be done, as Senator Lodge demands, to enlarge the Army more quickly. But the brutal fact of the matter is that the Chinese, not to speak of the Russians, can do a lot more a lot more quickly and easily to undo the optimistic assumption. Beyond the Allied beachheads in Korea, Hongkong and Indo-China there are, what Mr. Acheson called on Sunday night, "all sorts of hordes." Mr. Acheson was rather reassuring about these hordes. Nevertheless, according to Mr. Hanson Baldwin, who is always cautious in his estimates, there are three Chinese group armies near the Korean frontier and three more in Kwangsi Province opposite Indo-China.

Thus the Foreign Ministers meeting in New York are faced with a problem which cannot be solved easily. The three leading powers of the Atlantic community are all of them entangled, severally and jointly, in military campaigns on the mainland of Asia. Even against the local forces, the Malayan guerillas, the Viet Minh, the North Koreans, the forces that the three Western nations have been able to deploy are not within sight of the superiority that could bring a decision. Yet behind these local forces stands not only a strategic reserve of Chinese and Russian troops which could be overwhelming and decisive if committed, but also—we must never forget—air forces and naval forces which, were they committed, might change the whole position in an afternoon.

THE PROBLEM before the Foreign Ministers is to determine how, in relation to their entanglements in Asia, they propose to find the troops to defend Europe.

All the plans and promises they make for Europe, all the decisions they take about American troops and German troops and about a European army, will have to meet the test of what they are able to do to limit and to reduce their military liabilities on the Asian beachheads.

That, I submit, is the inescapable conclusion of Senator Lodge's military arithmetic. As two and two cannot be made to add up to more than four, not even if the Foreign Ministers issue a communique about it, so the defense of Europe cannot be improved substantially as long as the three allies have unlimited liabilities in Asia.

Final Action on New Tax Bill Delayed by Lone Vote in House

By The Associated Press

House backers of an immediate excess profits tax forced a delay yesterday in final action on the $4,508,000,000 tax-boosting bill.

But Speaker Rayburn (D., Tex.) told them they were only wasting time and holding up funds that "the Government needs desperately." Rayburn said from the floor that Senate and House rules won't permit the addition of an excess profits tax to the present bill.

The tax bill delay came when Representative Young (D., Ohio) objected to a motion sending the measure to conference for ironing out differences between House and Senate versions. This motion—made by Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) of the Ways and Means Committee—needed unanimous consent for immediate adoption, so Young's objection was enough to block it.

Rayburn said the House will be asked next Thursday to send the bill to conference by a special rule which will require only a majority vote.

Would Raise Millions more

The bill would increase individual income taxes by about $2,700,000,000 a year. It also would raise corporation taxes by $1,500,000,000 a year, and would get more millions by various other tax law changes.

Congressional leaders, mostly in favor of an excess profits tax, take the position it should be imposed through later legislation and after careful study.

Rayburn said the present bill has been passed by both Houses and Senate-House conferees can't add anything to it.

Representative Eberharter (D., Pa.) told the House, however, that "the people of this country will resent the failure of Congress to attack this problem now. The corporations are making big profits now. To do the fair thing, Congress should stay in session and draw up an excess profits tax in two or three weeks."

Would Delay Adjournment

Legislative leaders have been aiming at a recess or an adjournment around September 15. Yesterday's delay in the tax bill is likely to put off the date by several days.

President Truman wants an excess profits tax "as soon as possible." He has not asked for it, sible." He has not asked for it, siring to avoid delaying controversies. He described the pending measure as only the first installment of a program of heavier taxes for everybody. Any excess profits tax, he said, should reach backward and cover profits that have swollen since the Korean war began.

Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the Senate Finance Committee said Sunday a "second installment" tax bill would come before Congress soon. He didn't say exactly when, but January action has been indicated.

George said this bill would collect about seven billion dollars a year, including four billion dollars to six billion dollars in excess profits taxes.

Cox Named Crusade Head and Cutler, 1210 18th st. nw.

Cox said yesterday that he will announce plans shortly for a campaign to enroll District residents on Freedom Scrolls which will be permanently enshrined in the base of a 10-ton Freedom Bell. The bell will be dedicated in Berlin on United Nations Day, October 24, and exhibited in Washington October 1, probably for one day, as part of the national campaign tour.

Eisenhower Speech

In his Labor Day speech opening the Crusade for Freedom, General Eisenhower denounced Communist distortion of the truth about United State aspirations and policies.

He said the State Department's "Voice of America" broadcasts had "brilliantly served" the cause of freedom, but were overpowered and outflanked by Communist jamming, and inferred that the "Voice" was further hampered by diplomatic considerations inherent in an official Government activity.

Persons signing the Freedom Scrolls affirm their belief in world freedom, and their contributions will aid in establishing a network of radio free Europe programs. He said the programs will carry the message of "our aspirations for peace, our hatred of war, our support of the United Nations, and our constant readiness to cooperate with others who have these same desires."

Cox in his statement yesterday said "The Crusade for Freedom offers each of us the opportunity to take positive action in the crucial battle for men's minds raging around the world."

Cox, a native of Portland, Me., attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and was graduated from Yale University Law School. He is a former editor of the Yale Law Journal.

He has served the Government as assistant solicitor general of the United States, general counsel for Lend-Lease Administration, general counsel for Office of Emergency Management, and assistant general counsel for the Treasury Department.

From 1929 to 1934 he was associated with the New York law firm, Cadwalader, Wickersham and Taft, and for the next four years was assistant corporation counsel in charge of taxes for the City of New York.

He and Mrs. Cox have two sons, Warren, 15, and Peter, 13. They live at 1545 35th st. nw.

monwealth of Nations and the preamble of the United Nations charter, and shared in launching the old League of Nations.

A guerilla leader of Boer rebels in the South African war with the British in 1899-1902, Smuts became a lieutenant general in the British army in the first World War and led British and South African forces in the successful campaign against the Kaiser's forces in East Africa.

In the second World War, he again led his country to the side of the Allies. He became a field marshal in the British army in 1941.

In 1948, he lost in a general election to the Nationalists of Daniel F. Malan and resigned as Prime Minister.

His last political defeat was August 30, when the Nationalists won all six seats at stake in the South African Parliament and 16 out of 18 local legislative seats in the territory of Southwest Africa. It was the first election for representatives of the Union Parliament in which Southwest Africa had participated. The territory previously had been administered as a mandate from the League of Nations.

Born May 24, 1870, on a farm near Capetown, of Dutch and French Hugenot parentage, Smuts won a scholarship at Victoria College and went to Cambridge, England, where he studied law.

He laid aside his law books at Capetown when the Boer war broke out. He was the right hand of Louis Botha, first Prime Minister of South Africa, and took over the task of guiding the country through its postwar years when Botha died in 1919.

Unpopularity in connection with the settlement of labor problems in 1922 lost him his majority in Parliament. But he and his rival, J. B. M. Hertzog, buried the hatchet in 1933 in a fusion of the Nationalist and South African parties. Smuts entered the government as a deputy to Pirme Minister Hertzog.

In 1939 the Hertzog government fell on the issue of neutrality and Smuts formed a new government, which endured until 1948.

Smuts in a historic speech in 1917 first suggested the idea of a British Commonwealth of Nations, as distinguished from the empire.

In 1918, he published a plan for a League of Nations that gained for him a share in fostering that organization in San Francisco in 1945, he championed the interests of the smaller nations in shaping the U. N. Charter.

In his lifetime he received honorary degrees from a score of universities in England, the United States and Canada and many other honors.

He married Sybella Kirge in 1897 and two sons and four daughters were born to the union.

Chapman Took Required Vow, Probers Told

By The Associated Press

Two Interior Department officials testified yesterday that their boss, Oscar Chapman, took the oaths and made the affidavits required by law when he took office as Secretary of the Interior.

They appeared at a Senate Interior Committee hearing into charges by Senator Schoeppel (R., Kans.) that Chapman failed to swear he was not affiliated with any subversive organizations.

Chapman himself denied the charge at a committee session last week. He also denied categorically that he had any link with Communist causes, as Schoeppel had stated.

Today's witnesses were Guy W. Numbers, the Interior Department's assistant director of personnel, and Mastin G. White, the department's solicitor.

After their testimony Senator Cordon (R., Ore.) said that so far as he was concerned the case was closed. Chairman O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said another session will be held Wednesday, however, to hear further witnesses including Reclamation Commissioner Michael W. Straus, Governor Gruening of Alaska and possibly Schoeppel's assistant, Frank T. Bow.

Straus and Gruening were mentioned in Schoeppel's Senate speech attacking Chapman. Schoeppel said after the speech it was based on material gathered by Bow, who now is running for Congress in Ohio.

Both the Republican National Committee and the Senate's GOP Policy Commitee have disassociated themselves from Schoeppel's charges.

O'Mahoney rejected a proposal by Schoeppel that the hearings be held in private.

Power Politics Called Guiding Russian Force

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—The major element in Russia's postwar expansion drive is power politics, a Harvard researcher and former State Department political analyst said today.

"If in the Asiatic arena they (the Russians) succeed in making long-term social trends serve their power interests, they may achieve a fundamental victory in the struggle with the United States," said Dr. Barrington Moore, jr., a member of Harvard's Russian Research Center.

Russian foreign policy in recent years "has been much less influenced by revolutionary considerations than is commonly supposed," Moore said in his book just published by Harvard University Press. "Soviet Politics: The Dilemma of Power."

In foreign relations, he said, Communist doctrine has contributed to the Russian drive to expand control over other countries and "Leninist theory makes it almost impossible for Russian leaders to believe in the friendly intentions of American leaders."

Shaw, 94, Undergoes Operation After Breaking Thigh in Fall

The Irish-born sage and playwright had a tumble in his hedge-hidden garden at nearby Ayot St. Lawrence yesterday. He apparently lay helpless for a short time until his servants found him.

The surgeon, L. W. Plewes, who was assisted in the 45-minute operation by Sir Thomas Fairbank, past president of the British Orthopedic Association, said the surgery was for the purpose of joining "the broken surfaces of the neck of the thigh bone."

"Although a fracture of this nature in a man of Mr. Shaw's age must be regarded as serious, his condition at present is satisfactory," the hospital bulletin added.

The whiskered wit slipped on fresh earth in his garden while his housekeeper was vacationing and only a maid and gardener were with him.

He fell victim to an infirmity he had joked about on his 90th birthday.

"When one is very old, as I am," he said then, "one of the unpleasantnesses is that your legs give in before your head does."

He added that he could count on spills "about three times a week regularly."

Shaw credits his usually good health and vitality to the fact that he is a vegetarian, teetotaler and nonsmoker.

In 1939, he was stricken with pernicious anemia, but recovered quickly. He said a published report he had eaten meat to speed his recovery was a "blazing lie."

The kind of hospital patient Shaw might be was indicated in 1948 when he was asked to send a message to the opening of a nurses' training school. He replied:

"Do people really need to be told that nurse training is important? What they really need to be told is that nurses are at present trained to kill their patients by untimely washings and unwholesome diets."

When invited to the wedding of Lord and Lady Strabolgi last March, Shaw sent his regrets on a postcard in these words:

"Old skeletons are best out of the way at such a feast. I can go no further than my garden."

Four years ago Shaw joined the Centarian Club, whose members aspire to be 100, or already have reached that age. But a year ago, he told an interviewer:

"Death, now knocking at my door, is not an unwelcome visitor."

Moon Scheduled For Total Eclipse Night of Sept. 25

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—A total eclipse of the moon scheduled for the night of September 25-26 will be visible throughout North America.

The first phase, according to astronomers at Hayden Planetarium, will begin at 9:20 p. m. (EDT) when the moon starts entering the penumbra, or incomplete shadow of the earth. At 10:54 p. m. the entire moon will be eclipsed.

Actually, the moon will not disappear from sight. If the night is clear, it will be a copper-red color. Hayden's astronomers say the weird effect is caused by the wave lengths of red light from the sun that are bent into the direct shadow by the earth's atmosphere.

The total phase of the eclipse will continue for 46 minutes.

Yanks Drop Nats Twice, Slip Into Lead by ½ Game

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ON THE high suspicion that they will be engaging the Yankees in a World Series next month, the high command of the Phillies is groping for more intelligence of the enemy and to that end the Phils have planted a spy in the midst of the Yanks. No espionage agent ever had it nicer, it must be noted.

The Yankees received Mr. George Earnshaw, the tall, handsome Swarthmore graduate who used to pitch a passel of baseball for the Athletics, with a demonstration of all the social graces, completely unruffled by his mission. Would he like a nice seat in the Griffith Stadium press box?

Povich

Earnshaw had only one more request of the Yankees, and he put it bluntly to Arthur Patterson, their traveling secretary late last Sunday afternoon after watching Joe Di Maggio put three home runs into the left field stands.

"What," he asked Patterson, "would be a nice way to pitch to Di Maggio?"

"Happy to tell you," said Patterson. "The first thing you need is a baseball. And then you need a prayer. And then if you're lucky, Di Maggio is no problem."

THAT WAS by-play. Earnshaw knew there was only one way to pitch to Di Mag—carefully. "But some of these other Yankees can be pitched to, I hope," he said. "That's where the Phils are strong. They have those good young pitchers who will listen to orders and get what they throw over the plate with stuff on it. They're sweet pitchers to work with."

Spotting the Yankee hitters, and their dislikes, is Earnshaw's chief mission, he admits. "They aren't all Di Mags. And I don't bother about Henrich or Mize. They hit everything. Berra's a problem, too. The wild-swinger is apt to hit anything a pitcher throws. But I have tabs on the others." And he patted his little black entry book.

Naturally he's watching more than the Yankee hitting. "Some of that stuff their pitchers throw we ought to lay off if we're smart. But we're interested, too, in the throwing arms of those Yankee outfielders. We ought to know which ones we can run on, and how far. And what their habit is in making cut-off plays, and which of the infielders get the throw. You don't have to be an expert to learn that—just a good observer like any baseball man."

EARNSHAW ISN'T committed to the Yankees for the rest of the season. He'll be ordered to switch to the Tigers or the Red Sox, if either of those teams threatens to take it all. "I'll scout them on the same basis. We could probably get a man more familiar with the American League than I am to give us the same reports, but he couldn't talk to our pitchers like I think I can."

If the man has special pride in his dealings with pitchers and his knowledge of hitters, that is understandable. He teamed with Lefty Grove to win a series of pennants for the Baltimore Orioles and then moved up with Grove to the A's and won three flags in a row for Connie Mack in 1929-30-31.

Earnshaw was out of baseball, he thought, when he parlayed his college degree into a commission in the Navy and rose to full commander at the Jacksonville Naval Air Station in 1942. "I thought I was through with baseball. I was getting away with it for a year, sort of incognito and liking it. But the skipper at Jacksonville found me out, and I wound up coaching his team, and worst of all, pitching most of their games."

GROVE was throwing the league's fastest ball in Earnshaw's era for the A's, and big Gawge was throwing the second fastest. That tandem entry of left and right-handed speed mopped up so many doubleheaders for Connie Mack, they breezed to the pennants. As a topflight pitcher, though, Grove outlasted Earnshaw, who burned himself out at an earlier age.

And so it was that big Gawge was demoted to relief roles and bullpen duty in his later years with the A's. It was at Yankee Stadium one day that one of Mack's pitchers was having it rough, and from the bench came the signal for Earnshaw to take over.

At that particular moment, Earnshaw was leisurely munching on a hot dog while warming up. Hearing the call to pitch, he asked his catcher, "Who's hitting next for the Yankees?" Informed that he would have to face Ruth, Gehrig and Lazzeri, big Gawge showed his great understanding of hitters by handing his half-eaten frankfurter to his bullpen batterymate, saying: "Here, hold this for me. I won't be working long."

Wayne Millner Briefs Baltimore

Redskins Will Probably Take Colts, But Not by Surprise

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Fortunately for the Redskins, the result of Sunday's league-opening game with the Colts in Baltimore won't hinge entirely on which team knows more about the other.

If that were the case, the Colts would probably win. They've already scouted the Redskins twice and the Redskins were not exactly strangers to the fellow who did the scouting, Wayne Millner.

Millner played end for the Tribe for seven years and coached Redskins' ends for three more years. The Redskins have averaged about a coach a year since Millner left the team three years ago, but their style of attack, which Millner helped teach, remains the same.

It's still the Clark Shaughnessy version of the T-formation with a few Herman Ball variations, but not enough to make Millner a stranger to the system.

"They're using pretty much the same stuff they did when I was with them, but it looks different now because they've got the players to make it work better", the former Notre Dame All-America remarked in Dallas where he saw the Redskins slap down the Detroit Lions.

A few nights later, when the Redskins turned up in Kansas City to play and beat the New York Yanks, so did Millner.

"Yep, it's still the same old stuff they're using, but they've added something they haven't had in quite a while — spirit and hustle," he said.

While Millner has bird-dogged the Redskins twice, the Tribe, on the other hand, has had only one official look at Coach Clem Crowe's Colts. Tommy Mont, assistant backfield coach, saw the Colts play the New York Yanks in Shreveport, La., but he was there primarily to scout the Yanks.

As a result, Coach Herman Ball flew out to Milwaukee Sunday to see the Baltimoreans play the Green Bay Packers. They got beat, 16-14, and it was their seventh straight exhibition defeat. But they convinced Ball they're nowhere near as bad as their record shows and now it's up to Ball to convince the Redskins.

"They'd better believe me too or else it will be just too bad Sunday," Ball said yesterday.

Herman is no alarmist and, unlike most coaches, he's no professional sobber. He feels the Redskins should win Sunday and is confident they will. At the same time, he's telling his players they won't be able to play patty-cake and win the game, as many fans believe they can do in view of Baltimore's winless preseason game record.

IN SHORT — After being in town for five days the Redskins will be officially welcomed today when the Advertising Club throws its annual luncheon for the players at the Statler. Friday, the Touchdown Club picks up the check for a similar affair.

Bosox Favored To Win Pennant, Yanks, Tigers Next

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (AP).—Broadway odds-makers have installed the Boston Red Sox as the favorites in the red-hot American League pennant race. The prices quoted are 7½ or 8½ to 5.

Both the Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees are bracketed at 2 to 1 with the skidding Cleveland Indians at 15 to 1.

The Red Sox, winners of 23 out of their last 26 games, are in third place by a full game with 18 left to play. Of these 12 will be played away from home and six in Fenway Park.

Ford, Lopat Baffle Griffs, 5-1, 6-2

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

In two easy stages—easy victories over the Nats that is—the Yankees eased themselves into the American League lead yesterday with a mop-up of both portions of a doubleheader at Griffith Stadium. The scores were 5 to 1, and 6 to 2.

Whitey Ford, the kid from Kansas City who has won six in a row to give the Yankees a whoping lift, dispatched the Nats with three hits in the first game. The Nats broke their batting slump in the second game. They got six hits off Tommy Byrne and Ed Lopat.

The two clubs showed up on the field at noon for the first game, for train-catching purposes. The Nats could have done almost as well by failing to show. A first-inning single by Mele, another by Noren in the third, and a two-out single by Grasso, in the fourth was all the hits they ever did get off young Ford and his left-handed offerings.

Al Sima gave the Yankees something of a tussle of it in the first game, but never did recover from the two runs the Yanks scored in the fourth inning. And then the Yanks piled into him and Conrado Marrerro for three more runs in the eighth.

Sandalio Consuegra was jumped for four quick runs by the Yanks in the second game. When Tommy Byrne threatened to pitch a 4-1 lead away, he was relieved by Eddie Lopat in the fifth and the Nats never did come up with another run.

Another of the Yankee kids, outfielder Jackie Jensen, helped pour it on the Nats in the opener when he led off the fourth inning with a two-bagger. He scored on Berra's single to center, and singles by DiMaggio and Bauer added up to a 2-1 lead for the Yankees.

In the eighth Jensen piled it on some more. He wafted a homer into the left-field stands to launch a three-run inning. Before he retired, Sima walked Rizzuto. Marrero moved in and walked DiMag and then Bauer dropped a fuzzy run-laden single over Dente's head to make it 5-1. Mize singled to right and it was 6-1.

Mele Drives in Run

Back in the first inning a pair of walks and Mele's single produced the Nats' only run off Ford. Thereafter the young man was the complete boss. Only one Washington athlete got as far as second base in the last eight innings, and in the last four they couldn't even get to first.

DiMaggio's double to center started Consuegra on the road to defeat in the second inning of the second game. Singles by Johnson and Coleman followed, and then Byrne struck a mighty blow for himself with a two-run double to left that gave him a 3-0 lead.

They made it 4-0 in the third on a pair of walks and Mize's single to left, and knocked out most of the Nats' notions of getting back in the ball game with a two-run rally in the ninth. Johnson's double off the left field wall, a walk to Coleman, and Johnny Hopp's two-bagger to right rocked Consuegra for two runs.

Mickey Grasso drove in a run for the Nats in the fourth with a single to left after Vernon opened with a single and took second on Coan's safe bunt. Byrne didn't last out the fifth. He walked Yost, and with one out pitched a single to Noren.

Lopat replaced Byrne and the Nats got a run home when the Yanks failed to turn Vernon's grounder into a double play.

Nats' Rally Peters Out

With two out in the eighth, the Nats suddenly put the tying runs on base when Mele singled and Coan lashed a two-bagger over first base. But Lopat got rid of Dente on a fly ball and the Nats were a gone gang.

IN SHORT . . . Co-Owner Del Webb of the Yankess, by great coincidence, will have "business interests" in Cleveland and Detroit when the Yanks play in those two towns . . . There was panic among the Nats in the second game when Gil Coan crashed against the left field wall while chasing Johnson's double. Despite the skull fracture he suffered in June, Coan waved his mates away and continued in the game . . . the Nats had one distinction in their double defeat. In the second game they saw a Yankee streak conk out, after they had hit at least one homer in their last 12 games . . . Manager Casey Stengel planned to pitch Lopat against Cleveland today, but now will switch to Allie Reynolds.

Fan Who Caught DiMag's Homer Isn't a Bit Sorry

Charlie Buchanan, 21-year-old service station attendant, last night said he was the leftfield bleacher fan who caught the second of Joe DiMaggio's three home runs at Griffith Stadium Sunday and added "it wouldn't have gone into the bleachers.

He said he wasn't calling The Washington Post sports department to confess, but to inquire if DiMaggio's wallop was a legal homer inasmuch as he interfered with the ball.

Buchanan said Eddie Stewart, who made a leaping try for the ball, told him "to keep your—hands off the ball." Charlie said he wasn't sorry he did what he did even though it cost the Nats a run.

"I got a baseball, that's all I care about."

Shirley Povich Covers 'Game of Day' Beginning Today

Beginning with the Nats' series today in Detroit The Washington Post's Sports Columnist Shirley Povich will cover the exciting American League pennant race, reporting the "Game of the Day" right up to the end of the race on October 1.

These games will be selected on a day-to-day basis. They will include the New York-Detroit series in Detroit, September 14, 15, 16, as well as Boston's invasion of Detroit, September 17-18.

THIS IS BASEBALL?—Irv Noren, Washington outfielder, lifts Phil Rizzuto, New York Yankees' shortstop, off his feet as he breaks up a double play try going into second in the fifth inning of the second game at Griffith Stadium yesterday. Noren was out, Gerry Coleman to Rizzuto, on Mickey Vernon's grounder. Rizzuto's throw to first was too late to get Vernon.

CONGRATULATIONS IN REVERSE—It's usually the catcher who congratulates the pitcher after the latter has won a ball game, but Ed Ford, Yankee rookie lefthander, reversed the procedure yesterday after beating the Nats, 5-1, on three hits. Here, Ford, right, embraces Catcher Yogi Berra

Golfers Fight E. Potomac Fill-In Plan

Public golfers yesterday started a heated protest over the Army Engineers' plan to fill in parts of two courses at East Potomac.

Golfer Keith Kallio drafted a petition for the East Potomac Club, unofficial organization of publinx golfers, that will be presented to Congress when it has 1000 signatures.

The petition reads in part: "We feel that a great injustice is about to be done to us and to thousands of golfers who play the public courses in Washington, D. C.

"We wish to vigorously protest the decision to dump mud and sand on two golf courses at East Potomac . . . These are the only two courses in Washington that can be classified as a real test of golf . . . At present there are not enough courses to take care of all golfers who wish to play. It is proposed to take away two courses, when, if anything, two more should be added."

The plan for building up the land at Hains Point, proposed by the National Park Service with the co-operation of the Army Engineers, calls for the depositing of 400,500 cubic yards of dredged sand and mud from the Potomac upon parts of the B and C courses at East Potomac.

A meeting of representatives of the two Government agencies and the S. G. Loeffler Company, operators of the public golf courses, yesterday selected holes 4, 5, 6, and 7 of the D course and five holes, not yet selected of the B course, to be covered.

DAVE HELLER.

He Has No Regrets

Curt Simmons, Who Proved a Good Pitcher Hopes He'll Turn Out to Be a Good Soldier

Editor's Note: PFC. Curt Simmons was aboard another section when a train bearing members of his National Guard Division was rammed near Coshocton, Ohio, early today, killing at least 32 persons and injuring scores.)

By Joe Reichler

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12 (AP).—You're Curt Simmons, a major league baseball player. You're a pitcher, and a good one. One of the best in the business.

You're sitting on top of the world. Your club—the Philadelphia Phillies—is in first place and apparently on the way to a championship. The first in 35 years.

You have cause to rejoice. While you're modest, you know deep down in your heart that you had as much to do as anybody with your team's success. You know the Phils wouldn't have had a chance without your 17 victories. Indeed, it has been a dream come true.

Your success is the greater because it did not come easy. You had to overcome many obstacles, not the least of which was caused by the tremendous ballyhoo buildup you got. More than once you wished you were just another unsung kid coming up the normal way instead of the highly publicized $65,000 bonus baby.

The heartaches over your early failures are still not fully healed because they were so recent. It seems only yesterday that you were being referred to as "The Flop of '49."

But today you're on top. You're a star. Your future is assured.

Then it happens. Your country is at war or virtually is. It needs you. Before you realize what has happened you're in the Army. The first big leaguer to be called. Sure, you were expecting it. You had been prepared for it for weeks. But when it came, it literally took your breath away.

When the first day's excitement has worn off, the full significance of it hits you like a ton of bricks. One more game, maybe two, and you'll be giving up baseball. Perhaps for a year or two, if you're lucky. Most likely longer. Perhaps even for good. Nobody knows. And you are only 21 with a long, brilliant future ahead of you.

What do you think of as you fasten the belt around your khaki coat or adjust your Army cap to the correct angle? Are you bitter? Do you bemoan your fate? What are you really thinking?

"I'm thinking what kind of a soldier I'll make," says young Simmons simply. "I'm going to try my best to make a good one."

That's all. No crying. No kicks. No regrets. No special favors. Private first-class Curtis T. Simmons of Egypt, Pa., would like to become a "good soldier."

'Outclassed' Retorts Taylor

Greenberg Says It's 'Disgrace' To Lose Four to St. Louis

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11 (AP).—Hank Greenberg was boiling mad today about the four straight games his skidding Cleveland Indians lost to St. Louis. Manager Lou Boudreau blamed "stupid baseball."

"I call it a disgrace to lose four straight to the St. Louis Browns," said General Manager Greenberg.

Greenberg declared there were going to be some roster changes. "You can bet on this," he said, "if we lose next year it won't be with the same team."

In St. Louis Manager Zach Taylor of the St. Louis Browns said the Cleveland Indians didn't play "stupid baseball."

Retorted Zach Taylor: "I can't remember Cleveland making any stupid plays. The class of ball that we played in that series would have beaten any other of the contenders.

"Cleveland wasn't beaten by any stupid plays; we just outclassed them, that's all."

A Brownie player suggested sending handkerchiefs to Cleveland.

"They're nothing but cry babies. Everything is fine if they beat you, but if you beat those guys they bawl like babies," he said.

Cup Regatta Power Boat Week

Marine Pageant Scheduled Friday

By Happy Walker

WELL OVER a million dollars worth of speedboat hulls, motors and equipment will begin drifting into Washington in the next few days for the opening of the President's Cup Regetta power boat race week on Friday.

Walker

With all the trimmings of a Hollywood production, a three-day water festival gets underway Friday with a spectacular marine pageant and an aquatic show at 8:30 p. m. off Hains Point seawall.

Scheduled on the program is an illuminated boat parade with upwards of 75 decorative craft already entered. Headed by Maj. Robert Barrett as Grand Marshall, the parade will pass in review up the Georgetown Channel.

One of the Nation's top water ski shows "Dramatis Personnae" will be included in the three-hour show, making its initial appearance in Washington at the President's Cup aquacade.

Included in the cast are a galaxy of Canadian and U. S. ski champions with Miss Dottie Grover, the featured water ballerina. Miss Grover, national sweetheart of Sigma Chi, Canadian ski champ and U. S. runner-up, is the star of the Ski-Belles.

Produced by Bruce Parker, mastermind of the New York and Chicago World Fairs ski shows, the cast includes such national artists as Chuck Tilghor, Evie Wolford, Evora Ware, Sandy Schard, Jane Conway, Winnie Wolford and the Clown Prince of Skiing, George "Doppy" Dougherty.

A concert by the U. S. Navy Band and a display by the District of Columbia fireboat round out the program.

Reserved seats for the pageant may be had at $1.50 per person and general admission seats at $1 per person. Seats for the pageant and Saturday and Sunday speedboat races are available at the Willard Hotel, Arcade Pontiac Co., 1437 Irving st. nw., Mayflower Marine Services, 1300 Maine ave. sw., S. King Fulton, 804 Maine ave. sw., Nash Marine Service, 930 Maine ave. sw., H. R. Robinson, 820 Maine ave. sw., and Frank Del Vecchio, 1212 11th st. se.

Mrs. Egenroad's 86 Wins Medal

Mrs. Charles Egenroad won medalist honors with 86 in qualifying play for the women's championship yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Mrs. George Bailey shot 88 and Mrs. Henry Riley 89 on a course made heavy by rain.

Match play will begin Tuesday in the title flight and four other classes. Consolation rounds open Wednesday. Prizes will be awarded at a luncheon Friday.

Seven Games Listed for Ellipse Today

Amateur baseball moves into a big-league setting at 8 o'clock tonight at Griffith Stadium and the pre-game trappings for the official opening of the All-American tournament are top-drawer, too.

Heurich Brewers, defending titlists, meet powerful Allentown, Pa., at the ball park. Vice-President Alben Barkley is expected to throw out the first ball.

Greenbelt High's band, drum, bugle corps and majorettes will start the entertainment at 7:30. Sandra Stahl, Miss Washington of 1950, will be introduced as queen of the tourney by Arch McDonald, master of ceremonies.

In addition to the Heurich club, the D. C. Police team will represent Washington. Fourteen out-of-town teams will be in the fight to oust the Brewers.

Serious tournament play actually begins this afternoon on the Ellipse. Seven games are scheduled. Games Wednesday and Thursday also will be played on the Ellipse.

Today's schedule on the Ellipse: 1 p. m.—Maryland State vs. New York Federation, North; Pittsburgh vs. Waterbury, Con., South; Brooklyn vs. Springfield, Mass., East; New York State vs. Bessemer, Ala., West. 3:30 p. m.—Baltimore vs. Holyoke, Mass., South; Zanesville, Ohio, vs. Wilkes-Barre, Pa., East; D. C. Police vs. Elkton, Md., West.

The deciding games will be played in Griffith Stadium with a twi-night doubleheader Friday and semifinal and final games on Saturday and Sunday.

Tickets for all Griffith Stadium games are on sale at all Peoples Drug Stores, Griffith Stadium, Arena, Atlas, The Fairway, Mitchel's, Champion Sports, Inc., and Wilson Sporting Goods Co.

Primo Carnera Wrestles Rocca To 60-Minute Draw

Although forced indoors last night, Primo Carnera and Antohio Rocca gave a capacity crowd of 2500 the full treatment at Turner's Arena, wrestling to a 60-minute draw.

The match originally was scheduled for Griffith Stadium but threatening weather necessitated the shift. Hundreds were turned away at Turner's.

It was the third meeting between Rocca and the former heavyweight boxing champ of the world. Rocca won the first and the second ended in a draw.

Heurich Puts Firemen Out of Series

Heurich Brewers ousted D. C. Firemen from the city championship series yesterday on the Ellipse, 4-3.

The Brewers will meet the D. C. Police team in the city finals after the All-American Amateur tournament. Heurich, defending champs, and the Police both will represent Washington in the tourney.

Right-fielder Herb Good, with three hits in four trips, led Heurich's winning attack yesterday. Veteran Otis Printz scattered nine hits to be the winning pitcher.

Porter, Riley, Kielty Win In Amateur

ATLANTA, Sept. 11 (AP).—Mrs. Dorothy Germain Porter successfully opened defense of her title today with a neat 3-2 disposal of Mrs. Herbert O. Breault in the first round of the National Women's amateur tournament.

Dot Kielty, the wartime bomber ferry pilot from Long Beach, Calif., and one of this golden anniversary tournament's topmost favorites, had far less trouble than she expected in dropping Mary Lena Faulk 5—4. Miss Kielty was two over par going out but tightened up sharply on the rear nine to close out her Thomasville, Ga., opponent on the 15th hole.

Beverly Hanson, another of the favorites, won an easy 9—8 romp over Mrs. Lee K. Alexander, Syracuse, N. Y. Miss Hanson is from Pasadena, Calif.

Another of the supercharged favorites—Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex.—had an easier time than she and the gallery expected. Miss Riley, the Southern and Western champion, soundly walloped Miss Allee Chatham of Greenwood, Miss., 8-7.

For the great Glenna Collett Vare, six times National champion, it was too much youth and vigor from her 15-year-old opponent. Little Barbara McIntire of Toledo, Ohio, defeated Mrs. Vare, of Merion, Pa., 3-1. Tomorrow young Barbara meets Dot Kielty.

The 1948 champion, Grace Lenczyk of Newington, Conn, withdrew. She wired the United States Golf Association that she would be unable to play but did not give a reason.

Looks Like 'Pretty Fair Team'

Wade Has Talent Galore at Duke

(This is another in a series of articles on area and Southern Conference football teams.)

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 11.—Any time now, Coach Wallace Wade, in a rare expression of optimism, will boldly declare, "It looks like Duke might have a fair team."

When he does, the folks in Carolina will know that Duke is loaded, and Wade expects his team to land one of the top bowl bids. That's the way it was in 1941, last time Duke played in the Rose Bowl.

Wallace Wade

Wade hasn't cut loose with the statement in public yet, but his confidants say that he's of a mind to any day. And with good reason.

He has four of the best ofensive backs in the South in Tailbacks Billy Cox and Glenn Wild, Wingback Tommy Powers and Fullback Jack Mounie.

He has so many good ends, Mike Souchak, Ceep Youmans, Blaine Earon and Frank Gibson, all vets, and Sophomore Piney Field, that he doesn't know which two will play on offense, which two will be on defense, and which will sit on the bench.

Duke lost its best tackle, All-America Lou Allen, by graduation but ready to step right in is James Lawrence, a 200-pounder, who goes by the nickname of "Tank," because nothing short of a bazzoka can stop his charging, blocking and tackling.

FIELD AND LAWRENCE spearheaded last year's Duke frosh, rated by many as the greatest in the history of the school. The team beat the frosh teams of North Carolina, William and Mary, Wake Forest and N. C. State by at least three touchdowns each, and nosed out Navy's Plebes, 20-19.

Thirty-three members of that prize freshman team are now on the varsity squad of 66.

Field is the favorite player of Ace Parker, all-time Duke great and a backfield coach there now. Only 160 pounds, Field will be the smallest end ever to play at Duke.

A product of Woodberry Forest (Va.) Prep, Field came to Duke without the lure of an athletic scholarship. His uncle is a trustee here. Piney was ready to quit the freshmen last year, because he thought he was too small.

Coach Horace Hendrickson talked him out of it, installed him as regular wingback, and Piney went wild. He can run the 100 in 10 seconds flat, and he got a chance to prove it in his first game against W. & M. He caught a flat pass on his own goal line and went all the way for a touchdown. Later, he carried 46 yards to set up another. It went like that all year.

WADE MOVED HIM to end this season because he already had a good wingback in Powers. In his first varsity scrimmage, Piney caught six passes, five for touchdowns. He's the talk of Duke.

Parker thinks he'll develop into one of Duke's all-time greats.

The story of Powers' development into Duke's top wingback is something special too. Powers' dad, a great baseball fan, sent Tom to Duke because of his admiration of the Blue Devils' baseball coach, Jack Coombs, former Athletics' pitcher.

Mr. Powers envisioned Tom as a big league third baseman some day.

Tom concentrated on baseball his first year here, dabbling a bit in intramural football. He caught the eye of the sports editor of the school newspaper, and he kept giving Tom rave notices.

Wade read one of the stories, looked up young Powers, and asked him out for practice. Just like it happens in the movies, Tom made the varsity. Against Wake Forest, Tom reeled off a 97-yard touchdown run. Baseball is secondary to him now.

WITH TAILBACK COX, Maryland and George Washington are painfully familiar. Two years ago, Cox then a second stringer, ran 80 yards for a touchdown to beat the Terps at Griffith stadium, 13-12. In the last two years against G. W., Cox ran for three touchdowns and passed for three more.

There are a few spots Wade must smooth over, like blocking back and two of the defensive backfield positions. He has no experienced hands at those posts.

So far, Carson Leach, a 195-pound soph, has the inside track on the blocking back job. And Sophs Ray Green, of Fayetteville, and Bill Karlah, Burlington, N. C., appear headed for the backfield assignments.

Wade is taking special pains to make sure that his team's defenses will not be a liability. Seven of Duke's 10 opponents use the T formation, so Wade has made the unique move of hiring an authority on the T formation, Ken Hickman, former Virginia assistant, to train a special T formation platoon.

Hickman will teach his platoon new surprise plays to spring in scrimmages to sharpen the defense unit. That will be Hickman's only job.

Duke opens its season September 23 against South Carolina, and then meets Pitt, Tennessee, N. C. State, Richmond, Maryland, Georgia Tech, Wake Forest, Virginia Tech and North Carolina.

It's a rugged schedule. Wade calls it the toughest since he has been at Duke. Tennessee and Maryland are the toughest of the lot. If Duke beats the Terps, it figures to regain the Southern Conference title after three years.

Amateur's 68 Equals Course Mark

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

Lanky Gil Willett of Prince Georges Country Club did three things all at once in yesterday's Middle Atlantic Pro-Am at Kenwood Country Club.

(1) He equalled the course record for amateurs with a two-below-par 68. (2) He won the amateur sweepstakes with 68—3—65, and (3) combined with Pro Al Houghton of Prince Georges to win the Pro-Am with a best ball 63.

Only one club member has equaled par all year at Kenwood with its tricky, sloping greens. Yesterday, however, Willett solved the greens perfectly—one-putting four holes. Except for a slow start in which he took bogeys on one and three, Willett parred or birdied every hole. He was even with the book at the end of the first nine holes; then birdied 11 and 17 to compile his winning score.

In the Pro Sweeps, it looked like Home Pro George Diffenbaugh was going to be a shoo-in all afternoon until the next-to-last man, Mus O'Linger, Winchester, Va., pro, came up with a 35—33—68, to beat Diffenbaugh by a stroke.

O'Linger resorted to heroics to compile his winning score. He eagled the seventeenth, a 425-yard, par five hole, with an enormous drive, a three-iron shot, and a long putt. Until O'Linger came in, Diffenbaugh led the field by two strokes all afternoon.

Washington linksmen all but monopolized the Pro-Am. Sligo Pro Roger Peacock and M. E. Hearndon of Boonesboro, Va., finished a stroke behind Houghton and Willett with 31—33—64, and then 10 of the next 10 winning teams were locals.

Gonzaga's Joe Kozik Sings Blues With Feeling This Season

(This is another in a series on area high school football teams.)

By Bill Gilbert

Joe Kozik is one of the most convincing blues singers.

Kozik, football coach at Gonzaga High, always has been a gloomy guy, even when his Eagles were winning everything there was to be won.

This year is no exception. His wailing isn't any louder, but it has more substance.

He has only one letterman returning from last year's city championship team — Guard Bucky Byrne. The rest of the team is made up of sophomores, the majority of them out for varsity football for the first time.

Part of Kozik's sad state of affairs can be traced to last year's junior varsity team, which won only one game—that by a touchdown—while losing seven. Kozik was counting on the junior varsity to replace men that he knew he would lose through graduation.

Leo Di Valentino will be the team workhorse this year. Kozik is going to have him do everything, feeling from Leo's limited play last year that he might be able to take up part of the slack.

Di Valentino will do the passing, running, punting and blocking and he solves Kozik's problem partially in that he can do all those things. He leaves it unsolved partially in that he can't do them all at once.

Lane Collins, a driving young back, will fill another spot and Mickey Lucas is expected to be the quarterback, although he lacks experience.

Byrne will be a valuable man up front with his experience and should help his cousin, Johnny Byrne, develop into a good tackle. Joe Lasick, 14-year-old 220-pounder, will play the other tackle spot.

Kozik says that he has nothing" this year and that it is the "worst team I ever had." He even admits that he doesn't hope to beat his arch rival, St. John's, this year. "I hope they drop football a week before we play them," Kozik laments.

D. C. Amateur Starts Today But Who's to Beat Brownell

A big question hangs over today's qualifying round play in the District Golf Association's Men's Amateur Tournament. It is who, if anybody, can beat Bobby Brownell, Chevy Chase's diminutive linksman who has won the title four times running?

Brownell has taken the title decisively every year since 1946, and prospects for dethroning him are not bright. From the record, Ralph Bogart of Chevy Chase, former District and Maryland State champ, and Col. Jim Wilson, 1948 All Air Force champ from Army Navy, seem to have the best chance of turning the trick.

Brownell beat Bogart in the finals last year, 9 and 8, in a 36-hole match at Kenwood, and defeated Wilson, one up, in their only meeting this year at Hot Springs, Va.

The tournament gets under way today at Congressional Country Club with a field of 46 trying for 32 qualifying places. Post entries are being accepted and tournament officials expect the field to grow to almost 60. Match play begins tomorrow and continues through Friday.

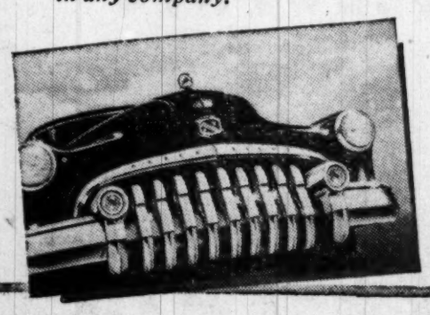
Better Buy Buick!

YOU CAN SEE here how smart it is—don't have to be told that it's the most quickly identified car on the road today.

You probably know that the engine under that broad bonnet is a Fireball straight-eight valve-in-head engine and a lively stepper in any company.



FOUR-WAY FOREFRONT—This rugged front end (1) sets the style note, (2) saves on repair costs—vertical bars are individually replaceable, (3) avoids "locking horns," (4) makes parking and garaging easier.

You can check the abundance of its room by the simple expedient of taking the family and trying out its spaciousness at the nearest Buick dealer's—and a very few minutes on the open road will satisfy you that all-coil springing, low-pressure tires and Buick's torque-tube drive really do produce a ride that is matchless for its soft comfort.

BUT RIGHT NOW, it may be that the money angle is the thing uppermost in your mind, and on that we'd like to make two points:

All our records go to show that this is the most economical Buick ever built. It is easy on gas, on oil, on tires, on upkeep.

And if you choose it with Dynaflow Drive,* it immediately eliminates all chance of friction-clutch repair and replacement—not to mention greatly reducing rear-axle and transmission maintenance.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Best of all, your initial outlay is a highly favorable one—whatever Buick you buy. For these brawny straight-eights—built rugged and solid for durable service—are priced at a level that makes them a standout buy in any price class.

Yes, better buy a Buick. Your dealer will be glad to demonstrate, glad to work out all the arithmetic of a deal. See him right away and get an order signed.

Thank You!

WE ARE GRATEFUL that the IUE's published statement has brought up the subject of how good the GE offer is and, particularly, how much the benefits of the increased insurance and pension programs are worth to GE employees.

There is nothing we would rather talk about.

That's because there's nothing right now we would rather have all our employees and their neighbors fully understand.

General Electric's offer stands out more and more favorably as more light is shed on it . . . light as to how the wage offer compares with the best among recent, highly publicized settlements . . . light as to how much our already advanced pension and insurance program—together with the further outstanding improvements now offered—is worth to our employees, if they individually had to buy their insurance and pensions on the open market.

The total value, of course, of General Electric's benefit program is the result of combining former GE benefits with our recently offered pension and insurance improvements.

Thus, the only proper way to compare GE with other companies—which have been making pension and insurance settlements for the first time during the past year—is to add GE's new offers to its broad, existing program—and then to compare the total benefits which employees receive under each of the various programs.

Let's look again at the bare listing, below, of the main features, in order to get the main idea.

Wages

10¢ an hour total general wage increase for all GE employees; with an average of 5¢ in effect now, 5¢ more to come on settlement. This 10¢ compares with 10¢ at Chrysler in August, 8¢ at Ford September 1, and 9¢ at General Motors (4¢ June 1, and 5¢ September 1).

An additional 5¢ to 5½¢ an hour to certain skilled trades at many of our locations; in effect since June. This is equal to or above the skilled trades increases given by General Motors in June, Chrysler in August, and Ford in September.

A reopening of wage issues within six months of settlement.

Pensions

$125 a month guaranteed minimum retirement incomes, after 25 years of service under the GE pension plan. There are no ceilings; pensions go up as pay and service go up. And there are also pensions for employees who retire with one or more years of service under the plan.

Other plans in the news have $100, $104, or $117.50 as the maximum for 25 years service—and some go to $125 for 30 years.

But under the GE plan, $125 a month (including Social Security) is just the starting-point—not the stopping-point as with the $100, $104, $117.50 and $125 maximums (including Social Security) of the recent well-known settlements.

For example, employees averaging more than $1.50 an hour get more than $125 a month for 25 years under the GE plan—still more for longer service.

A GE employee retiring at 65 after averaging $75 a week for 25 years under the plan would get $153 a month; after 30 years, $167 a month; after 35 years, $182 a month; after 40 years, $196 a month; and after 45 years, $211 a month.

Additional Features of GE Pension Plan

Employees who, at any age and for any reason, leave the Company after 20 years or more of service under the plan may leave their contributions in the plan and then enjoy a pension at normal or optional retirement age, continuing as long as they live.

Employees who leave the Company before 20 years of service get back their contributions plus interest but, of course, do not then get a pension from the Company.

Further, under the proposed plan, an employee who dies after retirement or after attaining age 60 (55 for women) is guaranteed a total of five years payments of the monthly Company pension as provided in the plan, or an amount equal to the return of his own contributions with interest, whichever is larger. Any balance of such amount which has not been paid to him will go to his beneficiary.

There are many additional features in the proposed GE pension plan, for instance: employees who retire before age 65 under the optional early retirement provision, with fifteen years or more of credited service, would receive a supplemental payment of $45 per month until reaching age 65, when Social Security payments normally start; and employees who become totally and permanently disabled after 15 years of service under the plan would be eligible to receive a disability pension of more than $70 a month.

A comparison of this proposed GE pension plan with the three recent CIO major-industry settlements will show GE employees to be far and away the leaders in total benefits available.

Insurance

The GE offer contains important new and expanded benefits for GE employees including: life insurance, insurance after retirement, accidental death and dismemberment benefits, weekly sickness and accident insurance, hospitalization benefits, surgical benefits, maternity benefits, and hospitalization and surgical benefits after retirement.

And, under the weekly sickness and accident insurance provision, insured employees would receive approximately 60 per cent of straight-time earnings, up to a maximum of $35 a week, for each of the 26 weeks of disability following the first week out because of a non-occupational accident or illness.

Resulting Value of Insurance and Pension Benefits

The value of the GE pension and insurance programs, based on what any individual would have to pay for similar protection and future security bought directly outside the Company, has been explained to our employees and their unions since the middle of July as "benefits ranging in estimated value from 15¢ to 19¢ an hour for a man averaging $3000 a year, and from 20¢ to 28¢ an hour for a man averaging $4000 a year."*

"These net benefit values are over and above anything you would contribute. They represent the value to you of what the Company actually pays out for these benefits, plus the greater-benefits-per-dollar the Company obtains through buying for thousands of employees, compared with what you as one individual could get buying for yourself."*

Holidays

General Electric offers an extra paid holiday—Election Day—making seven paid holidays for all GE employees; with vacations up to three weeks.

Totals

Thus, to GE employees the GE offer can really mean: wage increases of 10¢ to 15½¢ an hour, pension and insurance values increased to where they are worth 15¢ to 28¢ an hour to the employee—his cost for similar benefits if bought directly outside.

*These GE wage offers, plus the value to the employee of the GE pension and insurance programs as further improved in our offer, are obviously worth 25¢ to 43½¢ an hour to our employees on the individual basis already indicated above and in our previous longer explanations.

Full Details

The above is only the bare outline of some of the features, in order to give the main idea. Civil Service Prepares Orders on Handling Of Temporary Jobs

The Civil Service Commission yesterday began a complex job of drafting regulations to Federal agencies on how to handle promotions, transfers and reinstatements to classified jobs, all of which must be "temporary" under a new law.

At the same time, the commission confirmed the story here Saturday, despite denials elsewhere, that most personnel actions are now on a temporary basis. It sent a memo yesterday to each agency calling its attention to the personnel rider which it decided has been in effect since September 2.

Personnel actions taken since September 2 will stand as "temporary," Civil Service officials explained, even though the Senate kills the rider. In order to wipe out the rider completely the Senate would have to add its own rider to give the Civil Servce Commission the power to make all promotions, transfers, and reinstatements since September 2 in a regular manner.

The rider also will make it tough on former Federal workers who were laid off and who are being called back to defense jobs. It permits them to be hired only at their salaries and grades at the time they were laid off.

On the surface, that appears fair enough. But any number of Commerce people are in this unhappy spot: they were in grades 7 and 9. During the rounds of lay-offs they were demoted to grades 4 and 5 before they were finally laid-off. Now the department is trying to get them to return to their old 7 and 9 jobs—but under the law it can only pay them grade 4 and 5 salaries.

The Administration is fighting to kill the amendment in the Senate because of the above and hundreds of other inequities that will develop under it.

The rider is on the 16-billion-dollar supplemental budget bill that passed the House and is now in the Senate committee.

But Congress passed a resolution that made funds in the supplemental bill available to Federal agencies under "terms and conditions" provided in the House bill. The personnel rider is one of the "terms," and that's why it became effective on September 2, the day the President signed the resolution into law.

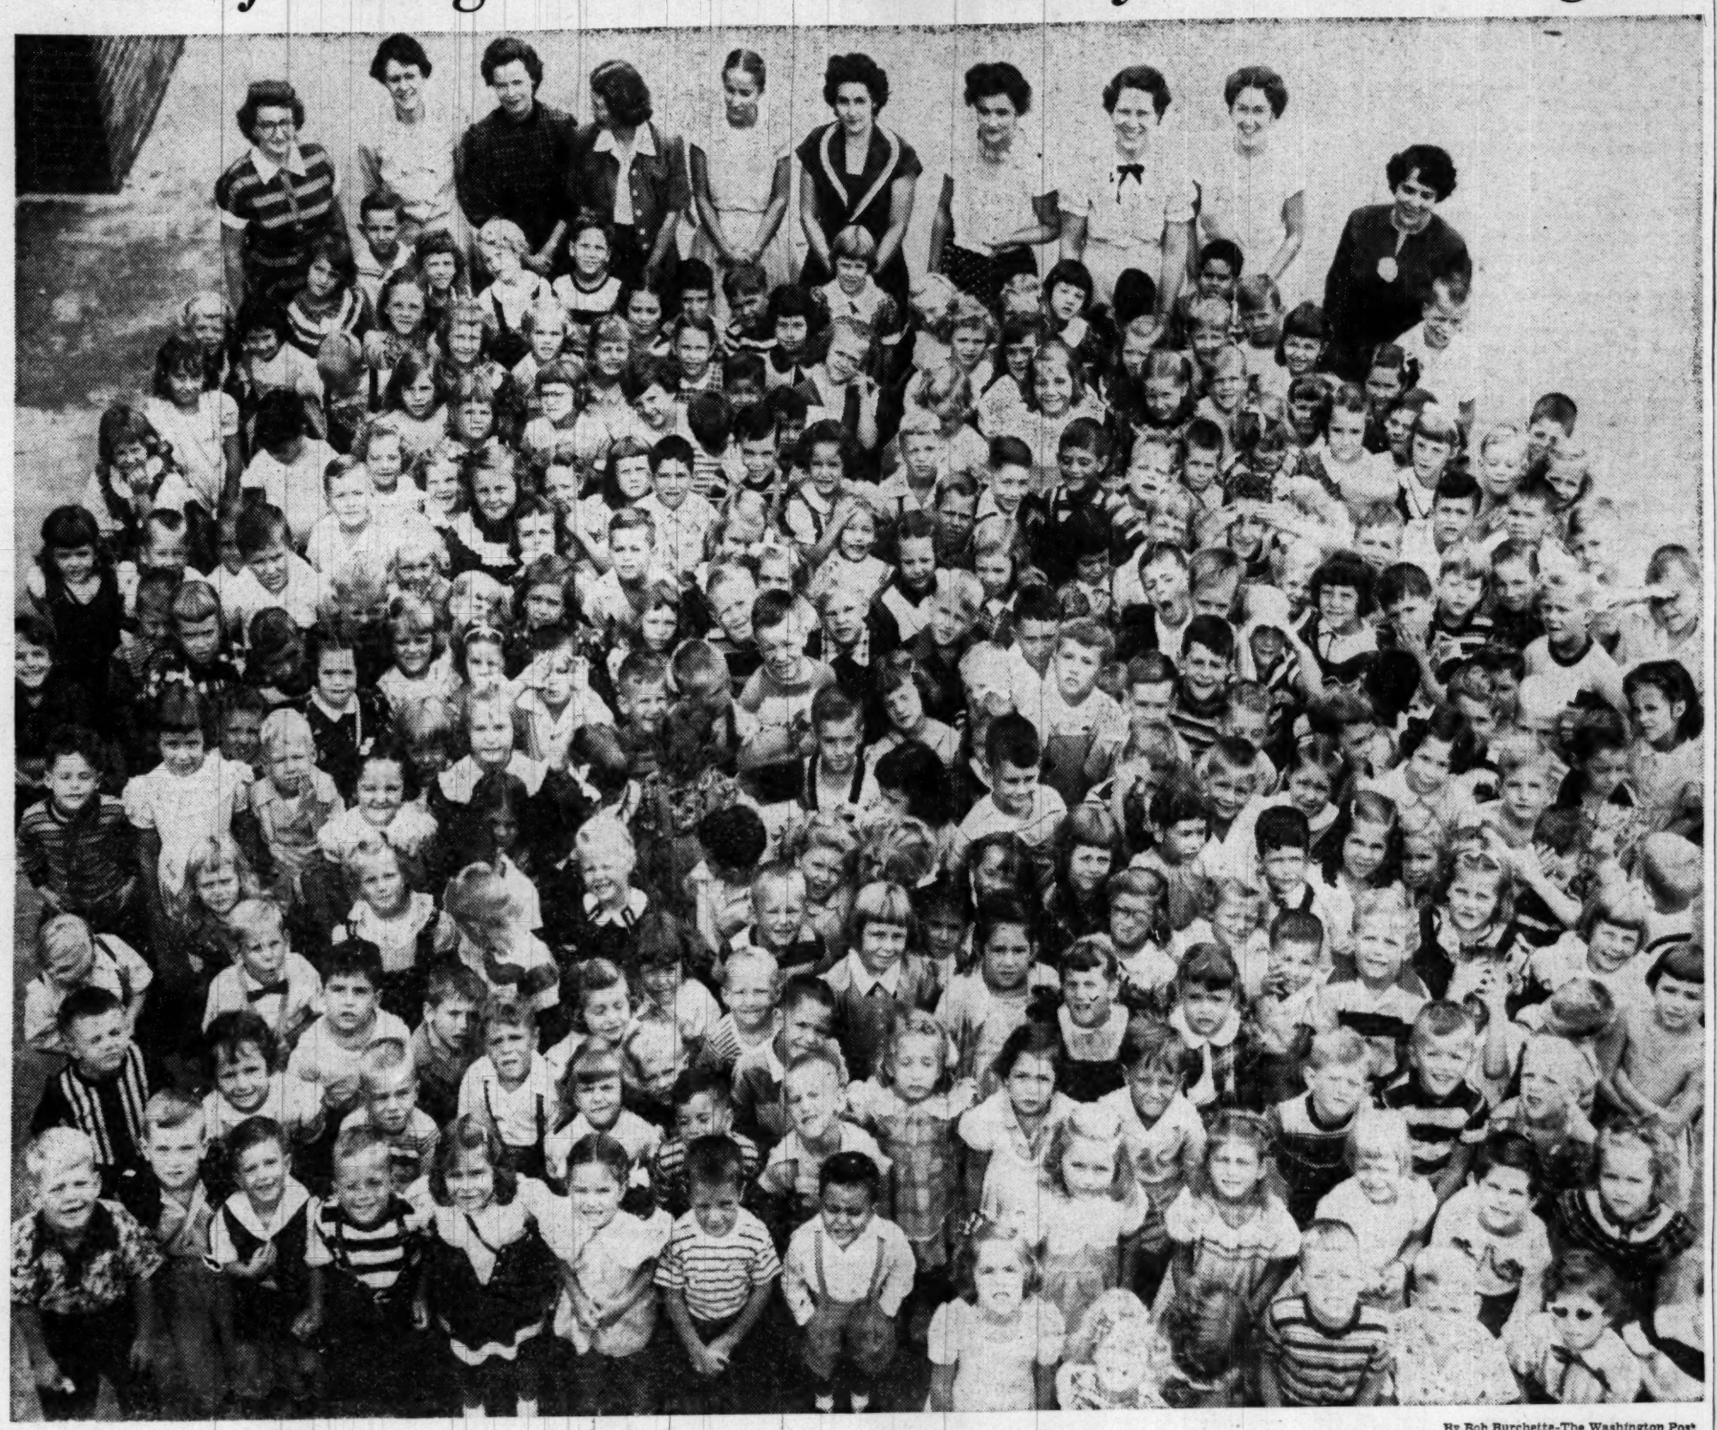
A Sea of Young Faces as School Days Are Back Again



By Bob Burchette-The Washington Post

KIDS, KIDS, KIDS—Almost 300 kindergarten and first-grade students showed up yesterday at the new Stanton Elementary School, Naylor rd. and Alabama ave. se. Gathered in front of their teachers are the 230 who arrived in the morning and an additional 60 appeared in the afternoon. Mrs. Elnora Kidd, the principal, is second from left in the line of teachers. Dividing the students among the teachers gives an average of more than 30 for each teacher to take care of. Total enrollment at the Stanton School is 749

D. C. Public Schools List 86,713 on First Day

Lower Enrollment Than Was Expected Attributed to Shift In Area Population

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

District public schools opened their doors yesterday and 86,713 students entered.

The enrollment, though it topped last year's figure by more than 300 students, was considered low by officials. It was split nearly equally between white and Negro students. White schools recorded 43,704 students, Negro schools 43,009.

The figures were regarded as an indication of Greater Washington's shifting population. Last year on opening day there were 45,281 white and 41,119 Negro students.

The Negro high schools gained 342 students, while the white high schools dropped 863.

In Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, where schools also opened yesterday, enrollments in the white schools soared.

William S. Schmidt, assistant superintendent of Prince Georges schools, said the total number would exceed 31,500. Last year's figure was 28,500.

Silver Hill Elementary School was an example. The three-room school last year had 89 students. Officials expected 125 to 130 this year. Instead, 236 showed up.

Students were sent home until double shifts and transfers can be arranged.

Gain of 50 Pupils

Riverdale Elementary School gained more than 50 pupils, Ager Road School, 75; Surrattsville, 65; Landover Hills nearly 200.

High school enrollment jumped to 9336, an increase of nearly a thousand above last year's 8430.

In Montgomery County the story was the same. Assistant Superintendent Edgar M. Douglass said the count today will show an enrollment of more than 28,500, an increase of 4500 in a year.

Viers Mill Village Elementary School enrolled 150 more students than was anticipated.

High Schools
White	6966	7829
Negro	4516	4174
Junior High Schools
White	8984	9079
Negro	9386	8730
Elementary Schools
White	26,692	27,283
Negro	27,477	26,637
Vocational Schools
White	724	799
Negro	790	737

The trend of dropping enrollments in white schools was reversed in fast-growing Anacostia.

Six First Grade Sections

The new Stanton Elementary School enrolled 749 students, more than a third—290—for the kindergarten and first grade. Six first grade sections and six kindergarten sections were set up by the principal, Mrs. Elnora Kidd.

Kimball Elementary School with 2526, sent its overflow of 188 students to nearby Sousa Junior High School. Miss Dorothy Lewis the principal, enrolled 193 children in the kindergarten and 185 in the first grade.

Patterson Elementary School scheduled all students through the third grade on part time. Fourth and fifth grade students will attend classes in the auditorium. More than 300 children entered kindergarten and an equal number the first grade.

At Congress Heights School, 21 classes out of 28 were on part-time. Six kindergarten classes were filled and a waiting list was set up.

Bunker Hill Elementary School enrolled 450 children. To prevent part-time, the fifth and sixth grades were moved to Taft Junior High School.

Grunewald Contempt Citation Threatened

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Henry W. Grunewald was threatened yesterday with a contempt citation by Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) for giving "evasive" answers during a bitter Senate hearing on wiretapping.

The long-sought witness, described as a "missing link" in the investigation was ordered to reappear before the committee at 10 a. m. today.

He will be followed on the witness stand by Mrs. Frances Dustin, administrative assistant to Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.).

Brewster has said it was Mrs. Dustin who handed an envelope, containing $125 or $150, to Police Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon, an admitted wiretapper, for tracking down a man who the Senator said shadowed him during the 1947 Senate investigation of Howard Hughes' wartime plane-making contracts.

Earlier Senate testimony alleged Grunewald was the intermediary between Shimon and the Senate War Investigating Committee, headed by Brewster. Shimon has denied his tapping the wires of Hughes' associates was to serve the purposes of the Senate probe.

Chairman Neely shouted his warning of contempt after spending more than an hour trying to make Grunewald disclose details of his education and a recent illness the witness said he had.

Grunewald told the committee he was ordered by his doctor some time this summer to leave Washington and not to read newspapers. That was why, Grunewald insisted, he did not know the Senate investigators were looking for him until a few days ago.

William Power Maloney, Grunewald's attorney, advised his client not to answer the Senator's questions because they were "irrelevant."

'45 Days, if Necessary'

Maloney angrily told the Senator "the committee has been asking irrelevant questions for 45 minutes."

"That's right, about 45 minutes," Neely snorted, "and we'll be here for 45 days, if necessary, to get the answers."

The FBI, supposedly on Grunewald's trail the past several weeks, served a subpena on Grunewald in a farmhouse in The Plains, Va. last Wednesday.

The witness testified yesterday he had left Washington for The Plains, about 50 miles south of here, on July 31.

"Did you know July 31 was the same day the government issued a subpena for you to appear before the grand jury?" Neely quickly asked.

"No," Grunewald replied. "I was sick."

The witness said there was "no connection whatsoever" between his leaving for The Plains and the subpena issuance on the same day.

Grunewald insisted there was nothing "mysterious" about him or his activities. He said he was born in South Africa 58 years ago, reached this country in 1906 and was naturalized in 1936. He worked for the FBI during World War I, he said, and it was then he learned how to spot whether a wire had been tapped.

Grunewald said he has lived periodically in a Washington hotel suite registered in the name of Harry Woodring, former Secretary of War.

Grunewald said there was nothing unusual about this arrangement because the ex-cabinet officer "is an old friend of mine."

[Reached later in Topeka, Kans., Woodring said he has known Grunewald several years, and that they were once in business together. Woodring declined to say the nature of the business.]

Admits 'Investigations'

Grunewald admitted he did "investigating" work for Pan American Airways on two occasions—"in 1944 or 45 and in 1948 or 1949 . . . for about a week each time."

He said Samuel Pryor, a vice president of Pan American Airways, asked him both times to check because he suspected someone was following him and perhaps tapping his telephone.

The witness said he checked Pryor's wires at the Statler Hotel, but vigorously denied he ever engaged in any wiretapping.

He said he never checked the switchboard or any boxes of Pan American Airways phones here.

Grunewald told the committee he did not find any evidence of wiretapping on either "check" for Pryor.

Confirmed By Spokesman

Grunewald's story of his two assignments for the airways was substantially confirmed by Will Player, Pan American spokesman in New York.

Player told The Washington Post Grunewald was retained as a "security consultant to check our Pan - American switchboard" against suspected wire tapping.

He backed Grunewald's sworn statement that Grunewald did not work for Pan American during the Hughes investigation.

Slashes Throat

D. C. Girl, 20, Kills Self With Razor.

In the first few minutes of the day she was to have entered Wilson Teachers College, 20-year-old Margery Callaway, of 2356 40th st. nw., slashed her throat with a razor blade, police said.

The Western High School graduate—class of 1948—was found by her mother at 12:30 a. m. yesterday. The dark-haired girl was pronounced dead 40 minutes later.

MARGERY CALLAWAY
. . . Was to enter college

District Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of death by suicide.

Homicide squad detectives said several medical books were found in the room, their pages turned to information on types and effects of poisons.

And in the room also were two notes.

One, typewritten, addressed to "Margery" and containing quotations from an anonymous poet, started: "Yesterday is dead—forget it; tomorrow may never come . . ."

The same note, on the girl's bedside table, contained a quotation from James Russell Lowell: "Be noble: and the nobleness that lies in other men sleeping, but never dead—will rise in majesty to meet you."

Tacked with tape to her vanity mirror was a handwriten quotation from Tennyson: "Anyone can carry its burden, however hard, until nightfall . . ."

Police quoted the dead girl's mother, Mrs. Blanche Callaway, as saying her daughter had been depressed for a week or so.

Her schoolmates and friends were at a loss to explain the attractive girl's action.

Mrs. Callaway told detectives that once in the course of the past week her daughter had told her, "I wish I could go to sleep and never wake up."

Girl Swears She Was Not Letter-Writer

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Evangeline Wiliams, 18, swore yesterday that she did not write the "I-did-it" letters which, if authentic, would clear her church-trustee father of his indecent-exposure conviction.

The tall, blonde Wilson High School graduate took the Municipal Court witness stand and, when asked whether she had anything to do with the mystery letters, said:

"No, I am not that kind of girl."

It was the second day of the hearing before Judge Aubrey B. Fennell, from whom her father, Robert S. Williams, jr., 45, seeks a new trial. Convicted in April of exposing himself indecently before two teen-age girls, he contends that the letters are newly discovered evidence that should void the guilty finding.

The anonymous missives say that Williams is innocent and the letter writer, a pervert, committed the crime.

Her voice nervously high-pitched, Evangeline repeatedly denied that she had anything to do with the case.

Throughout her testimony, she kept her eyes away from Judge Fennell, who demanded that she look at him.

"I want to see your face so I can evaluate your testimony," said the judge.

Her testimony was buttressed by that of two defense handwriting experts, who said that the letters were not written by her.

"The only thing in common in these writings, when compared to those of Miss Wililams, is that they are both in English and written in pen and ink," declared expert Harry E. Cassidy of Richmond, Va.

The other witness was Charles A. Appel, jr., a former FBI authority, who will resume testifying at 10 a. m. today.

Police Expert Regrets

It was Police Department documents exaiminer Ira N. Gullickson who blamed Evangeline for the writings. He said that he was certain that she was the author, but yet he admitted he had "qualms" about testifying.

He said he was reluctant because he believed Miss Williams' motive was to defend her father out of love for him.

After the testimony, Williams, a former lieutenant commander in the Navy and District School teacher, and a trustee for the All Souls Unitarian Church, sought out reporters and asked them to print this statement:

"I have no bitterness toward the man who wrote the letters. But I implore him to come forward to clear the name of my daughter, no matter what happens to me."

All Hands Saved

D. C. Pilot Ditches Plane In Pacific

A 31-year-old Washington naval pilot was one of the crew of seven men rescued from a life raft in the Pacific three hours after he ditched their plane near Midway Island for lack of fuel.

Lieut. Jack W. Redmond, 5714 Massachusetts ave., Glen Mar Park, Md., was pilot of the R5D (DC-4) transport which went down Sunday after radioing it was running out of fuel as it approached Midway on an eastbound flight.

None of the men picked up, after being tossed about by 12-foot waves, required medical attention, according to the Associated Press. An earlier report from the PBY which spotted the big plane and life raft and directed the rescue boat to the spot stated that one of the men was injured.

LIEUT. JACK W. REDMOND

Lieutenant Redmond, who served 18 months in the Pacific as a patrol plane pilot during World War II, was transferred from the Patuxent River Naval Air Station to Honolulu for "temporary additional duty" seven weeks ago, according to his wife, Alice. He has been flying transports from Honolulu to Tokyo, she said.

Redmond said he was forced to crash-land when the four-engined plane ran out of gas 13 minutes from its destination. "We thought we were going to make it up to the last moment," the United Press quoted him as saying.

Mrs. Redmond expected to hear from her husband last night. The survivors were scheduled to arrive at Barber's Point, Oahu Island, Hawaii, at 10:30 p. m. (4:30 p. m. EDT) yesterday.

Course Begun For One Pupil In Arlington

Arlington school officials yesterday scurried to set up a $2500 auto mechanics shop at the Hoffman-Boston School for Negroes after one student requested the course.

The reason:

Federal District Court in Alexandria last Friday ordered the Arlington School Board to provide equal facilities for white and Negro students.

The student who asked for the course is Richard O. Green, 17, of 3508 S. 18th st., Arlington, a senior. The auto mechanics course has not previously been offered at Hoffman-Boston.

When young Green's request came through yesterday morning, school authorities at one point considered giving him his shop course at the white Washington-Lee High School—after regular school hours.

A Virginia state law forbids simultaneous instruction of white and Negro students in the same school.

But Assistant School Superintendent Charles J. Walsh said last night this alternative was discarded as being "a temporary proposition." And Walsh added: "We had to get an auto mechanics shop started at Hoffman-Boston sooner or later, anyway."

School Superintendent William A. Early said young Green already has registered for the Hoffman-Boston course, a three-hour affair tobe given to him every weekday afternoon.

His teacher will be L. P. Manville, jr., a white shop instructor from Washington-Lee.

But Leon Ransom, Washington attorney advising Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Green, young Richard's parents, reserved judgment on the auto shop proposal.

"We'll have to see later on whether it's equality or not," Ransom said.

Ransom was the attorney in the Constance Carter case of September, 1947, when the Hoffman-Boston student requested admission to Washington-Lee High School. It was this case that resulted in Friday's Alexandria District Court order to the school board.

Police Search River For Leaper From Bridge

Harbor Police last night were dragging the Potomac in search of a man who reportedly jumped from the old Highway bridge at 8 p. m.

An unidentified motorist who said he saw the jump, flagged an auto driven by Fred W. Weir, 2517 Fairlawn ave. se. Weir called police after seeing a disturbance in the water.

Tydings Says Soviet Eyes European War

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11 (AP).—Senator Tydings (D., Md.) said tonight Russia "quite obviously" seeks to have United Nations forces concentrated in Korea so that the Soviets "would be free to commence the conquent of Europe."

"It is plain," he said, "that the Russians have been urging Red China to join with the North Koreans in attacking the troops of the United States and other United Nations forces resisting aggression."

Tydings, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, made these statements in a campaign speech prepared for delivery over a network of Maryland and Washington radio and television stations. He is candidate for renomination for a fifth term in the September 18 Maryland primary election.

He said that "if, as the Russians hope, the Chinese Communists join the North Koreans, we shall be compelled to make decisions of the gravest nature.

"We would then be confronted with Red troops numbered by the millions. No one can measure the limits of the war if Red China enters the Korean struggle."

Tydings to Address Silver Spring Rally

U. S. Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), seeking renomination to his fifth consecutive term, will be principal speaker at the Democratic Victory Committee rally for the Kensington, Wheaton, Silver Spring, Takoma Park area Thursday at 8 p. m. in the Silver Spring Armory.

Major General Russell B. Hartle (USA-Ret.), candidate for the Democratic nomination for the House of Representatives from the Sixth Maryland District, and members of the Montgomery County slate of the Victory Committee will attend and be introduced.

Co-chairmen are Charles B. Buscher, Silver Spring; Trial Magistrate William B. Wheeler, Colesville; Luke Bennett, Takoma Park, and George Menke, Kensington. Mrs. Walter Robinson is chairman of usherettes, Walter Griffin, sound and public address system; Mrs. Lorette Collier and Mrs. Paul Chesley, refreshments.

$20,000 Involved

Two Housing Firms Lose Tax Appeal

The United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that the Riggs Development Co. and Colonial Mortgage Corp. must pay $20,000 in District income taxes for the sale of 156 houses here.

The decision upholds a prior ruling of the Board of Tax Appeals.

The companies, authorized to improve and deal in real estate, built the structures during the war under a Federal Housing Administration rule that they be designed for renting during the housing emergency. But, in 1945, the restrictions were removed and the houses sold to veterans.

The court said that under the facts, the sales could not be exempted as "capital assets" from income taxes.

The law cites that homes held "primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course" of business are taxable as income.

The Riggs homes were at New Hampshire ave. and Peabody st. nw., and Colonial's at Dexter Heights.

Ten New Polio Cases Listed In D. C. Area

Ten new cases of polio were reported in Greater Washington yesterday, raising the total this year to 269.

In the District five new cases were reported, making the year's total 114, as compared with 59 for the same period of last year.

The new cases are a 6-year-old boy from the 2400 block of 34th st. se.; a 9-year-old boy of the 5100 block of Jay st. ne., both hospitalized at Children's; a 10-year-old girl of the 1100 block of 4th st. nw., in Gallinger Hospital; a 5-year-old girl of the 3700 block of Carey pl. nw., in Walter Reed Hospital; and a woman, 22, of the 3300 block of Runnymeade pl. nw., being treated at home.

Three new cases were reported in Arlington County, Va., bringing the total to 23. They are a five-year-old girl of the 3800 block of S. 16th st., hospitalized in Children's; a 25-year-old man of the 2700 block of Wilson blvd. and a 20-year-old woman of the 6400 block of N. 26th st., both hospitalized at Gallinger.

Fairfax County's 35th case, reported yesterday, was of a 14-months-old girl of McLean, Va., at Children's.

Alexandria had its 11th case, that of a 5-year-old girl of the 2500 block of Davis ave., at Children's.

Cancer Society Reaches Goal in 1950 Fund Drive

The District Cancer Society has reached its goal of $200,000 in its 1950 fund drive, according to Charles C. Koones, campaign manager, and contributions are still coming into headquarters at 1200 15th st. nw.

"Due to the support of Washington citizens, the Cancer Society will be able to increase its research activities and broaden the base of its service and educational programs next year," Koones said.

Fifty thousand dollars of the more than $200,000 will go to cancer research. The remainder will be used for cancer detection centers and tumor clinics here, and for home nursing services and public health education, Koones said.

Code Speech Opens State Law Parley

The president of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws yesterday described the preparation and development of the Commercial Code as "the largest single project undertaken by the group."

Howard L. Barkdull, of Cleveland said, in his presidential address to the opening session, the code would be the chief subject of consideration during the six day meeting.

"The uniform Commercial Code embraces the modernization of the Negotiable Instruments Law, the Sales Act and other commercial acts prepared by the Conference time to time," Barkdull said, "including new material required by those developments of modern business which are not reflected in existing statutory law."

More than 80 commissioners, including the deans from 18 law schools, are attending the meeting at Hotel Statler. They come from 40 States, Puerto Rico and the District.

The group was welcomed to the city by Vernon E. West, corporation counsel of the District.

Other pending discussion will center about uniform rules of criminal procedure, of adoption, of marriage licensing, of prenatal blood-testing and consideration of a uniform act prohibiting the marriage by mentally defective or diseased persons.

Daily sessions will be held throughout the week, preceeding the opening of the annual meeting of the American Bar Association here next Monday.

1500 Postal Supervisors Open Session

About 1500 members of the National Association of Postal Supervisors and ladies auxiliary yesterday opened their three-day convention in the Hotel Statler.

It is the first convention the association—of which John McMahon of Boston is president—has held in Washington since 1921. Vincent C. Burke, now First Assistant Postmaster General, was president that year.

Means of readjusting salary scales for all postmasters and supervisors, which are held to be inequitable with those of other postal employes as a result of Public Law 134, will be discussed at business sessions. The organization is supporting S. 1978, now in the Senate, to change the 1945 law which makes its possible for the highest paid carrier or clerk, with longevity, to receive only $200 a year less than the lowest paid superviros.

Mrs. Jesse M. Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General, and Mrs. Burke will be the auxiliary's guests of honor at a 12:30 luncheon and style show at the Statler today.

Donaldson will be the chief speaker at a banquet Wednesday night. Elections will be held earlier in the day.

Postmaster Nominated

President Truman yesterday sent to the Senate the nomination of Dorothy E. Sasscer to be postmaster at Cheltenham, Md.

Police Charge Man 8 Times; He Pays $475

A 29-year-old Beltsville gasoline station operator was fined $475 yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court on eight charges arising from a series of disturbances at his station last Wednesday.

The man, Warren H. Covington, was first jailed on an assault charge brought by his wife, Mildred, about 6 a. m. Later in the day he was picked up by Maryland Trooper J. P. Martinuk after he was released on bail.

This time Martinuk lodged drunken driving and drunk and disorderly charges against him. Mrs. Covington added another drunk and disorderly charge and two of assault and battery. Mrs. Covington and her brother, Thurman Ruth, also of Beltsville, each lodged a peace warrant against Covington at this time, too.

All of the charges except those filed by the officer stemmed from Covington's behavior Wednesday at the gasoline station, known as Bruce's, on Route 1. Mrs. Covington and Ruth testified.

Judge Alan Bowie found Covington guilty of all charges despite the plea of his attorney, Ignatius J. Keane, that the defendant suffers from battle fatigue and is in need of hospitalization.

Gravel-Buried Worker Saved

Rescuers yesterday dug out a 41-year-old concrete firm employe from an eight-ton pile of gravel that was unloaded as he stood in a pit of the Virginia Concrete Co., 2651 South Seminary rd., Arlington. He escaped without serious injury.

The man, Collin M. Bowers, of Herndon, Va., in charge of the firm's gravel pits, was buried by the sliding truckload of gravel. The truck driver, Oscar Taylor, RFD 3, Alexandria, had dumped the material without seeing Bowers in the pit.

When Bowers shouted as the pebbles fell on him, Taylor ran out of the truck in time to see the gravel cover Bowers' head. He yelled to the nearby office to summon help and then began digging.

Within two minutes, Bowers' head was uncovered and in 50 minutes he was freed. This was accomplished by members of the Jefferson Rescue Squad, the Clarendon ambulance crew, Arlington Policeman Russell Petty and fellow workers of Bowers, working in three-man relays.

Besides digging, rescuers also placed boards to shore up the sliding gravel.

Bowers was rushed to Arlington Hospital, where he was admitted for observation for shock. His condition was listed as good.

Milk in Lungs Kills Child of Six Weeks

Joyce W. Awkward, six-weeks-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Awkward, Brooke's rd., Sandy Spring, Md., choked to death yesterday after being fed.

The Silver Spring Rescue Squad administered oxygen without result. The child was pronounced dead of suffocation by Charles H. Ligon of Sandy Spring, who said milk had entered the lungs.

Frank D. Fong Dies; Leader In Chinatown

Frank Der Fong, 56, former "Mayor" of Chinatown and long-time leader in Washington's Chinese community, died Sunday in Gallinger Hospital.

Mr. Fong

In poor health for several years, Mr. Fong was taken to Gallinger Wednesday after he went into a coma at his home at 420 17th st. se.

His title as "Mayor" of Chinatown came as a result of his position as manager for many years of the popular Republic Restaurant at 910 F st. nw., and his activities in the Washington chapter of the On Leong Association.

Mr. Fong was past president and several times secretary of the group, an organization of businessmen of Chinese extraction with chapters in about 40 American cities.

Born in Canton, China, Mr. Fong came to this country in 1903. At first he worked on the newspaper Chung Sai Yat Pao, owned by his family in San Francisco. At 18, he entered the dry goods business on the Coast.

After a short trip to his native land, Mr. Fong moved to Washington in 1918 when he and his family opened the Republic Restaurant. Ill health forced his retirement in 1946.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Li Gen Fong; three sons, Frank, Everett and Ming Fong, and a daughter, Mis Ruby Fong, all of the home address.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Wednesday in St. Mary's Catholic Church, 5th and G sts. nw. Burial will be in George Washington Memorial Cemetery.

Mr. Davidson, who was 82, died Sunday at the Cedar Haven Rest Home, Takoma Park. A retired real estate man, he was a native of London, Ohio, and for many years had lived in Okmulgee, Okla. He came to Washington a year and a half ago.

Mr. Davidson lived with a niece, Miss Dorothy Jackson.

Other survivors include another niece, Mrs. Charles M. Brown of 636 K st. ne., and two nephews, Kenneth C. Robbins of 1921 Kalorama rd. nw., on the staff of the National Republican Committee, and Orland B. Robbins, 1314 50th ave., Hillside. A brother, Samuel Davidson, lives in Sandusky, Ohio.

Philip Ashton Rollins Dies; Noted Historian

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 11 (AP).—Philip Ashton Rollins, 81-year-old author and historian of the American West died early today at his home after a long illness.

After a number of trips to the West, he began to assemble a library on western Americana, which became the most nearly complete of its type. He and Mrs. Rollins presented the library of more than 3000 volumes to Princeton in 1945.

Rollins' first book, "The Cowboy, His Characteristics, His Equipment and His Part in the Development of the West," was published in 1922.

John C. Weadock, Willkie Partner, Dies

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (AP).—John C. Weadock, 90, former senior law partner of Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential candidate in 1940, died at his home last night.

Weadock was general counsel of the Commonwealth and Southern Corp. until its dissolution.

He was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States in 1895.

James J. Bell Funeral to Be At St. Gabriel's

Funeral services for James J. Bell, 75, who in 56 years as a plasterer helped transform Washington from a "city of shacks and little buildings" to its present neo-classical glory, will be held today at 9 a. m. in St. Gabriel's church, 22 Grant cir. nw. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln cemetery.

Mr. Bell

Mr. Bell, whose first job was on the Library of Congress in 1892, died Saturday of a heart attack at his home, 218 Varnum st. nw.

"The secret of being a good plasterer is simple," Mr. Bell once said, "just do honest work and keep at it steady."

Mr. Bell "kept at it" for more than half-a-century, working on the White House, Washington Monument, District Building, St. Martin's Catholic Church and many other of the city's buildings until his retirement two years ago.

He was a life member of the International Association of Plasterers and Cement Finishers' Local 96 and belonged to St. Gabriel's.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mamie Bell, whom he married in 1902; three daughters, Mrs. Helen Hunley, 22 Buchanan st. ne.; Mrs. Alma Hart, 5 McDonald pl. ne.; and Miss Gertrude M. Bell of the Varnum st. address; a son, James M. Bell, 117 Hilltop rd., Silver Spring; seven grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

IN MEMORY of wife and mother, ALBERTHA R. ROBEY, who passed away September 12, 1948.
How much we miss you, you must know.
Without these words to tell you so.
But we can't let the day go by
Without remembering with a sigh:
It's the saddest day of all the year . . .
The day Death came and took you, dear.
LOVING HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

ABELL, MARY E. In memory of MARY E. ABELL, who passed away September 12, 1947.
Somewhere above this troubled world,
Safe beyond all grief and care,
Our mother rests in Heavenly Peace.
God grant someday we meet her there.
Daughters NINA M. DORSCH, AMELIA R. TOWNEY and HELEN C. MILLER.

ALLEN, FRANK S. In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, FRANK S. ALLEN, who passed away one year ago today, September 12, 1949.
He bade no one a last farewell,
He said goodby to none.
The Heavenly gates just opened wide,
And a loving voice said "Come."
Sad and sudden was the call,
Of one so dearly loved by all.
A bit of grief,
A shock severe,
It was to part with one so dear.
Oft to our heart comes a bitter cry,
Why, oh, why, did you have to die?
But, then comes the answer so soft and sweet,
You are not dead but only asleep.
God knew that you were suffering;
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed your weary eyelids
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
MARY S. ALLEN and CLARENCE W. CARROLL F. and LORRAINE BRENNER

Peru's First Lady Is Capital Visitor

By Elizabeth Maguire

The First Lady of Peru, Senora Maria Odria, arrived in Washington yesterday. Her husband, Gen. Manuel A. Odria, was inaugurated president of Lima last July 28. The Senora is accompanied by Senora Constanza Elguera, wife of the Postmaster General of Peru; Senorita Milia Ferrades of Lima, and Capt. Antonio Ipinza, an aide of the President.

Senora Odria will be at the Peruvian Embassy for a visit of two weeks or longer, and she plans to be in the States for about a month, during which time she will have a medical check-up at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore.

The Ambassador of Peru and Senora de Berckemeyer are in Paris attending monetary meetings, but they plan to return September 20, when there will doubtless be much entertaining for their distinguished guest.

When Senora Odria arrived at the airport at 2:45 p. m., she was met by some 50 members of the embassy staff and their families. She was costumed in gray suit, hat and coat, and she wore a corsage of orchids, a gift of Senoritas Victoria, Lumila, and Amparo Fernandez Concha, daughters of the Minister of Peru and Senora de Fernandez Concha.

ON THE PARTY FRONT:

FORMER REPRESENTATIVE and Mrs. Howard Coffin entertained last evening at the first of a series of dinners. Guests numbered 16, and the dinner was at the Coffin residence, 2206 Wyoming ave.

BRIG. GEN. and Mrs. Timothy A. McInerny gave a small cocktail party yesterday for Miss Barbara Stewart and Thomas Eskey who are to be married Thursday at the Church of the Annunciation. The party was for members of the two families and out-of-town guests.

WEDDING BELLES:

Miss Patricia Warden, bride-elect of Henry Groseclose of Philadelphia, formerly of Bland, Va., will be honored today at a shower given by Mrs. Elliott Hayes, her matron of honor. Miss Warden, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Bruce Warden of Washington, has selected November 11 as her wedding date.

Today's hostess, Mrs. Hayes, will entertain at the home of her mother, Mrs. Christopher Denman. Her guests will be Miss Betsy Oleson, maid of honor; Miss Betty Sebrell, a bridesmaid; Miss Yardley Minnix, Miss Constance Bingham, Miss Eleanor Michelet, Mrs. E. A. Michelet, Mrs. E. A. Lipscomb, Mrs. George Boteler, and her daughter, Miss Bruce Boteler; Mrs. John G. Nichols, Mrs. W. D. Confehr, and Miss Eugenia Denman.

RALPH WEBB GARDNER, son of Mrs. O. Max Gardner, is deserting bachelorhood for the benedicts. His engagement to Miss Carrie Horn Derby was announced recently by her father, Mr. Frank Inge Derby of York, Ala., and Mrs. Derby. The wedding will take place Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Pauley in Beverly Hills, Calif.

ALONG EMBASSY ROW:

The British Ambassador and Lady Franks with their two young daughters returned Sunday to the embassy after spending six weeks at Nantucket, Mass. The Ambassador's stay at the embassy was brief, as he left yesterday for New York to meet Britain's Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Ernest Bevin, who arrives today. Mr. Bevin will attend meetings of the Foreign Ministers in New York this week and after that the General Assembly at U. N.

Madame Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, arrived at the embassy last evening, having returned on the Ile de France, which docked yesterday in New York.

CONGRATULATIONS TO:

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Byrd, whose daughter, Lucy Bradshaw Byrd, was born Saturday, September 2, at the Winchester, Va., Memorial Hospital. The baby is named for Mrs. Byrd's mother, Mrs. Lucy Blaine Bradshaw of Winchester, formerly of Boston, Mass.

HOME AGAIN:

FORMER AMBASSADOR to The Netherlands and Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck have returned from a vacation at Big Win Inn on Lake of Bays, Ontario, Canada.

THE COLLEGE SET:

New students going to Sweet Briar and present students yesterday attended a tea at the home of Miss Helen Schneider. Guests were received by Mrs. Joseph J. Chappell, president of the Washington Club of the Sweet Briar Alumnae Association, and other officers of the club.

Daily Beauty Care Important

Tenth day of Margaret's beauty program.

By Ann Lawrence

ALMOST any smart coed can burn the midnight oil the night before an exam and cram her brain with enough dates and data to rate a passing mark.

And almost any girl can spend three or four hours, just prior to a date with her favorite BMOC (Big Man On Campus), dressing and primping and come up with passing good looks and grooming.

But the crammed-in knowledge doesn't stick. Nor do the once-in-awhile beauty tricks. It's the daily schedule that counts, that rates more than barely passing, on the report card and the date card.

The brightest college girl will work out her own daily program of personal beauty habits and stick to 'em, come extra thesis, bull session or just one of those spasmodic cases of "I can't-be-botheredness."

For example:

. . . That daily bath, never to be skipped unless you're sick in bed.

. . . The daily use of a deodorant, never to be skipped under any circumstances. (College girls will appreciate the quick-to-use, no-spill, no-leak qualities of a fragrant new powder deodorant which comes in a spray-top plastic bottle. You merely squeeze the bottle and out shoots a spray of the long-lasting deodorant powder.)

. . . The daily cleansing under the fingernails, whether or no you're wearing colored polish.

. . . The nightly hair-brushing.

. . . The nightly massage around your cuticles, to keep them soft, to prevent nails from breaking.

. . . The use of hand cream or lotion, every time you dunk your paws.

. . . The application of the same hand lotion to your elbows, at least once a day, to keep them from getting gray and scaly.

. . . The nightly rinse of your lingerie and stockings, to keep them fresh and dainty always.

. . . The minimum once-a-week scrubbing of your hairbrush and comb, your nail brush, your powder puff, insurance against dirt and infection.

. . . The weekly weight check-up, on the same pair of scales each time, to keep your figure under control.

. . . The daily use of some light, lifting fragrance that you've made your very own; toilet water after the bath, cologne for daytime hours, the same scent of perfume for evening wear.

. . . The careful inspection in a full length mirror before going out, back view as well as front, to be sure that stocking seams are straight, shoulders hair and lint free, slip hidden beneath your skirt hem; to make sure you're as pretty going as you are coming.

Postal Supervisors' Auxiliary to See Fashion Show Today

Delegates to the convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary, National Association of Postal Supervisors, will enter their second day's session at the Statler Hotel today. Committee reports will precede a luncheon style show in the hotel's Congressional Room, with fashions to be presented by Woodward & Lothrop.

Yesterday's activities, after a joint opening session with the Postal Supervisors, included reports by national officers. Mrs. F. M. Sommerkamp, president of the D. C. auxiliary, delivered an address of welcome during the joint session.

This year your "dependable" dress is knit . . . the dress you'll wear spectating at races, and early football games . . . the dress you'll wear for city, for country, for travel. Beautiful wool knit in deep-toned shades. Sizes 10 to 18. In our Chinese Salon.

Mary Haworth's Mail

New Angles Develop in 12-Year-Old Love Triangle; Man Realizes He Can't Leave His Wife; Woman Gets Good Marriage Offer; What Is the Right Solution?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For 12 years I have been going with Bob, who is married and living with his wife. At first his children were small and he told me that when they were grown we'd become a team. Now they are grown, and Bob finds that he cannot hurt his wife by leaving her.

In the meantime I have met Jim; or rather, I've known him for years and recently we have been going out together. He is free and has asked to marry me. I know he would be good to me, and I would do my best to be a good wife to him; and I would have a home and a husband and, I believe, security. But how can I hurt Bob? I have told him about Jim—previously they were good friends—and it is making him ill.

He would cut off his arm before he would hurt Nancy, his wife; and he would do the same for me. He loves me, I know, and he has been a true friend all these years. We have been true to each other (he is very jealous), and once he helped financially when I was ill.

No one could possibly have done more for me; but we aren't children any more; he is 51 and I am 42, and I have no future with him. If we could marry, there would be no reason for this letter.

WORDS SEEM THIN when I try to explain the seriousness of the attachment. Please believe me, this is no "married man and his mistress" affair. I am not a kept woman. I have always worked and supported myself. Friends tell me to marry Jim, they say Bob is really hurting me, by keeping me hopelessly tied to him. And so-called friends of Nancy's have told her about Bob and me, and I know her heart is breaking too. Their son may enter the Army soon, and to lose both husband and son would be too awful for her. I can understand that.

What to do? Is there a way out, without hurting anyone? I care very much for Jim, but one cannot wipe out 12 years with a snap of one's fingers. And I am afraid of what might happen to Bob; not that he would do anything drastic, but I fear the effects on his heart and mind. I shall be grateful for your advice. D. E.

DEAR D. E.: Your attachment to Bob is pathological rather than loyal. The same is true of his feelings for you also. Essentially each has been catering to the worst aspects of the other's nature. Need, greed and weakness on the part of each have been haplessly allied in a mutually exploitative sideline companionship.

Perhaps neither of you has the sound core of moral health that will make constructive parting possible. But that remains to be determined. Sentimentality, such as you are airing now, is no help in a case of this kind. Neither is fear a redemptive influence. The upward road out of your predicament begins in recognizing individual rights and duties—long ignored on both sides—and turning away from wrong-doing to abide by them. That is, if you can. As individuals, understand.

As I see the picture, there are two life-problems here,—the one being Bob's, the other yours. In a happenstance drift, they've become intertwined, superficially; but fundamentally they are separate and distinct, and ought to be handled as such.

Inasmuch as Bob is married and clings to his wife as a babe to its mother, unwilling to leave her for a network of reasons too tangled to discuss here, he is greatly anchored and sustained as compared to you,—the "other woman" in his disordered existence. In that role you are morally bankrupt, just as he is; and you can no more help him than he can help you. From the viewpoint of common sense and Christian rectitude. The primary duty of each in this mix-up is to save his own soul. Each of you is a millstone around the other's neck, believe it or not; and the greatest kindness you can do each other is to break up.

WHEN the individual deliberately brings his life into line with righteous principles, due to desire to experience peace of mind, or to express the constructive will of God, he becomes a channel of spiritual energy. Buoyant goodness radiates from him, and striving to influence or uplift or reform others are benefitted by it, without his striving to influence or uplift or reform them. I recommend this "way out" to you and Bob, as the only way out of the confusion, conflict, fear and despair that beset both of you now.

No doubt Bob tends blindly to feel betrayed by your wish to marry Jim for security reasons. But when that mood descends on him, he should meet it sanely by reminding himself that Jim's marriage offer takes a load off his (Bob's) conscience.

It is the heaven-sent antidote to Bob's belated discovery that he can never leave his wife for you. It seems that Providence is giving both of you a helping hand, plus a kick in the direction of cleaning up a pernicious mistake,—and my advice is, Don't miss the boat. M. H.

Jobé Says...

Purple Grapes Give New Autumn Colors

One of the smartest color families in our fall fashion picture is that which we are calling the "purple grapes." It begins with a rather light violet shade and runs into the deep plum color "pantomine" that I've already mentioned here.

You will find these new violets and purples in everything—fleece coats, tweed suits, sweaters, velveteen glamor separates, corduroy casuals, little jerseys, and even formal evening gowns in taffeta or satin or tulle. It is one of the best color families in the Paris collections, too, this fall, where it includes amethyst, a true parma violet shade, and the deep rich purples one finds in stained glass windows of the famous cathedrals of Europe.

Cinderella's Pumpkin Coach (Minus Mice) Makes Novel Table Centerpiece for Fall

DEAR ANNE:

I have been chosen chairman of the hostess committee for Homecoming Day Services at my church in October. Among other things, it will be my responsibility to decorate the tables for the dinner which will be served that afternoon. Could you give me some hints and/or some suggestions for table decorating?

Mrs. L. N., Washington.

Perhaps you'd like to make Cinderella coaches out of pumpkins to center the tables. These are especially suited to the fall season. You can use big or little pumpkins, according to the size of the table.

Cut two wheels from heavy cardboard or plywood to suit the size of your pumpkin. (A large pumpkin 12 inches in diameter would take wheels about 6 inches across.)

Remove top from pumpkin and hollow out inside. Place pumpkin upright on table, attach wheels against opposite sides of pumpkin by forcing the sharpened end of a half pencil through the center of the wheel and into the pumpkin.

Attach two sticks to front of pumpkin cart as shafts for Cinderella's imaginary team. (For the 12-inch pumpkin, 15-inch long sticks about ⅜ inch in diameter would be suitable.)

Arrange autumn leaves and cattails upright in the pumpkin shell. Add two or three long bunches of grapes so that they hang over the side.

If you have a long table, this arrangement can be further augmented with autumn leaves down the center of the table. A few ears of corn, acorn squash and other fruits or vegetables could be scattered among the leaves if desired.

DEAR ANNE:

I was much interested in the query from Mrs. T. J., Mt. Rainier, Md., in regard to the yellowing of her son's white pique suit. I had a similar experience when trying to remove a stain from my daughter's blouse. After many attempts, I finally removed the yellow, caused by bleach, with the color remover made by manufacturers of home dyes. I followed directions given on the package, and hope Mrs. T. J. may be successful.

Mrs. Fred A. Hagger, Arlington, Va.

DEAR ANNE:

Can you tell me how to remove iced tea stains from a light beige rug?

Mrs. J. L. Warren,
4935 34th rd., N. Arlington, Va.

Sponge first with clean, unstarched cloth dampened with lukewarm water. Then mix 1 teaspoonful of synthetic detergent with ½ pint of lukewarm water and shake up in jar. Apply this to stain carefully with spoon. Using rotary motion, sponge stain with clean cloth beginning at outer edge and working in. Try to keep inside stained area. Finally, sponge area again several times with clean, lukewarm water and fresh cloth. Turn fan on spot to dry it as quickly as possible, eliminating the possibility of mildew.

Gold Star Wives To Convene Here

Mrs. Jacqueline Watts, president of the Potomac Area Chapter of the Gold Star Wives of America, Inc., announced today that the 1951 National Convention of her organization will be held in Washington for a week beginning Memorial Day. The delegates will participate in the services at Arlington Cemetery now being planned for May 30, 1951, for the entombment of the "Unknown Soldier of World War II."

As chairman of arrangements for the convention, expected to include the largest group of widows and children of America's war dead to be brought together at one time, Mrs. Watts has appointed Mrs. Elaine K. Smith of 3685 38th st. nw. Mrs. Smith is the widow of Staff Sergt. Ray T. Smith, killed in action in Italy in 1943 while serving as a liaison pilot. She is presently employed at the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

One on the Aisle—

Stanley Kramer Speaks His Mind

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE ABOUT THE TOWN: Stanley Kramer, Hollywood's wonder boy who's shown how to make good pictures with precedent-shattering economy, is at the Carlton and proves as stimulating a person as his movies have been.

At 37 and looking younger, Kramer is having a tremendous influence on the pictures you're seeing. It's his belief that a good picture not cut to the factory belt pattern will please the mass audience. Not just certain levels, he emphasizes, but the vast majority.

Because he produced "Champion," "Home of the Brave" and the Palace-bound "The Men" in the neighborhood of half a million each and then made them phenomenally popular, his methods and outlook have been closely studied by the big studios who must mass-produce to keep their contract players productive.

Kramer has achieved his coup by careful planning. "After all," he remarks, "not to be egotistical about it but simply because I'm a perfectly average guy, I pick stories that appeal to me. I don't try to think if it's going to please this group or that. All I ask is that it please me.

"Then we—m partners, George Glass, the publicist, and Writer Carl Foreman—plan every detail tightly. We rehearse the cast in detail and we know just where the lights and cameras will be. Then we call in the crew, which is an important part of the usual studio overhead, and we shoot. None of my pictures has taken over 28 days in the filming. This is the biggest saving."

Kramer, who seems to travel about quite a bit, insists that the reason so many people have been saying "I've not been to the movies in 13 months" is that the public is wary about seeing the same old story again, or watching familiar star teams in rehashes of old routines.

"It's my aim to try to give people something different and when you come down to it there are lots of stories and ideas around us every day that are different. This makes a picture real and at the same time entertaining.

"Nor am I in the picture business to preach. I don't kid myself about that. If it happens that someone can leave one of my pictures with a point of view he's never thought of before, I think that's as far as you can expect to go in preaching. But that's secondary to my aim.

"In 'The Men,' for instance, we've made a picture that's against a lot of the accepted rules. But our story of a paraplegic and a veterans' hospital is real and for those who've seen it so far seems to be an invigorating and entertaining picture."

ANN PEARCE as such hasn't been that in type since she married Stanley Kramer . . . Dark and very pretty, Mrs. Kramer had a brief career as a New York actress, but her private drama is greater than memories of "The Vigil" or her New Stages career . . . For six years she was paralyzed from the spine down, polio, but you'd never know it now from the fine, dogged recovery she's made . . . The producer's interesting wife points out that women in the past generation have lived through so much that they're far more intelligent than the movie or radio producers credit them.

TONY MUTO, at a screening of his "Holy Year 1950," tells a remarkable story about Pope Pius XII. . . . One of the most vital jobs Tony had to do while filming this work in Rome was to photograph and record the Holy Father giving the Papal blessing to a crowd of 5000 pilgrims. . . . Just as the Pope began his blessing, Tony's sound equipment blew up. . . . The Holy Father must have seen the dismayed expressions and gestures of the 20th Century-Fox bigwig, for during ensuing moments he sent a messenger to ask Muto what had gone wrong. . . . Tony explained that the sound equipment had broken and that the Papal voice had not been recorded. . . . The Pope sent word that when the equipment was fixed, Muto should give a signal and the Papal blessing would be repeated. . . . Which was why one large group of Holy Year pilgrims received the pontifical blessing twice during one audience.

GRACE TULLY, looking immensely crisp and rested after the rigors of writing and giving a send-off to her splendidly moving book about her years as FDR's secretary, at a private showing of "Farewell to Yesterday." . . . This compilation of newsreels with appropriate commentary, Dupont-bound, must have been deeply moving to the former presidential Girl Friday, for they were the years she saw through a microscope, the years FDR had his tender finger on the pulse of a violent world . . . True to her years of public poker face, Miss Tully betrayed no emotion at watching the stirring events in which she had so unique a role, a behavior pattern we pass along as exemplary Gal Friday behavior.

EVERYONE, this column observed yesterday, contributed his services to last night's Olney benefit for the American Theater Wing's hospital program . . . But not quite everyone . . . The stage hands don't go for benefits, even for hospitalized veterans . . . They got their pay, but not out of the ticket sales . . . The Olney management footed the bill.

CAROLYN HILL STEWART, the local actress whose numerous roles have brought her much favor, is being entertained Wednesday afternoon by the Ambassador of Denmark and Mme. de Kauffman on the eve of her departure for Denmark, where she will attend performances in Copenhagen's National Theater.

THE ARENA'S SECOND: "Of Mice and Men," John Steinbeck's drama, last night opened as the second production of Arena Stage in the old Hippodrome Theater. Here are Tobe Fedder, Henry Oliver, Lester Rawlins and Harry Scully in a scene from the prize-winning play.

John Steinbeck Drama

'Of Mice and Men' Opens Its Run at New Arena Stage

"Of Mice and Men," John Steinbeck's prize-winning drama of the 1937-38 season, is the new bill, its second, of the Arena Stage in the old Hippodrome.

The drama is being affectingly played by the permanent acting company, although its style is quite another thing from the Goldsmith comedy which introduced the Arena.

Of especial note is the taut, raw-nerved performance of Lester Rawlins as the understanding George, who watches over the giant, feeble-minded Lennie. Here, evidently, is an actor who works on emotion. Fortunately, he is schooled enough in the technical fundamentals to merge them in the framework of his portrait. The result is that he has both the energy and the freedom to probe the spirit of the character. The immediate effect is a moving performance; the likely future gain may be a performer of fine emotional command.

The Voice of the Mute

It is hard to realize that there must be almost a new generation unfamiliar with Steinback's story, which won awards both as a play and a film. To those who have seen it before, the new staging will not, I think, carry the same kick as the original, but to the many who've only heard tell of this play, this will be an opportunity.

For Steinbeck is the voice of the mute. His stories and lines put into words the thoughts and dreams of the expressionless. The ideas are poetic, the words rude prose.

He is telling of two men, one small and smart, the other large and childlike. They stick together as migratory workers of California, George looking after Lennie because he's always been around. Both of them dream of the day when they'll own a place of their own. This real paradise seems likely to be theirs when the child-giant's strength and feeble mind kill the sad little girl who's married to the boss's weak son. In the end George has to describe their future paradise to Lennie and put a bullet through his head.

Capable Cast

Arena staging, with its stark intimacy, presents vast challenge to so realistic, yet poetic a story. I regret that with me, at least, the experiment doesn't come off. I think it has something to do with the breaking of the mood. While these props and lights are efficient, they are not drenched in that misty quality which settings and the gulf of distance can give. While we are occasionally too conscious of make-up and too-collegiate diction, these qualities can be toned down, but I suspect in such a story as this the eye needs more help.

Still, the moving quality of Steinbeck's writing and his sure strokes of character vitalize the work and the performances of Rawlins, and Henry Oliver, the Lennie, are able to speak for the playwright without erecting too much of a wall.

Others in Director Edward Mangum's capable company include Forrest Monroe, Henry Danilowicz, Tobe Fedder, Harry Scully, Stuart Smith, Henry Lampe and Jack Carter. Dorothea Jackson, in the one feminine role, makes a credible and distinct personality of the luckless pawn who destroys the men's dreams.

'Piggy Bank' Airline Shows Record Profit

By S. Oliver Goodman

National Airlines, Inc., yesterday issued some figures that proved its novel sales promotion efforts have paid off.

Baker

The line that advertised "A Millionaire's Vacation on a Piggy Bank Budget" reported record net earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30.

President G. T. Baker said in his annual report to stockholders that net of $558,269 was the highest in the airline's history and compared with $38,963 in the previous fiscal year. Net per share was 55.8 cents, against 3.9 cents.

Revenues of $15,910,123 were 25 percent higher than in the previous year. Operating expenses for the year were $15,305,057, compared with $12,521,542 the previous period.

Baker declared that aggressive sales promotion was a major factor in the airline's sharp gains. Heretofore the summer season marked a letdown in the company's traffic, because Florida was mainly a winter resort.

National Airline's success in selling spring and summer vacations stimulated the largest summer boom in Florida's history. The airline instituted packaged tours and its "piggy bank" advertising excited wide comment.

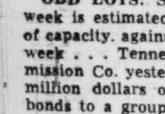
MOST PAY CASH: Here is an arresting statistic from the latest edition of Automobile Facts & Figures: In 1949 unprecedented sales of new autos were financed chiefly by cash payments. Of all purchases of motor vehicles, 56 per cent paid cash, 43 percent bought on time payment plan and 1 percent employed other methods of financing.

IMPROVEMENT: Western Union Telegraph Co. reported net income of $3,734,391 or $3.03 a common share for the first seven months this year, against a net loss of $5,091,795 in the same 1949 period. About a million of this year's profit was attributed to sale of real estate and other nonoperating income.

ODD LOTS: Steel output this week is estimated at 99.6 percent of capacity, against 98 percent last week . . . Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. yesterday awarded 40 million dollars of first mortgage bonds to a group headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co. The winning bid was 101.10 for a 3 percent coupon and the bonds were reoffered at 101¾ to yield 2,884 percent . . . The Commerce Department reported business inventories in July dropped 500 million dollars, apparently reflecting heavy consumer and business buying in that month . . . Antimony price was boosted 3½ cents a pound yesterday to 32 cents . . . August rayon shipments totaled 110,500,000 pounds, highest for any month in history.

STEEL CAPACITY: The United States steel industry can outproduce the rest of the world by more than 13 million tons a year, Steelways magazine said. "In the event the Korean hostilities engulf us in a third World War," said the publication of the American Iron & Steel Institute, "The American steel industry won't be caught napping. As of July 1, mills report facilities are ready at a moment's notice to turn out 100,563,500 tons of ingots and steel for castings."

WHO'S NEWS: Harry B. Pace is the new district manager of Swift & Co. branch house sales units in the Baltimore territory, including Washington. He succeeded S. M. Weir, who has been shifted to the office of the president in Chicago . . . Alexander T. Burton, formerly eastern representative of North American Aviation, Inc., has been elected a vice president and soon will establish residence in Los Angeles . . . L. S. McCoy will direct the new branch office of Quaker Rubber Corp. in the Dupont Circle Building . . . Stuart K. Hensley has been named assistant general sales manager of the Toni Co. and Joseph Salganik has been made eastern regional manager.



Pace

TREND REVERSED: Sales and earnings of Safeway Stores, Inc., have turned upward since the semiannual period ended on June 17, President Lingan A. Warren reported. Net income for the 32 weeks ended August 12 totaled $8,933,955 or $3.25 a share, against $8,641,091 or $3.14 a share in the same 1949 period. Sales for the eight weeks ended August 12 were $172,003,332, or an average of $21,500,417 a week. For the 24 weeks ended June 17, sales were $491,411,668 or an average of $20,475,486 a week. The upturn, Warren added, was due in part to settlement of the San Francisco Bay area clerks' strike in July.

Resumes Dividend

Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp. declared a $1 dividend on common shares payable November 17 to holders of record November 3. The company's fiscal year ends November 30. This is the first cash payment since 25 cents was disbursed in May, 1947. Last March a distribution of 1/10 of a share of Airfleets Inc. for each Convair share was made.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 (AP).—Feed grains—corn and oats—sold at their best prices of the season on the Board of Trade today.

Advances in these two cereals were fairly substantial, but not spectacular. In most cases final prices were off a little from the day's peaks. Wheat developed a tone toward the close, while soybeans held within a narrow range for that commodity.

Wheat closed ½ to ⅞ lower, corn ⅛ to 1¼ higher, oats ¾ to ⅞ higher, rye ⅛ to 1¼ higher, soybeans 1¼ lower to ½ higher, and lard 13 cents lower to 23 cents a hundred pounds higher.

After the market closed, the Agricultural Department estimated this year's corn crop at 3,162,638,000 bushels, down only 4,969,000 bushels from a month ago. Traders did not expect much change in the figures.

Disabled Freighter, Towed by Cutter, Awaits Tugboat

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—The Coast Guard cutter Cherokee, with the disabled Danish freighter Paris safely in tow, headed tonight toward a rendezvous with a civilian tugboat dispatched to nurse the freighter into port.

Coast Guard headquarters said the tugboat Eugenia M. Moran was on its way from New York to relieve the Cherokee in towing the Paris to Savannah, Ga., more than 250 miles away.

Two cutters—the Cherokee and the Unimak—reached the Paris early today to take over from the tanker Amtanw, which had stood by the disabled freighter during the night after snapping a lise with which it was towing the Paris late yesterday.

The captain of the Paris told the Coast Guard that his ship, bound from Havana to Rotterdam with a cargo of sugar, developed a leak in the hull some 170 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, flooding the engine and fire rooms.

Radio Moves to Follow New York's Siren Ban

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Sirens were banned in New York City today as a civil defense measure and the action will have an unusual Nation-wide side effect.

A Mutual radio network spokesman said steps are being taken to eliminate siren sound effects from network broadcasts that are heard in New York. From now on New Yorkers are expected to duck when they hear sirens.

Moslem Gets Life Term

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 11 (AP).—A special tribunal today decreed life imprisonment for Syed Mohammed Quasim Razvi, 45, fiery Moslem attorney who led a private army in Hyderabad's brief attempt to remain outside the Dominion of India in 1948.

Many Cases Are Preventable

20,000 Americans 'Go Blind' Every Year

(This is the second in a series of six articles on the remarkable progress recently made by medicine in the treatment of the blind and deaf. Miss Barrington is a newspaper and magazine writer whose own sight was saved by a recent operation. The series has been read and approved by recognized authorities.)

By Kay Barrington

CHAPTER TWO

Just how serious is the threat of blindness? Is there a chance you may be one of its victims? What can be done to help the blind and semiblind see again?

Like every "normal' person, I took my eyes for granted. Blindness was as remote to me as baldness is to a schoolboy—until there came a day when a specialist told me I must have an eye operation or lose my sight.

"You have lost half the sight in one eye already," he said.

My first reaction was one of violent protest. How would my eyes, so sensitive to the smallest speck, feel after a cutting operation? Would my face be scarred? The prospect terrified me, but the doctor was comforting.

No Reason for Worry

"There's nothing to worry about," he told me. "You'll be out of the hospital in five days, good as new. Up at the clinic we perform this operation on 3-year-old children. You should have had this done when you were a child."

He went on to explain that when an eye turns in, up or—as in my case—out, each eye sees the outside world differently; this creates double vision, which causes confusion, dizziness and nausea. If such a condition exists too long, little can be done to make the "lazy" eye function again.

"This is one of the most common kinds of eye trouble," the doctor added. "Very often, it can be corrected by exercises which helps reeducate the eye and brain to see objects singly with two eyes. We get the best results with children under four."

Then he described the operation performed, in cases like mine. After careful laboratory measurement to determine how far to pull my eyes in, I would go to the eye hospital. The measurements would show which of five muscles controlling each eye were not functioning from lack of use.

Muscles Are Reattached

These muscles would be cut and reattached, bringing my eyes into line so that both would do a normal amount of work. A delicate operation, but one the specialist performed many times a week. No scars, no severe pain, not even bandages after 24 hours.

"I only wish all cases were as simple as yours," he told me. "Do you know that 420 Americans become blind each week? That's over 20,000 a year. The sad part of it is that over half of all blindness can be prevented or corrected."

Later I was told by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness that the United States has a quarter of a million totally blind citizens and another 600,000 who are severely handicapped.

Only $1 Million for Research

Each year, $56 million in tax money and voluntary contributions is spent on care of the blind. Yet only $1 million of that amount is allotted to eye research—while $3 million is spent by the public on eye drops and lotions!

My own eye condition is present in one child in every 66, while one child in every four suffers from some kind of visual defect.

For my eye operation, I went to the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, one of the highly specialized eye centers that now exist in almost every large city. Founded in 1869, more than one million patients have since passed through its doors.

The tragedy of failing sight was vividly brought home to me when I saw the clinic packed with people in need of help. Plainly, the problem was not confined to any age group. There were tiny tots, middle-aged workers and many of the aged.

Age Increases Danger

"Our longer life span has increased the danger of blindness," said the doctor. "Today, the average man or woman lives 20 years longer than in 1900. Naturally, more of them are subject to the 'blinding diseases' that strike most often after 40, cataracts and glaucoma, for instance.

The number of adult blind in America is growing at the rate of 4800 a year. We could cut this way down if people over 40 would have regular examinations by an eye specialist. You may be surprised to know that five out of six eye impairments are caused by disease."

I learned that the four greatest causes of blindness are cataracts, infectious diseases, glaucoma and injury. More than 800,000 Americans' sight is gradually being destroyed by glaucoma alone—and its victims don't even know they have it.

What Medicine Is Doing

During the five days I spent in the hospital I decided to find out for myself what modern medicine was doing to make the blind see again, and what facilities were available to the poor.

I made two major discoveries:

Seventy-five years ago, the average American was forced to go abroad for eye surgery since few hospitals in this country specialized in eye care. Now almost every State university hospital has an excellent eye department, staffed with skilled surgeons. In addition, cities such as Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Washington, Atlanta, Baltimore, New Orleans, Memphis, New York and Boston maintain special eye hospitals.

Artificial eyes, glasses and special eye surgery are within the reach of everyone, thanks to the social service departments set up by many hospitals and clinics. In one year, the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Clinic treated more than 36,000 patients. The average maximum charge was 65 cents a visit. More than 20 percent of the patients were unable to pay anything.

Deficits incurred by a hospital which offers free public service are usually made up through contributions from the public and endowments.

Legionnaire Puts 'Red' Tag On Gypsy Rose

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 (AP).—Edward Clamage, chairman of the Illinois American Legion's anti-subversive committee, today said Gypsy Rose Lee is "an entertainer who was reported to be a dear and close associate of the traitors of our country." The strip teaser denied the charge.

Gypsy Rose

Clamage, a Chicago florist, made the statement on the floor of the Illinois Legion Convention.

In New York, Miss Lee said:

"I am not now and never have been a member of the Communist Party, a fellow traveler, sympathizer, or anyone of the associated brand . . ."

Miss Lee is scheduled to be mistress of ceremonies of an audience-participation show over the ABC network beginning next Saturday night.

Clamage said, "I want to make an appeal to the sponsors of the program to determine whether or not she is appearing as a true and loyal American or if she's going to be serving her Communist friends."

He said he had telegraphed the president of ABC asking what he intended to do about the program.

ABC officials in New York were not immediately available for comment.

Clamage said Miss Lee's political leanings are documented in the book, "Red Channels."

In New York, an ABC spokesman said several hours later that the telegram had not been received and network officials would have no comment immediately.

Arlington Manager Promised Opportunity to Refute Charges

Arlington County Manager A. T. Lundberg "will be given every opportunity" to refute charges made against him by a special commission investigatnig the police department, County Board Chairman Daniel A. Dugan said yesterday.

Dugan's was the first statement from a board member on the report since it was released by the three-man citizens' commission Saturday.

Dugan said the charges are "so serious" that they must be "proven or disproven at once."

The commission accused Lundberg of ignoring "nearly every recommendation" in a 1947 Arlington grand jury report which suggested 10 steps for improving the police department.

It also called the country manager "uncooperative" for his refusal to give the commission data requested by members and said he caused "unnecessary delay" in the investigation.

Blame for most of the flaws it found in the police department was laid on Lundberg by the commission.

Dugan said the board had set no date for a hearing to give Lundberg a chance to "refute the charges made against him." Dugan added he personally hoped it would be a public hearing.

Lundberg, now attending a three-day convention of the League of Virginia Municipalities, could not be reached for comment.

The board chairman also asked that "evidence which the (commission) report indicates is in the possession of investigators . . . be made public at once."

Dugan said that County Coroner Dr. W. C. Welburn, also criticized in the report, "will also be given a full opportunity to explain the charges" made against him.

The report accused Welburn of failing to report to the scene of fatalities investigated by the police. It charged that the coroner once authorized by telephone the removal of a body he had not viewed.

P-TA Backs Bond Petitions For Arlington

The Arlington County Council of Parent - Teacher Associations voted unanimously last night to circulate petitions asking the Circuit Court to set a referendum on a 7.5-million-dollar school bond issue.

The resolution adopted urged the 32 member P.-T.A.'s to circulate similar petitions in an effort to get the signatures of a majority of Arlington's estimated 27,000 registered voters.

The bond proposal was made public at a meeting of the County School Board Saturday by School Superintendent William A. Early.

School board chairman Elizabeth P. Campbell asked P-TA council delegates last night actively to support the bond proposal, which is planned for the general election in November.

Council delegates approved a proposal that the council spearhead the formation of an interorganizational coordinating committee of groups that will support and work for the bond issue.

They called a meeting of over one dozen county-wide organizations for September 20 at 8 p.m. at the Washington-Lee High School.

Husband Freed as Wife Declines to Testify

A charge that Horace L. Kinser, 36, of 607 North Carolina ave. se., attempted to run down his wife, Betty, 36, with a truck here in July was dismissed yesterday in Municipal Court. The wife declined to testify against her husband, the court was told.

Son of Rickenbacker Accepted by Air Force

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—The Air Force accepted today William F. Rickenbacker, 22, son of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, World War I ace and president of Eastern Airlines.

Student Finds Man Stabbed To Death

A man identified as John Clinton Staples, 33, of 1412 T st. nw., was found stabbed to death at 11:15 a. m. yesterday in the basement of a vacant house at 1325 S st. nw.

Police said Arrell Coleman, 26, of 819 Otis pl. nw., discovered the body.

Coleman is a student, police said, at Dennison Vocational School, 1325 S st. nw., next to the empty building.

Baffling to police was a wallet found near the body. It contained the name of Joseph W. Pitt, 22, of 2410 Virginia ave. nw.

Pitt, police said, has been in custody since Saturday.

Radioactive Mosquito Aids Scientific Study

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 11 (AP).—Dale W. Jenkins of the Army Chemical Center's medical division told the Ecological Society of America today that he has traced the wanderings of Arctic mosquitoes by making them radioactive.

He said it's also an effective way to study their behavior. This was accomplished, said Jenkins, by the simple expedient of hatching their larvae or eggs in pools treated with a radioactive substance. He said he is beginning to find out the relative efficiency of mosquito-eating animals by checking their accumulated radioactivity.

Pro-County-Executive Group Being Organized in Fairfax

A "Committee in Favor of the County Executive Form of Government" in Fairfax County is being organized.

Its acting secretary, Lewis S. Travis of Chantilly, said such a group is being formed by several members of the 21-member study commission that recently recommended a changeover to the county executive form in the November referendum.

Travis himself was a member of the commission, which was appointed by the county supervisors to look into the question of possible county Government reform. The group made its report September 3. It proposed — and a county circuit court judge ordered—that the ballot give the voters the chance to say whether they want any change, and, if so, to have the choice between county executive and county manager.

Travis said there will be an organization meeting of the new group within the next several days.

Membership will be sought from the "thousands of voters in the county who are interested in the cause of progressive government," Travis said.

Travis issued a statement in which he charged that there appears to be "a deliberate attempt to mislead the voters by a palpable misrepresentation of the facts about our report and its meaning to the cause of progressive government."

"We have read with amazement the statement just issued by a committee of five, representing an organization which uses the title 'Federation of Fairfax County Citizens' Associations.' That statement accuses the commission of failing to present the county executive form 'as it is actually provided by law' and speaks of 'misstatements of fact and law' and then offers as the only specific point of argument a quibble on words—that is, whether under the county executive form the Board of Supervisors 'appoints' any one it pleases or whether the Board 'shall appoint upon recommendation of the county executive,' as the law actually reads."

The civic federation advocates the county manager form.

Travis said that under the executive form the administrator must recommend so that there can be appointments by the board, but that the board need not accept the first recommendation.

He said that to give the county manager authority to select the man who is to levy the taxes and collect the revenue for the county without giving the supervisors a voice "is to build up a one-man government. It would be controlled by the pressure groups of citizens who put him in office by county-wide voting. It would mean that the Board of Supervisors would become a figurehead and that the political power in the county would rest with the pressure groups now so vociferously urging the county manager form."

Strict Controls Held Needless By Symington

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11 (AP).—Mobilization Coordinator W. Stuart Symington warned today the United States is in "as great a danger as it has ever been in history."

This means higher taxes are imminent, he added, but there is not yet any "reason to strait-jacket the American workman and housewife."

In his first public remarks since President Truman last Saturday named him head of the Nation's economic mobilization program, Symington spoke to 800 persons at a Baltimore Association of Commerce luncheon.

He said an "elaborate report" will be issued next week on civil defense, "the missing link in the security of this Nation."

Master of Irrelevance

Adams Has Keen Eye For the Small Detail

By John Crosby

SOMEONE recently asked Cedric Adams, who has a five-minute program of chatter Mondays through Fridays on C.B.S. (3:55 p.m. WTOP), whether he'd ever noticed that waitresses' elbows were invariably dirty.

Adams

"I have never noticed that," observed Adams thoughtfully. "Very little of my life to date has been devoted to the study or observation of waitresses' elbows. I'll take a look tonight."

He probably did, too. Seems Odd he hadn't noticed them before, because Adams has a keen and tireless eye for the smallest details, most of which eventually find their way on to his daily commentary. Do you know how to fix a thermometer? Adams will tell you. You want a tip on how to smoke in bed (a practice he doesn't indorse) without burning the house down? He'll tell you that, too.

"Does it ever give you a weird feeling," says Adams, who is fond of asking such questions, "to look at somebody's head and think of all the stuff that's stored in there? For instance, if you sat down and typed out everything that you know or could remember, it would probably take a silo to store the manuscript. And yet there it is, compact and available—most of the time—in your egg-shaped noggin."

ADAMS comes to network radio with an awe-inspiring list of indorsements. He has the almost unlimited blessing of Pillsbury Mills, who is his sponsor; the best wishes of Arthur Godfrey which is one of the aliases of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and the militant support of apparently all of Minneapolis. Adams' column is not only devoured avidly in Minneapolis where it appears in "th Tribune" but also in hosts of other cities where it appears as an ad in many magazines. His local radio shows in Minneapolis, of which he has a bewildering number, have incredibly high ratings.

It just goes to prove how far a gift for irrelevance will take a man. "I haven't heard the word 'skeedaddle' for years. I hope it hasn't left our language. It was a very expressive word," he'll say in his rich, mellifluous voice which is accompanied by one of the frutiest chuckles on the air.

And in the next breath: "You might check your family on this one. If one parent has a large nose, oversized ears or a big mouth and those same features are normal on the other parent, a child is very apt to inherit the more features Here's a cynic's definition of imagination: Imagination is something that sits up with a woman when he stays out late."

IT WAS from Mr. A. that I discovered I was wasting my time trying to write the Great American Novel (The average book of fiction sells less than 5000 copies, he says. Discontinued mine immediately); and also that there's nothing to the legend that the first customer in a pawnshop on Monday morning can walk off with any item in the store at his own price.

I'm especially enchanted with that last fragment of learning. It marks the first time in my life I ever learned something wasn't true before I'd ever suspected that it was.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

2700 Miles Later, He Discovers He Should Have Stayed Home

For the past three weeks I have discussed my vacation with the indefatigable enthusiasm of a dowager telling about her operation.

Today I think it's time to take out the stitches, so that we can go back to the usual District Line column by tomorrow.

When we left Avon, N. Y., we were all anxious to get home with a minimum of delay. Our roadmap showed that Route 15 leads straight down to Frederick, Md., so that's the route we picked.

But I suspect we could have gone through Denver and made better time.

There's a great deal of local traffic on No. 15, and we wound through beautiful countryside in New York and Pennsylvania behind some mighty exasperating drivers. Every time we'd get up to the legal limit of 50 miles per hour, we'd find ourselves blocked by somebody poking along at anything from 15 to 30. Even the big trucks were trying to pass them.

In Mansfield, Pa., we stopped for gas and soda pop, and found that soft drinks are 6 cents, plus a penny tax on each bottle. "I'm glad I don't live in Pennsylvania," announced Walter. "I wonder if they tax comic books, too."

From upstate New York to Frederick we wound through the hills in single file for the most part, and averaged a snappy 27 miles per hour. We had vowed we wouldn't stop for dinner until we reached the District, and we were starved when we finally arrived, just before midnight.

But a good meal and the sight of familiar surroundings lifted our spirits to the point that we were ready to face a stuffy apartment that hadn't been aired out in three weeks.

Walter helped me carry up the first load of baggage and immediately disappeared. On my next trip up, I found him stretched out on his bed.

"Tired?" I asked.

"No," he replied simply, "I just wanted to remind myself what a good air-foam mattress feels like."

By the time we got the luggage upstairs, I found that Bernice had already been across the hall visiting with the Hulls and had returned with a news bulletin.

"Maury Hull is locked in the bathroom, and Fern and a maintenance man are trying to get him out."

Walter and I immediately went over to volunteer as sidewalk superintendents. The bathroom doors in our apartments have little push-pull locks that sometimes snap into place when the door is shut, even when they're not touched.

This one went haywire in the process, and there was no budging it. The maintenance man had been working for two hours, drilling holes, pounding, and picking at the lock—to no avail. Maury had lowered a string from the bathroom window and hauled up some tools that enabled him to remove the pins from the hinges, but that wouldn't open the door, either.

"Are you experiencing great mental anguish?" I joked through the barrier.

"Now that you mention it, counselor," Maury laughed, "I am. And humiliation, too. What if the fire department has to haul me out of this window with a bath towel wrapped around my middle?"

"If you'd take my advice," counseled Walter, "that wouldn't be necessary. Lower your string again and I'll pass you my hacksaw. All you have to do is saw through the little bit of latch that won't budge."

And sure enough, that's how we got him out. And that's how we initiated the bottle of Scotch I brought home from Canada—at Maury Hull's "coming out" party.

Vacations are fun, but believe me, it's good to be home.

I'm glad I had a chance to do a column based on our 2700 miles of travel through 11 States and Canada. You can call it "work" if you like, but actually it sharpened our appreciation of what we were seeing and doing. In looking for interesting items, we gave ourselves a purpose and a goal. We didn't just wander aimlessly for three weeks.

I didn't have a golf club in my hands during the entire trip, because we had to keep on the move. And we spent more money than if we had stayed put, either at home or at some resort.

But I've never had such an enjoyable vacation (or appreciated my home so much when it was over). I'll be interested to get your comments on the change of pace, especially if they're not too harsh.

ϕ+ϑ

The morning after I got back, I thumbed through my checkbook and said: "Honey, it was a great trip, but our bank balance needs a transfusion."

"In that case," Bernice replied, "I have bad news for you. There's a postcard in the mail advising you that the television set you've waited for so long has finally been received from the factory."

Me and my big mouth. Two months ago, I promised to pay cash for it, to ensure early delivery.

I suspect that the most accurate report I could have sent home during the trip would have been:

"Having a fine time, boss; wish I could afford it."

Molotov-Mao Compact Reported

By Drew Pearson

A report on China's negotiations with Russia on the vital question of coming in or staying out of the Korean war has just been received in Washington.

Mao Tse-tung

Obviously it is impossible to know how accurate these reports are regarding such important figures as Molotov and Mao Tse-tung. However, here is what they are supposed to have talked about in their recent Peiping meeting.

Molotov, who is Stalin's Far East manager, was unable to budge Mao, China's Communist boss, on the Korean war. Mao is reported to have refused point-blank to intervene in the Korean war or to set a date for the invasion of Formosa, or to attack British Hongkong or Portuguese Macao.

Finally, after much wrangling, a five-point program was agreed to:

1. Russia will outfit 15 Chinese divisions, or a total of about 225,000 men.

2. Mao will send limited troops as volunteers to Korea north of the thirty-eighth parallel. This, of course, would relieve North Korean troops to fight south of the thirty-eighth parallel.

3. China will patrol the Manchurian-Korean border.

4. Molotov and Mao will meet again this month to reach an agreement on the invasion of Formosa. All summer the Russians have been demanding the Communists make an amphibious attack on Formosa, but Mao has been putting them off week after week. This was one reason why President Truman cracked down on MacArthur when he shot off his uncleared statement on Formosa.

5. Mao's government will help re-equip Viet Minh forces in Indo-China for a new, all-out offensive.

Note.—The above intelligence report is chiefly based on British information, the British having much better sources than we do in the Orient.

Mystery Witness

There is something awfully peculiar about the way the Justice Department claimed it couldn't locate the mysterious missing witness in the wire-tapping case, Henry Grunewald, then suddenly produced him in another case after the statute of limitations had run on Senator Brewster's wire-tappings.

Grunewald, who worked for Pan-American World Airways at the time of the wire-tapping, and was intimate with Chief Wire-Tapper Lieut. Joe Shimon, is a well-known person about town. But for some strange reason he evaporated into thin air.

Grunewald has a $75,000 home at Valharbor, Miami Beach, an $85,000 home at Spring Lake, N. J., and owns considerable property in the District of Columbia, including a five-acre tract in the fashionable suburbs. He owns three automobiles, including a limousine, which is frequently seen parked outside the Senate. Inside, he is chiefly in the offices of Senators Brewster of Maine and Bridges of New Hampshire.

He also has an apartment at the swank Westchester, has maintained an office in the Munsey Building and a suite in the Washington Hotel which he shares with the former Secretary of War and former Governor of Kansas, Harry Woodring. Lieutenant Shimon, the wire-tapping cop, also occupied this suite as a guest of Woodring and Grunewald and the other night when a Senate investigator called, who should poke his bald head out of the suite but William Power Maloney, close friend of Senator Brewster and attorney for Lieutenant Shimon.

Grunewald has also been frequently seen in the company of war assets administrator, Jesse Larson, and is so often in Senator Brewster's office that he is treated as if he were a member of the office force.

Senator Bridges also seems solicitous about Grunewald. When a representative of this column called at Grunewald's Munsey Building office, its occupants professed complete amazement that Grunewald had ever been in the office. Yet, in the next room, someone hastily and surreptitiously phoned Senator Bridges to warn: "They're trying to find Henry."

Schoeppel's Attack

The backstage decision to have mousy Senator Schoeppel of Kansas sling Communist mud at Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman was made at a meeting of Republican Senators in the office of Senator Ken Wherry of Nebraska, who recently played into the hands of the racketeers by slicing the Senate crime probe appropriations by one-half.

Wherry remarked that Chapman was winning too many battles against the Public Utilities. So Frank Bow, former axeman for the GOP harness committee in the Republican Eightieth Congress and now aide to Schoeppel, worked up a mud-slinging attack for the Senator.

The fact that the speech was ghostwritten was why Schoeppel asked for a delay of Secretary Chapman's reply. For Bow, the ghost writer, was out of town, and the Senator himself knew no more about the facts in the case than a phonograph needle knows about the record it is playing.

Though Schoeppel didn't prepare the tirade against Chapman, he was delighted to spearhead the attack, because it dovetailed with the interests of his law firm and the big gas and oil company clients it serves.

Unlike conscientious Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut, Schoeppel did not divorce himself from his law firm when he came to Washington. And the Martindale-Hubbell Law Directory lists Schoeppel as representing five oil companies, two gas companies and 20 insurance companies, including Republic Natural Gas, Colorado Interstate Gas, Texaco, Sinclair, Phillips Petroleum, Gulf, and Lion Oil.

No wonder Alf Landon once described Schoeppel as the "errand boy of the utilities." No wonder also that he was delighted to use the Senate floor to castigate the Cabinet member who had opposed his law clients.

He was delighted, that is, until Secretary Chapman came back with his scathing reply.

Here's to the Hands that mould America's future. . .

We'd like to shower you Teachers with bouquets. We'd like to give you a whole orchard of apples. We'd like to do it because you're the moulders of tomorrow . . . the moulders of our children. Your job isn't just to teach them readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic. Your job is far bigger than that, far more important than that. You have to stimulate the young with intellectual curiosity, the desire to learn, to inquire, to experiment. You have to help them adjust themselves to community living within the four walls of a school room. You have to imbue them with the ideals of good citizenship . . . inspire them with the elements of fair play and democracy. You have to recognize their qualities of leadership and develop them. You have to detect their latent creative talents and foster them. You have to make the insecure feel secure . . . to give the braggart and the bully compassion and understanding. You have tomorrow's citizens in your hands . . . and it's up to you to help make them happy and well adjusted today . . . so they'll be able to meet tomorrow's problems with maturity and moral fortitude. That's why we salute you now as you start on your all-important job that's more important than ever. We know how much you have to give of your own heart, soul, and strength. We know how much you will give . . . and how much that giving will mean to America's future.
